Pauley Puts Commodity Profits at $932,703

Denies Having Had Benefit of Inside Information in 3-Year Operations

By The Associated Press

Edwin W. Pauley last night said he had made $932,703.10 in commodity trading during the past three years, but did it without benefit of inside Government information.

He added that when Harold E. Stassen testified last Friday about how much Pauley had made in the commodity markets, he was not making a "disclosure" but was simply reading certified figures which Pauley said he had voluntarily supplied the committee several days before.

Firing another verbal broadside at Stassen, who has accused Pauley of not telling the whole story about his market transactions, Pauley said in a telegram to Stassen:

"Instead of openly admitting that it was I, not you, who had disclosed this figure and that you were simply reading from certified figures which I had voluntarily submitted and which had been handed you for your use before and during your appearance before the committee, you attempted to mislead the public by making it appear that you had made a 'discovery' and were making a 'disclosure.'"

Resumption of Word Duel

Pauley's telegram, sent from his Washington hotel to Stassen, who is in the Midwest, was a resumption of their bitter weekend duel with words.

Stassen, candidate for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, had testified that Pauley, special assistant to the Secretary of the Army, was a Government insider who profited to the extent of a million dollars; and that he hadn't told the whole story of his operations.

To that Pauley replied: "Deliberate falsity."

After Stassen's appearance before the Appropriations Subcommittee which is making a study of futures trading in commodities such as cotton, corn and wheat, Pauley asked for the right to confront Stassen at another hearing and cross-examine him.

To Reappear January 23

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), chairman of the subcommittee, arranged for Stassen to reappear as a witness January 23, but he declined to allow Stassen the right to conduct the questioning. All queries will be submitted in writing through Ferguson or other members of the committee.

In his message to Stassen tonight, Pauley asked: "Why not stop evading?" He went on:

"Under oath before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee you said I made a million dollars following a pattern of Government purchases. When you were not under oath, you merel ysaid that

U. S. Major Shot By Red Sentry in Misunderstanding

Berlin, Jan. 11 (AP).—A Russian sentry fired at an American major and his wife following an apparent misunderstanding at a Soviet army barrier on the highway to Berlin.

The major was wounded in the hand. Five bullets hit his car.

Persons present at the barrier identified the major as Richard R. Baker of the United States Air Forces, who was en route from Air Force headquarters in Wiesbaden to Berlin.

The incident ook place at Helmstedt.

Gerhard Stindt, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cameraman, who was in another car, quoted Baker as telling British officers later that he thought the Russian sentry had waved him on as he neared the post.

Shortly after the incident, a Soviet officer was reported to have reprimanded the sentry and tried to bind the major's wound with a handkerchief.

Empire Collapse Laid t... wall

Shipp Feels Hard Brick Would Have Averted Tragedy

By Sam Zagoria & V. R. Montanari
Post Reporters

Collapse of the Empire Building was said yesterday to have been caused by enlarging an opening in a critical supporting wall without reinforcing the remaining wall.

Murray T. Shipp, president of the Pines Wrecking Co. of Arlington, which is now clearing the wreckage, told The Washington Post this was his conclusion after a personal investigation.

Shipp, who was an Army demolition technician during World War II, said the remaining portion of the wall was not strong enough to support the weight of the upper floors.

The collapse could have been averted if the pier had been rebuilt with more durable materials than the "soft bricks" originally used, Shipp said.

4 Killed, 12 Injured

Four persons were killed and 12 injured when the interior of the seven-story structure crumbled late December 16. A special five-man board is seeking the cause of the disaster at hearings in the District Building.

Shipp said that when the opening in the wall was widened in 1932, steel beams were placed on the remaining wall and it was used as a bearing pier although it "was not constructed correctly to serve as a pier."

He said it could easily have been converted to such use with safety since it was "sufficient in size to carry the load above it, providing it had been constructed of the right materials."

His investigation indicated that the weight supported by the pier was about 56 tons and that if the original "very soft brick" had been replaced by "hard" brick, it would "in my opinion have carried the weight."

The opening, which ran from near the 9th st. side of the building to the central part of the wall, was enlarged in 1932, according to the testimony of witnesses appearing before the special investigating board last Monday.

Changed Under Permit

Witnesses said the original 8-foot-10-inch opening was extended to 13 feet 6 inches. The change was made by Moss C. Lee, contractor now dead, from plans drawn by Julius Wenig, architect, also deceased, witnesses testified. A permit for the alteration was issued by the District Department of Inspections.

Inspector Oscar Estep, who checked the most recent renovations on the building made in 1947, also inspected the 1932 work. According to his testimony last Monday the work was done according to specifications.

Shipp, who entered the building trade in 1907 as a water boy and rose to construction superintendent in 1919, said the pier held up two 12-inch steel beams above the large opening and three 8-inch beams running across the smaller opening. This pier was 19 inches thick, 63 inches long and about 8 feet high, Shipp said his reconstruction of the area indicated.

Gradual Deterioration

In his opinion, the pier gradually deteriorated as the "soft bricks" expanded and contracted under the load. Moisture also seeped in throwing greater pressure on the "good" brick, deteriorating it, too.

Then, too, water from floors above may have seeped into the bricks in the pier since "soft brick takes water like a sponge and brick dust is softened up," Shipp declared.

The pier collapsed, with the section bordering on the larger opening going first and crumbling to the street floor, leaving only about 36 inches standing. Shipp said he arrived at this conclusion after studying the position of materials in the debris.

Shipp declared brick dust was found in large quantities and formed a pile near the center of the pier in the shape of an "inverted ice cream cone."

Last Monday Ben H. Fields, manager of the City Finance Co., street floor occupants of the collapsed area, testified that 30 hours before the collapse he had informed Nick Papanicolas, the own-

New England Gets Promise Of More Oil

Strike Settlement In Texas Ends Tie-up of Tankers

By The Associated Press

More fuel oil was promised yesterday to New England, shivering in winter's coldest weather, but not enough to end the shortage.

In Texas, the Pan American refineries started loading tankers for the Eastern Seaboard early yesterday after settlement of a strike which 10 days ago cut off a flow of 2,500,000 barrels a day.

Boston reported that Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan had assured action today releasing a large amount of Navy industrial oil. This would open the way for industrial oil tankers to carry domestic heating oil.

Two other steps were a little farther in the future:

1. Ways to ease the shortages which affect a widespread area of the country will be sought at a meeting of emergency fuel coordinators of nearly half the States to be held here Thursday. It was called by Max W. Ball, director of the Interior Department's oil and gas division.

2. Steps were taken under the new anti-inflation law by the National Petroleum Council looking toward recommendations for vol-

Miami-Chicago Train Derailed, 14 Hurt Slightly

Pidcock, Ga., Jan. 11 (AP).—The de luxe train Southwind carrying Florida travelers back home, jumped the tracks near here today, injuring 14 passengers slightly.

The injured were taken to hospitals at nearby Thomasville and Quitman. Eight remained under observation there. In addition to the 14 requiring hospital care, doctors estimated that 2 others were treated for slight scratches and bruises.

Six of the eight cars of the Atlantic Coast Line's Miami to Chicago train derailed. None overturned. Four skidded into a shallow pond alongside the right of way, 225 miles south of Atlanta. Trainmen said the accident was caused by a broken rail. The engine and the first two cars got over it. The other—one by one—started jumping off.

Attackers Believed Jews

Bridge Across River Jordan Dynamited After Gun Battle

Jerusalem, Jan. 11 (AP).—A group of unidentified raiders dynamited a bridge over the River Jordan in northeastern Palestine tonight after fighting a gun battle at the approaches with the British guardsmen.

The blast severely damaged the Jisr Banat Yacoub Bridge, located on the Haifa-Damascus highway between the Sea of Galilee and Lake Hula. It was still standing after attack. The raid was the latest in a series of Palestine-Syrian border incidents which have occurred since the United Nations voted November 29 to partition Palestine.

A military spokesman said there were no casualties in the attack. He said Jews were presumed to have blasted the bridge as a border defensive measure, since the covering gunfire came from the direction of a nearby Jewish settlement.

The bridge, now closed to all vehicular traffic, was described as reparable. It crosses the Jordan at a place where the river is only a winding stream 15 or 20 feet wide.

British forces, anticipating that attempts would be made to put bridges out of service in the vicinity of the Syrian border, shipped several sections of portable bridges into the area a few days ago.

Arab House Blown Up

The bridge blast occurred shortly after a bomb blew up an Arab house in the Romema section of Jerusalem. Police said one Arab was buried under the wreckage.

During the day, three Jews were killed in the Jerusalem area and three Arabs were killed in Gaza, Haifa and Lifta in the continuing Arab-Jew warfare that has killed 683 persons by unofficial count since the partition of the Holy Land was voted.

Along the Katamon outskirts of southern Jerusalem the Arabs continued their gun battle with the Jews of Mekor Haim Village in an apparent effort to isolate all Jewish settlements in that area.

The casualties in that battle were known to include two Jews

Strike Ordered For Italian Tax Collectors

Reds Plan Action To Support Walkout Of Bank Workers

Rome, Italy, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—The Communist-led National Labor Confederation ordered 160,000 tax collectors to go on strike tomorrow to support 60,000 striking bank workers, and to stay out until the bank strike is settled.

Giuseppe di Vittoria, Communist general secretary of the confederation, issued the call after government and bank representatives failed again to end the crippling wage dispute.

Business declared they have been charged interest as high as 120 per cent on liquid credits from nonbankers. Most firms have not met payrolls for two weeks and even the state-owned Bank of Italy said it may close down during the walkout.

New Strikes Threatened

The determined Communist campaign to unseat Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government brought threats of new walkouts, while these strikes were under way:

1. By dock workers at Naples and Genoa, paralyzing Italy's greatest ports. Workers at Civitavecchia, the port of Rome, walked out in sympathy yesterday.

2. Seventy-five thousand farm hands in Venice province continued their strike. Farm workers

Citywide Campaign

Commissioners to Lead Off With Chest X-Rays Today

District Commissioners will line up today for chest X-rays as Washington opens its drive to track down tuberculosis in all its hidden sources, which might be their chests—or yours.

The campaign, expected to last six months in the X-raying of the chests of every resident or worker over 15 years of age, opens publicly at 10 a. m. today at Exhibit A, the Survey and Special Events Center, at 1350 Pennsylvania ave. nw

It is the biggest free health service ever undertaken in the United States.

Among those expected at the drive's opening ceremony are the District's three Commissioners, John Russell Young, president, Commissioner Guy Mason, and Engineer Commissioner Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young. The program will be covered by the press, radio and television.

Ease and speed of the X-raying service will be demonstrated, particularly to show the public that no one need be embarrassed either by the X-raying or by its findings. Results are handled strictly on a physician-patient basis; the X-rays are taken through the subject's own clothing.

Simultaneous with the opening to the public of the stationary X-ray unit in front of the District Building, the campaign's first mobile unit, housed in a specially built truck, will commence operations at Connecticut ave. and K st. nw. Progress here will be followed by Radio Station WWDC.

This mobile unit will operate on a 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m., daily schedule for a period of two weeks before being moved to another location in the city. The permanent installation at 1350 Pennsylvania ave. nw., will be open seven days a week from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Seven portable X-ray units will be installed and start functioning today within Government agencies for the workers of those agencies. Another two portable units will service employes of Hotel Statler and Jelleff's department store, today and tomorrow.

Plans call for the moving around of the portable units to eventually cover all Government offices and larger business establishments. The mobile units will scientifically criss-cross the city to provide service with the least inconvenience to all residents.

X-raying service in Government agencies is scheduled to begin today at the Munitions Building, South Agriculture Building, Federal Securities Building, Yards and Docks (Navy) Annex, Arlington, Va., Commerce Department Building, Navy Annex, Arlington, and the Government Printing Offices.

Drunk Driving First Issue

Year's Traffic Safety Drive To Start in D. C. This Week

An intensive year-long District traffic safety campaign will get under way this week with emphasis first on drunken driving.

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said that during January local organizations and newspapers will be asked to focus attention on the menace of intoxicated drivers.

The District Government will have outgoing mail stamped with the slogan, "If you drink, don't drive. If you drive, don't drink."

Themes for other months in the drive will include safe winter driving, vacation travel, pedestrian safety and night driving.

Sponsored by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board, the program will be run on a month-to-month basis for two purposes:

1. To eliminate the sporadic campaign which sells safety in short spurts, followed by long periods of inactivity.

2. To include as many groups and individuals as possible in order to generate wide interest.

Among the 36 organizations asked to participate will be the Hotel and Restaurant associations, Advertising Club, Federation of Citizens' Associations, Board of Trade, Veterans' groups, churches and Boy Scouts. Invitations to help will be extended also to utility companies, banks, department stores, food companies, labor unions, businessmen's clubs.

Media for the drive will include window displays, speeches, sermon topics, radio programs, movie shorts, safety contests and automobile bumper strips.

Greek Soldiers Describe Baffling War on Border

By L. S. Chakales

Ioannina, Greece, Jan. 10 (Delayed) (AP).—Two battle weary Greek soldiers said today they believed the Greek army would take care of the guerillas if the United States sent in troops to seal Greece's borders.

Stephanos Hasapogiou, 24, of Athens said: "We push them (the guerillas) to the border. They cross then and go north or south and recross at another point and often attack us from behind.

"We launched a counterattack after Konitsa was saved, and drove to the Albanian border. While mopping up the area along the frontier a machinegun fired on us from within Albania, and we were helpless to do anything about it."

Andreas Leckas, 25, also from Athens, told how his battalion had forced the guerillas to retreat. He said:

"We were under scattered fire from the Albanian border. Every night as soon as it was dark convoys of trucks came down the road from Leskovic on the Albanian side. They stopped at the frontier, unloaded and loaded and then left. We could see the lights clearly.

"We could not think of anything but that they were bringing sup-

Landis to Offer Bill to Establish Air Force School

By The Associated Press

Establishment of an Air Force Academy, similary to the Military and Naval Academies at West Point and Annapolis, is proposed in a bill that Representative Landis (R., Ind.) says he will introduce today.

"The most important problem facing the American people is to restore American air power," Landis said in a statement asserting an Air Force Academy would save "millions of dollars worth of manpower."

The proposed academy would provide a four-year course of basic military education and liberal arts as well as special aviation training. Cadets would be entitled to flying pay in addition to the same base pay as cadets at West Point.

U. S. Blackout

'Ether Wall' Stops Radio At Red Zone

Munich, Germany, Jan. 11 (AP).—A mysterious "ether curtain" at the Russian zone border is blacking out American broadcasts to a big segment of Bavaria, and completely preventing them from reaching into Soviet occupied territory, United States Military Government officials disclosed today.

At the same time, the Russians are pouring their broadcasts into this part of the American zone with ease.

Germans living in the sector have written to the Military Government and to German authorities asking for American broadcasts, and complaining they cannot hear Radio Munich. The same Munich system however, is heard without difficulty in Paris.

Radio engineers said it was only a technical problem. They shied away from any hint the Soviets were deliberately scrambling the area, as both the Allied and German armies did during the war, with great effectiveness.

Edwin Schechter, chief of Radio Munich, said the atmospheric conditions make it impossible for the broadcasts to reach at least 50,000 German radios in upper Bavaria, near the Soviet zone border.

The engineers said they were working on a campaign to overcome the difficulty. In a few days a new wave length will be assigned to Radio Nuernberg, thereby strengthening both Nuernberg and Munich.

Russians Hint They'll Rule Berlin Alone

Red Army Paper Implies Ousting Of U. S. and Britain

Berlin, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—The official Red army newspaper Taegliche Rundschau published an implied threat today that the Russians would attempt to force the United States and Britain out of Berlin because of their new agreement to unify western Germany.

"Britain and the United States have entered the dangerous course of violating the (Allied) Control mechanism which will unavoidably lead to a change in the occupation statute of Berlin," the newspaper said in a first page editorial.

"There is no space in Berlin for the supporters of German partition."

The editorial was signed by M. Sobinov, a Red army officer.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay declined comment. Clay and Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British commander in chief, have anticipated the possibility of such a step and it is known that they are prepared to fight it. The possibility that Russia might seek to exclude the other Allies from Berlin and make it the capital of an eastern German unified regime was suggested as soon as the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference broke up in London December 15.

Berlin is now divided into four Allied zones, but it is surrounded by Russian occupation territory.

German Council Asks Funds to Buy Imports

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 11 (U.P.). The German Economic Council, which is to form the basis for a western German legislature, has asked that 300 million dollars be made available in the next six months to buy foreign goods in the Anglo-American zones, it was made known today.

In addition, the council asked that "at least 100 million dollars" should be made available at once to buy needed goods and balance an excess of exports over imports for 1947. The council charged that during 1947 the Allied Joint Export-Import Agency had withheld about 85 million dollars which should have been used for imports.

The council is to be enlarged

Compromise Is Sought on Foreign Aid Management

Entire Recovery Program Blasted By Taber as Peril To U. S. Economy

Budget Message Today

CONGRESS will get Truman budget message today, his second annual economic report, Wednesday. Page 2.

On Hill, at White House

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

From both ends of Pennsylvania ave. last night came reports of diligent efforts to compose differences between the Administration and Congress on management of proposed aid to Europe.

Officials high in the Administration were said to be searching "diligently and hopefully" for a formula which would satisfy both Congress and the State Department. In Congress itself, "quiet efforts" to effect a bipartisan compromise on means of administering the program were reported to be under way.

Taber Blasts Whole Plan

Into the midst of these efforts to find a mutually satisfactory compromise, Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.), of the House Appropriations Committee, let fly with a withering blast at the whole plan for European recovery popularly known as the Marshall Plan. Taber's committee would have to pass on all funds needed to carry out the program once it was authorized by Congress.

Describing the program as a "menace," Taber assailed the "uncontrollable zeal" of foreign policy planners who would "wreck the economy" of the United States. The 67-year-old New Yorker has often attacked most Federal spending as "too damned high."

Secretary of State Marshall, who last week laid the aid plan before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a vigorous and eloquent statement, is expected to present the same argument today to the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Marshall is expected to urge the House, as he did the Senate, to provide funds adequate to the program's aims or let the whole thing drop.

125-Pound Limit Indicated for Meat Ration Bill

Copyright, 1948, N. Y. Herald Tribune.

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) revealed yesterday that the bill for standby meat rationing authority which he is drafting probably will provide for a ration of 125 pounds per person each year. The Agriculture Department has reported that average per capita consumption last year was 157 pounds. In 1939 it was 133 pounds.

Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, predicted recently that by spring, meat supplies will be down to an annual rate of 125 to 135 pounds per person, but the Agriculture Department has said the figure for 1948 as a whole will come to about 144 pounds.

Senator Flanders said he was considering proposing a half-ration or 62½ pounds, for children. Infants would receive no meat under his plan.

The Senator indicated he expects to introduce his bill in the Senate on Wednesday. It would merely authorize establishment of the machinery for meat rationing. Passage of a joint resolution by the Senate and House would be required to start the machinery working.

Protestants Launch Drive To 'Separate' Church, State

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Five Protestant churchmen last night announced formation of a Nation-wide organization devoted to "separation of church and state," declaring that "religious freedom is in peril."

While repeatedly asserting that its purpose was not "to criticize or oppose the teaching or internal practices of the Roman Catholic Church or any other," the group demanded immediate recall of Myron Taylor, President Truman's personal Ambassador to the Vatican, and denounced use of tax funds to provide free bus transportation and textbooks for parochials schools.

Announcement of the organization, "Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State," and its views came in the form of a "manifesto" released to the lay and religious press and to religious leaders.

It was signed: John A. Mackay, president of the Princeton Theological Seminary; Edwin McNeill Poteat, president of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School; G. Bromley Oxnam, Bishop of the Methodist Church, New York Area; Louie D. Newton, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, and Charles Clayton Morrison, former editor of the Christian Century.

Congress Awaits Three Hot Issues

Truman Requests Expected to Include Larger Budget, Controls, Social Laws

By The Associated Press

President Truman is expected to pitch three hot issues to the Republican Congress this week—a higher Federal budget, a firm new demand for price control, and a controversy-laden social program.

The budget message for the fiscal year beginning July 1, due to reach Capitol Hill at noon today, has for days been reported authoritatively to call for outlays close to $39,500,000,000. This is about two billion dollars more than Mr. Truman asked for the current fiscal year, ending June 30.

On Wednesday the President's second annual economic report will reach the Hill. Government officials indicate privately that it will carry a double load of political explosive:

First, a welfare and resources program remindful of the Franklin D. Roosevelt "New Deal."

Second, a renewed call for enactment of the full "standby" anti-inflation powers to control ptices and ration scarce goods which Mr. Truman asked of the special session—and failed to get.

The Republican majority, which turned down the Truman anti-inflation plan and substituted a voluntary allocation program of its own, is expected to raise anew the cry of "campaign-year politics" which greeted Mr. Truman's state of the Union message last week.

A large part of the economic message, one high Administration official said, will be devoted to discussion of broader social security, education, research, health and education programs, and of the need for conserving natural resources.

Meanwhile, a Federal Reserve Board economic analysis issued last night said that continuance of high level production and employment may be seriously endangered unless the board is given new power to control bank credit.

The analysis supported board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles' request to Congress in November for legislation enabling the board to check inflationary lending by making banks set aside certain resources as "special reserves" which could not be loaned out.

The analysis made no mention of the praise given by Mr. Truman and Secretary Snyder last week to a voluntary credit control program put forth by the American Bankers Association, or to Snyder's prior objection to the Eccles' proposal.

Prepared by the board's top economists, Woodlief Thomas, and Ralph A. Young, the analysis said the huge debt run up by the Government to finance the war had swollen the money supply enormously and simultaneously tied the board's hands.

Pointing out that there is well over 100 billion dollars in circulating money and checking accounts and that the banks are still able to add billions to the current record volume of loans, the analysis said:

"The money supply, actual and potential, is disproportionate to the current output (of goods) and income, even at present inflated prices and also to forseeable prospective needs."

amounts originally requested by four European countries. These are British, France, Western Germany and Greece. Smaller cuts were made in the requests from Italy, Denmark and Sweden, while slight increases were judged necessary for the Netherlands, Belgium and Norway.

Chief among differences between the Administration and Congress over the recovery program is that of how and by whom its functions would be carried out and its money spent. Many Republicans have insisted that administration of the plan be removed entirely from State Department control, which has been opposed by the department on the ground that aid to Europe is a matter of foreign policy.

Some Democrats have maintained that the State Department should be made directly and entirely responsible for administering the plan, including its finances. This has been opposed by the State Department, which asked for a $20,000-a-year administration outside the department but subject to its "direction and control."

Informed observers here have suggested that the fundamental basis for present differences between Congress and the Administration is the difficulty of explaining so complex an issue. After all, these observers point out, there are more than 500 members of Congress, each burdened with a multitude of demands on his time, to whom the program must be made clear.

The program itself is exceedingly complex, they say, and they feel the State Department has not yet been able to make it clear to many members of committees concerned with it, whose opportunity to digest it is better than that of most. The State Department is said to be seeking some means of explaining the plan better to more members of Congress.

One solution which has been suggested is that Marshall may adopt his wartime practice of secret meetings with members of Congress where he could discuss the matter frankly and in considerably more detail than is possible in a public hearing.

Another point of difference is the estimated cost of the recovery plan. While the State Department has accepted the inevitable refusal of Congress to establish a total figure for the four years for which the program is projected, it still has a stiff fight on its hands for the $6,800,000,000 it says is necessary for the first 15 months.

Even before the House Foreign Affairs Committee has heard Marshall, some of its Republican members were said to be considering three billion instead of $6,800,000,000 as adequate for the initial period. It also was reported that some House members were ready to insist on a survey of world-wide needs, including China, before deciding on aid for Europe.

Sympathy strikes at Pistoia, north of Florence, and Via Reggio ended, but Saturday's violence at Pistoia caused the cabinet to pass an emergency decree ordering immediate trials for anyone blocking roads. Convictions will carry 10-year prison sentences. Twelve persons were injured at Pistoia.

Potential strength of the Communist labor agitation was indicated by the Communist Party's announcement in Milan that it is the largest outside Russia and has a total membership of 2,256,716. At last estimate Italy's population was 45,637,000.

Meanwhile, former Premier Francesco Nitti's new-born National bloc, formed to appeal to middle-of-the roaders who can not string along either with Communists or De Gasperi's Christian Democrats, ran into trouble.

Fourteen parliamentary deputies who belong to Guglielmo Giannini's l'Uomo Qualunque—Common man—party said they will form an independent Qualunquist party. This is the fourth Qualunquist split and divides the original strong party into five splinter groups.

into a legislature for the German regime which is to be set up in the United States and British occupation zones.

Fire Levels 2 Homes At Josephine City

Berryville, Va., Jan. 11 (Spl.).—Fire leveled two frame dwellings at Josephine City near here yesterday. Orchard spraying equipment was used to bring the fire under control before it spread to other buildings. Fire equipment was summoned from Winchester and Charles Town.

Robert Jones, occupant of the house where the fire started, said his family lost all belongings except the clothing it wore. The Luther Richardsons, who lived in the adjacent dwelling, saved some of their household goods.

Winchester Hospital Gets Dr. G. H. Murphy

Winchester, Va., Jan. 11 (Spl.).—Dr. George H. Murphy, a native of Nova Scotia, and officer in the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps during World War II, will become director of laboratories and pathologist at Winchester Memorial Hospital, June 1, according to Dr. Hunter H. McGuire, hospital president. Dr. Murphy is now a fellow in pathology at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

Britain Backs Aid Plan Talk Of Socialists

London, Jan. 11 (U.P.)—High-ranking members of the British cabinet have approved the calling of a special conference in London of Socialist Party leaders from western European nations participating in the Marshall Plan, it was disclosed today.

The conference, to which Britain and France will begin inviting delegates in a few days, will discuss "European cooperation within the framework of the Marshall Plan." There are 16 nations in the Marshall Plan, but only 10 or 11 are expected to be represented at the Socialist conference.

The Socialist conference is not to be confused with the European Cooperation Committee, the official Marshall Plan Committee, which represents the 16 nations in the plan. The Cooperation Committee also is considering a meeting.

Some western European Socialist leaders met last night in the office of Morgan Phillips, Secretary of the British Labor Party, to plan the Socialist conference on the Marshall Plan.

French Delegate Salomon Grumbach and Norwegian Party Secretary Haakon Lie were among those present. No German representative attended.

Turkey and Portugal were being eliminated at the outset because they have not recognized the Socialist Parties. The Swiss and Italian Socialists, according to British Labor sources, were known to oppose the idea of a Socialist Marshall Plan conference and were likely to abstain.

The Greek Socialists also are unlikely to side with the western Socialists on the Marshall Plan question. This is not connected with a Greek government order banning issuance of exit permits to Socialists.

Western delegates to the next conference committee meeting, scheduled for March 19, will stay on in London for the separate Marshall Plan discussions.

Daniels Is Reported In Dying Condition

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 11 (AP).—Josephus Daniels was reported unconscious and "in a dying condition" at 3:20 p. m. (EST) today by his physician, Dr. Hubert Haywood. The doctor said the 85-year-old Raleigh newspaper publisher has developed pneumonia.

His family said President Truman had phoned today to ask about Daniels' condition.

Adm. Halsey Says:

New History To Be Written By Marines

Philadelphia, Jan. 11 (AP).—Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey, jr., declared today that "new pages" will be written in American history this year and "I have no doubt that the most interesting footnotes will be written by the Marines."

Halsey, retired wartime commander of the Pacific Fleet, told a Convention Hall gathering of Leathernecks:

"We all know that when our job has been to win a war, the Marines have pitched in with everything they had.

Marines Always Ready

"But we must not forget that when American policy has been to guard the peace, the Marines have been just as ready, willing and able for the job.

"Let us remember also that American history is not all behind us. New pages will be written this year and in the coming decade. I have no doubt that the most interesting footnotes will be written by the Marines."

Halsey's address, delivered over a Nation-wide radio broadcast, was the official sendoff for National Marine Corps Reserve Week in the city where the Corps was born 172 years ago. A crowd estimated at 17,000 jammed Convention Hall and another 10,000 were turned away.

The corp's new commandant, Gen. Clifton B. Cates, told the leathernecks "we have never had too many Marines" and "we do have enough Marines for our basic needs" but he added he would like to have more men in the service.

Feels Like Grid Coach

"I feel," he said, "somewhat like a football coach who looks around and realizes the team on the field is just about the only team he has.

"To be quite frank, I would like to see a few of the cheer leaders warming up. I don't expect to use them, but I would like for them to learn the plays."

The rally, sponsored by the Philadelphia Inquirer and hailed as the largest such gathering of Marines in history, brought numerous Hollywood personalities to Philadelphia in addition to top wartime Navy and Marine leaders. John L. Sullivan, Secretary of the Navy, sent a wire expressing regret that he could not come.

Leckas said that during the battle for the heights dominating the road between Kalpaki and the Bourozani bridge he saw his buddy wounded.

"We could not get to him because of heavy guerilla fire which forced us back," he continued. "When we took the point I found my buddy dead. His eyes had been gouged out and cigarette butts jammed in the sockets."

Senate Committee Accepts Industry Plan to Conserve Fuel Oil Use by 15 Per Cent
News Item
And Here Are Two Ways for Home-Owners to Save up to 30 Per Cent on Fuel Oil
➡ INSTALL STORM WINDOWS
➡ INSULATE WITH MINERAL WOOL
It was never more important than now to conserve existing supplies of fuel oil. The industry's plan, endorsed by a Senate committee, asks for voluntary co-operation by consumers in saving 15 per cent.
Home-owners can save even more—up to 30 per cent—by installing storm windows or by insulating with mineral wool. With the present high prices of fuel oil, the savings resulting from either storm windows or home insulation will pay the cost within a short time.
Let us give you a free estimate for either of these steps to assure home comfort this winter. Telephone now and ask our representative to call with full information. Convenient terms if desired.

Palestine Rumor Denied by Marine

Corps Commander Says Mediterranean Move Is Routine

Philadelphia, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Marine Corps commandant declared today that no Marines have been ordered to Palestine and wrote off the dispatch of about 1000 Leathernecks to the Mediterranean as "routine."

Gen. Clifton B. Cates, in Philadelphia for the opening of National Marine Corps Reserve Week, spiked reports that the United States was sending a contingent of Marines to Paletsine to protect the American consulate in the troubled Holy Land.

The general said the Palestine fuss is "none of our official business anyway."

Jewish Agency Wants U. N. Action Now

Lake Success, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Jewish Agency will seek immediate entry of the United Nations Partition Commission into Palestine, which the U. N. plans to carve into Jewish and Arab nations effective October 1.

A spokesman said today that Moshe Shertok, head of the Agency's political department and considered a leading choice for foreign minister of the new Jewish country, would lay the demand before the five-nation U. N. Commission as soon as consultations open.

The Zionist position clashes sharply with the British stand that the U. N. should stay out of Palestine until the mandate ends. The British have held to this point in spurning any appearance of dual U. N.-British control.

Shertok was said to hold the view that delay in the U. N. entry into Palestine would "doom the commission" and that the General Assembly's November 29 decision to split the Holy Land could not be carried out effectively from here. Agency spokesmen pointed to portions of the resolution providing for the start of virtually unlimited Jewish immigration February 1 and establishment of provisional councils of government for the two new countries April 1.

The Arab Higher Committee, spokesmen for Palestine Arabs, rejected a U. N. invitation to consult.

killed and about a half-dozen wounded on either side.

The commander of the Arab force said he was using reinforcements from Syria in the battle, which has lasted for more than 18 hours.

He said that 100 uniformed well-armed Arabs who attackeed Ramat Rachel, a village between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, were new arrivals from Syria.

Meanwhile Associated Press Correspondent Edward Curtis in the all-Arab city of Nablus said Arab leaders there expect that Arab guerillas now training in the Samarian "Hills of Fire" can be ready for action against the Jews within a month.

The Arabs said 20,000 Arab youths from the rugged country inside the triangle of Nablus, Jenin and Tulkarm can be called to arms to fight under Fawzi Bey, a director of the Palestine revolt of 1936-39, was expected to arrive in Nablus from Syria within a month.

President Hopes For Early Action On DP's Admission

New York, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—President Truman said today in a letter to the United Service for New Americans that he hoped "early action" by Congress would authorize the admission of "our country's fair share" of displaced persons.

"Ever since the end of the war it has been my desire that our country afford sanctuary to a substantial number of men, women and children who lostttheir homes and all they held dear during years of persecution in the Old World," Truman said.

"Happily, it is now possible to hope for early action by the Congress to authorize the admission of our country's fair share of the homeless," he added.

Truman's letter was read at the annual meeting of the organization.

Representative William G. Stratton (D., Ill.), the main speaker at the meeting, said he was confident Congress soon would pass his bill to admit 400,000 displaced perons.

U. S. May Supply Aid Abroad With Potato Holdings

By The Associated Press

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) urged yesterday that all Government holdings of Irish and sweet potatoes be shipped abroad as part of this country's foreign aid program.

Jesse B. Gilmer, president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, said studies are already under way and that everything possible will be done to carry out the suggested plan, Robertson reported.

Gilmer was quoted by the Senator as saying he thinks "there is a real possibility of doing it."

Robertson said he was informed that the plan is complicated by one of the provisions of the $540,000,000 stop-gap winter aid bill passed at the special session of Congress.

Hirohito Urges Loyalty To U. S. by Japs Here

Tokyo, Jan. 11 (AP).—Emperor Hirohito has told a Chicago trade employe that all Japanese living in the United States, whether first or second generation, "should be loyal to that country."

Teruo Mukaiyama, former chairman of the Chicago Committee for Japanese Civilian Relief, had a 50-minute interview yesterday with the Emperor, Mukaiyama said today he told the Emperor that Americans generally were sympathetic toward Japan and expressed belief that one reason was the war records of second generation Japanese-Americans.

Colleges Urged to Back Bans on Racial Bars

New York, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, today urged the American Assiciation of Colleges to support passage of State laws to end racial and religious barriers to higher education.

The association, which begins its annual meeting in Cincinnati today, has before it the report of a special committee opposing any legislative efforts to ban bias in education. Dr. Wise is a member of President Truman's Commission on Higher Education.

Fire Damages Prison

Lincoln, Nebr., Jan. 11 (AP).—Guards mounted walls with machine guns and planes flew overhead to avert a possible break during a fire today at the Nebraska State Prison. No difficulty was experienced with prisoners, most of whom were either in their cells or at church services when the blaze was discovered in a building which was unoccupied.

The fire destroyed part of the building formerly used as a shoe factory and overall shop.

Batavia, Java, Jan. 11 (AP).—Officials of the Indonesian republic met today in Jogjakarta to decide whether they would accept the proposals of the United Nations Good Offices Committee, with Dutch amendments, to make effective the U. N. cease-fire order in the Dutch-Indonesian conflict.

Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin confirmed having said at an interview in Singapore he considered war in Indonesia "probable," possibly in February. The Dutch said that unless a definite answer to the proposals, details of which have not been disclosed, is received from the republic by noon Tuesday, they will consider the offer rejected.

Mihai Rejects American Bids For Memoirs

Lausanne, Switzerland, Jan. 11 (AP).—Former King Mihai of Romania—despite his financial problems—has rejected American bids "up to $200,000" for his memoirs, his secretary, Mircea Jonnitiu, said tonight.

Several American magazine and news agency representatives staying in the former King's hotel are understood to have been trying to outbid each other for the 26-year-old Mihai's yet unwritten memoirs.

His uncle, Prince Nicholas, said it would be a mistake if Mihai and Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma were married immediately as that would enable the Romanian government to represent him as having abdicated merely to get married.

Mihai's future income is his "gravest problem," the prince declared.

Princess Anne Remains in Seclusion

Luxembourg, Jan. 11 (AP).—Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, whose romance with former King Mihai of Romania has apparently been interrupted by political considerations, remained in seclusion today with her mother, Princess Margrethe of Denmark, in the grand ducal palace. She and her mother are guests of Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg and her consort, Prince Felix. Felix is one of the Bourbon-Parmas and a cousin of Anne.

Last Royal Party To Leave Romania

Bucharest, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—The last members of former King Mihai's family still in Romania were scheduled to leave Bucharest by train tonight for Switzerland, well-informed sources said.

About 20 persons will be in the royal party, spokesmen said.

Soviet Foreign Policy Risks War, British Leader Asserts

Leicester, England, Jan. 11 (AP).—Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison declared tonight that Soviet foreign policy and "reckless propaganda" risk another war and impede world economic recovery.

His criticism was the second recent pronouncement by high British officials indicating a hardening of the Labor government's attitude toward the Soviet Union. Eight days ago Prime Minister Attlee denounced Russian communism as a "new form of imperialism" threatening the rest of Europe.

Morrison told a Labor meeting: "We cannot be expected to be happy when country after country in eastern and southeastern Europe find themselves subject to undemocratic and unrepresentative Communist governments, coupled with the suppression of other political parties and freedom of the press, wholesale witch hunting, and even the very unjudicial execution of non-Communist political leaders.

"Nobody is seeking to upset the internal security of the Soviet Union."

He said Britain wants to cooperate with the Soviet Union, "but we cannot be expected at all times to lie down to the untruthful and malicious attacks which are made upon our country and our government by the reckless propaganda machines of the Russian Communists, and of the Communist parties of the world, which conduct themselves as the servile automatic outposts of the Soviet foreign office."

Morrison said he had never admitted, "and I admit it less and less, that the Communists are on the left. They are on the right."

He also attacked the Soviet Union for opposing the European recovery program and said he could not understand Russian motives "unless it be the old and evil doctrine that the more misery there is in the world, the better it is for revolutionary Communist success, the doctrine of triumph through chaos."

Lane Plans Meetings To Get Fuel Oil Data

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 11 (AP).—Governor Lane will hold a series of meetings within the next few days to obtain details of Maryland's fuel oil shortage before the fuel conference with Federal authorities in Washington Thursday.

Maryland was not included in the 22 States invited to attend the Washington conference because it has not appointed a fuel coordinator.

The Governor said, however, the Free State definitely will be represented.

Representative Sasscer said a delegate from Morningside in Prince Georges County will ask the Governor today to appoint a coordinator. Residents of Morningside, he added, have only sufficient oil to last a matter of a few hours.

Many other communities in Montgomery and Prince Georges County are reported to be in the same predicament.

Visa Data Sought On Alleged Nazi

Representative McDowell Wants to Question U. S. Consular Official in Madrid

By the United Press

Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.) said yesterday the United States consular official who issued a visa to Ferenc Vajta, alleged former Nazi official of Hungary, will be summoned from Madrid to explain his action.

Meantime, said McDowell, Vajta has been subpenaed to testify before the House Un-American Activities Subcommittee on Fascism at 2 p. m. Wednesday. McDowell is chairman of the subcommittee.

Vajta, described by McDowell as a Hungarian Nazi and "an honest-to-goodness Fascist," was arrested by Justice Department officials last Friday and held at Ellis Island, N. Y. He is charged with falsifying his application for entry.

McDowell said he had learned where Vajta got his six-month visitor's visa after a three-day private investigation. But he still does not know, he said, which of several officials at the Madrid consulate actually granted the visa.

But once he learns this, he said, the official will be called to testify. He said all consulates are under instructions to check with Washington before issuing visas to persons accused of moral urpitude or of Nazi or Communist background.

"Vajta's Nazi record was well known to officials of this Government," McDowell said. "Yet the State Department tells me the consulate did not request any ruling in this case. We want to know why."

Vajta's testimony will be taken in closed session, the subcommittee chairman reported. Subsequent hearings in the case may be open.

"Vajta has told several Hungarians in this country that he has 'a very high connection' in the United States Government," McDowell said. "In one case he named a name. I am going to find out whether he really has such a connection."

AND PILOT WALKED AWAY—End of a sightseeing flight at Antioch, Ill., Saturday looked like this. Pilot of a light plane which crashed through a summer cottage roof was Kenneth C. Thomas of Elgin, Ill. Police charged Thomas with reckless flying, intoxication and carrying a passenger without a license. Thomas and his passenger suffered only slight bruises

Safeguards Urged in Federal Loyalty Checks

By the United Press

Thirty-five well-known authors, editors, clergymen and other public figures yesterday called on the new Federal Employes Loyalty Review Board to use the "utmost care" to prevent injustices to individuals in the Government's current loyalty check.

In a letter to Board Chairman Seth W. Richardson, released by the American Civil Liberties Union, the group said it did not question "the Government's right to require loyal support of the principles of our Constitution by all employes."

But the signers said the loyalty check order, issued by President Truman last year to weed out any Communists or other "subversives" on the Government payroll, lacked "adequate safeguards" to guarantee the rights of accused workers.

Present machinery for the loyalty checkup contains the "danger of injustices," the group said, because there is no provision for giving an accused employe the right to know all of the charges and evidence against him, or to cross-examine the witnesses who have called him "subversive."

The signers indorsed the recent recommendation of President Truman's Committee on Civil Rights, which said Federal workers charged with disloyalty should have protective rights similar to those given defendants in regular courts.

The letter urged the Loyalty Review Board to use its "persuasive influence in establishing fair standards and practices throughout the entire Federal service," including the four departments which were exempted from the normal loyalty checking machinery by order of Congress.

The Army, Navy, and State Departments, and the Atomic Energy Commission, have the right to fire any employe "summarily" if there is reason to suspect disloyalty.

"We recognize that extra precautions may reasonably be taken in these departments," the signers said. But they urged that safeguards be provided to workers in those agencies, too, including the right to appeal to the Loyalty Review Board.

The letter also criticized President Truman's loyalty check order for its use of "such ill-defined words as 'subversive,' 'totalitarian,' and 'sympathetic association.'" It said provision should be made to grant hearings to the nearly 100 organizations which have been listed by Attorney General Tom C. Clark as "subversive" groups

Signers of the letter included authors John P. Marquand, H. L. Mencken, Bernard DeVoto, Pearl S. Buck, Lewis Gannett, Rex Stout, Carl Van Doren, Pierre Van Paassen, Will Durant, William Rose Benet, Henry Seidel Canby, Norman Cousins, Frederick Lewis Allen and Raymond Swing.

Religious leaders included Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Dr. Reinhold Neibuhr, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Allan Knight Chalmers and Clarence Pickett.

Movie Actor Melvin Douglas, Artist Thomas Hart Benton, President Mordecai Johnson of Howard University, President Peter H. Odegard of Reed College, Representative Adam Clayton Powell (D., N. Y.), former Representative Jerry Voorhis (D., Calif.) and President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen were other signers.

China to Offer Two Plans for Money Reform

Nanking, Jan. 11 (AP).—A competent Chinese government source confirmed today that Pei Tsu-yee, heading a new mission to the United States on aid to China, would discuss two separate currency reform plans with Washington authorities.

This source said one plan called for a new currency based on gold, while the other provided a silver standard, with silver coins to circulate and currency to be redeemable in silver.

Either plan would require a minimum of 300 million dollars, United States dollars "advanced to China at a propitious moment," the source said.

Pei leaves Shanghai for Washington Wednesday.

Members of the National Economic Council denied currency reform would come this spring. They said the Chinese government could do nothing until sure of substantial American aid, which was "unpredictable as yet."

70 Isolated Lutheran Missionaries to Leave

Shanghai, Jan. 11 (AP).—Lutheran Mission headquarters announced today it planned to evacuate 20 American and 50 Norwegian missionaries from Laohokow, 300 miles northwest of Hankow, which has been isolated by a Communist military drive for two weeks.

Dr. Daniel Nelson said a mission plane would fly it would be able and it was hoped it would be able to go on to Laohokow, where the United States 14th Air Force built a landing field during the war with Japan.

Confirmation was received of the deaths of three Evangelical Covenant missionaries at the hands of "bandits" in that area four days ago. There have been a series of bloody battles in that vicinity.

100 Reported Slain In Karachi Clash

Violence Appears at End in Pakistan's Capital With Army, Police in Control

By Vincent Sheean

Karachi, Jan. 7 (Delayed).—The first outbreak of communal violence in this capital of the Dominion of Pakistan seemed to be ended tonight, with the army and police in complete control.

Until yesterday afternoon Karachi and its leaders had been particularly proud of their unblemished record in keeping order. The trouble started when 184 Sikhs arrived by a morning train and entered a temple in the city for safety.

A crowd of excited Moslems, egged on by refugees from Sikh atrocities, attacked the temple, setting fire to it and killing a number of Sikhs. General disorder between Moslems and Hindus broke out in the afternoon and lasted four hours before it was brought under control.

Dead Set at More Than 100

Riot reports set the number of dead at more than 100, with possibly 200 injured.

A curfew, accompanied by military authority equivalent to martial law, went into effect immediately.

Hindu institutions such as schools, high schools and orphanages were filled today with families who had taken refuge. The same was true of at least one Moslem institution. The narrow streets in the older part of Karachi were completely the property of cows, some decorated with paint or beads by pious Hindus.

I saw only one or two other cars in the whole city, a fact which gave an uncanny effect of silence in the bright afternoon sunlight.

Police and soldiers have orders to shoot on sight and have done so. Hospitals admitted a considerable number of cases of bullet wounds this afternoon, indicating that perhaps the trouble was not all over.

Hospitals are inadequately supplied with everything, even water and disinfectants.

All professional nurses are Hindus of the untouchable castes who embraced Christianity to escape from their social fate under Hinduism, yet they retain Hindu prejudices against Moslems. Moslem patients are afraid of the nurses, although there is little they can do for good or ill.

The sweepers in the hospitals are Hindu untouchables who have been afraid to come to work. In addition to all this, many families have taken refuge in the hospitals in fear of further disorder, adding to the congestion.

Karachi was half Hindu and half Moslem at the time of the partition, with a slight Hindu majority. Since then about 100,000 Hindus have moved out, mostly to Bombay, and a considerable number of Moslem refugees from the Dominion of India have moved in. The present balance of population is difficult to estimate, but there must be still about 100,000 Hindus here, to perhaps 200,000 or more Moslems.

All these people, Moslems as well as Hindus, are in terror tonight, but I believe the outbreak is really under control.

Iran Moslems Protest India, Holy Land Acts

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Some 3000 Moslem men gathered at Tehran's largest mosque today to "express their disgust at the ill treatment of their Moslem brethren in India and Palestine."

No women were allowed at the meeting, and the Moslem men used it as an occasion to demand that all women in Iran start wearing their veils again. Police, expecting a riot, surrounded the mosque, but there was no violence.

Military Supply Trove Discovered in Calcutta

Calcutta, India, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Police today guarded a mysterious trove of military equipment, reported to be United States Army supplies, which was discovered yesterday in a north Calcutta warehouse.

Detectives seized the supplies, said to be of "huge" quantity, from a private Hindu trader. It is not known whether arms or ammunition were involved.

League for Ike Plans 48 State Groups by Feb. 1

New York, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—The National Draft Eisenhower League announced today that it would have organizations to campaign for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for Republican Presidential nominee in operation in every State in the Naton by February 1.

Stuart Scheftel, chairman of the league, said, however, that his organization "has not, will not and should not have contact with Dwight D. Eisenhower while he is still on active duty."

1947 Incomes Set New High for 11 Months

By The Associated Press

Personal income of Americans rose in November to an annual rate of $204,900,000,000, as compared with $204,400,000,000 in October, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

That lifted the average level for the first 11 months of 1947 to a record annual rate of $196,400,000,000, 20 per cent above the same period of 1946.

The increase was attributed to higher wage and salary receipts. The department said there were declines in farm income, terminal leave bond cashings and unemployment insurance payments.

Wage and salary payments were reported at an annual rate of $127,500,000,000 in November, against $125,200,000,000 in October.

The personal income total also includes dividend and interest receipts, net incomes of business owners and net rent receipts by landlords.

Wage and salary increases were helped by less-than-seasonal declines in farm, construction and nondurable goods factory employment, plus "continued expansion of trade and durable good factory employment," the department said.

But it added that income of owners of nonfarming businesses also rose, "reflecting increased retail trade volume, manufacturers' shipments and the high level of construction activity."

Farm income in November was down from the previous month, but the department observed:

"Farm income in November was higher than during most months of this year, and for the first 11 months exceeded the comparable 1946 period by 20 per cent."

Visa Data Sought On Alleged Nazi

Representative McDowell Wants to Question U. S. Consular Official in Madrid

By the United Press

Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.) said yesterday the United States consular official who issued a visa to Ferenc Vajta, alleged former Nazi official of Hungary, will be summoned from Madrid to explain his action.

Meantime, said McDowell, Vajta has been subpenaed to testify before the House Un-American Activities Subcommittee on Fascism at 2 p. m. Wednesday. McDowell is chairman of the subcommittee.

Vajta, described by McDowell as a Hungarian Nazi and "an honest-to-goodness Fascist," was arrested by Justice Department officials last Friday and held at Ellis Island, N. Y. He is charged with falsifying his application for entry.

McDowell said he had learned where Vajta got his six-month visitor's visa after a three-day private investigation. But he still does not know, he said, which of several officials at the Madrid consulate actually granted the visa.

But once he learns this, he said, the official will be called to testify. He said all consulates are under instructions to check with Washington before issuing visas to persons accused of moral urpitude or of Nazi or Communist background.

"Vajta's Nazi record was well known to officials of this Government," McDowell said. "Yet the State Department tells me the consulate did not request any ruling in this case. We want to know why."

Vajta's testimony will be taken in closed session, the subcommittee chairman reported. Subsequent hearings in the case may be open.

"Vajta has told several Hungarians in this country that he has 'a very high connection' in the United States Government," McDowell said. "In one case he named a name. I am going to find out whether he really has such a connection."

100 Reported Slain In Karachi Clash

Violence Appears at End in Pakistan's Capital With Army, Police in Control

By Vincent Sheean

Karachi, Jan. 7 (Delayed).—The first outbreak of communal violence in this capital of the Dominion of Pakistan seemed to be ended tonight, with the army and police in complete control.

Until yesterday afternoon Karachi and its leaders had been particularly proud of their unblemished record in keeping order. The trouble started when 184 Sikhs arrived by a morning train and entered a temple in the city for safety.

A crowd of excited Moslems, egged on by refugees from Sikh atrocities, attacked the temple, setting fire to it and killing a number of Sikhs. General disorder between Moslems and Hindus broke out in the afternoon and lasted four hours before it was brought under control.

Dead Set at More Than 100

Riot reports set the number of dead at more than 100, with possibly 200 injured.

A curfew, accompanied by military authority equivalent to martial law, went into effect immediately.

Hindu institutions such as schools, high schools and orphanages were filled today with families who had taken refuge. The same was true of at least one Moslem institution. The narrow streets in the older part of Karachi were completely the property of cows, some decorated with paint or beads by pious Hindus.

I saw only one or two other cars in the whole city, a fact which gave an uncanny effect of silence in the bright afternoon sunlight.

Police and soldiers have orders to shoot on sight and have done so. Hospitals admitted a considerable number of cases of bullet wounds this afternoon, indicating that perhaps the trouble was not all over.

Hospitals are inadequately supplied with everything, even water and disinfectants.

All professional nurses are Hindus of the untouchable castes who embraced Christianity to escape from their social fate under Hinduism, yet they retain Hindu prejudices against Moslems. Moslem patients are afraid of the nurses, although there is little they can do for good or ill.

The sweepers in the hospitals are Hindu untouchables who have been afraid to come to work. In addition to all this, many families have taken refuge in the hospitals in fear of further disorder, adding to the congestion.

Karachi was half Hindu and half Moslem at the time of the partition, with a slight Hindu majority. Since then about 100,000 Hindus have moved out, mostly to Bombay, and a considerable number of Moslem refugees from the Dominion of India have moved in. The present balance of population is difficult to estimate, but there must be still about 100,000 Hindus here, to perhaps 200,000 or more Moslems.

All these people, Moslems as well as Hindus, are in terror tonight, but I believe the outbreak is really under control.

Iran Moslems Protest India, Holy Land Acts

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Some 3000 Moslem men gathered at Tehran's largest mosque today to "express their disgust at the ill treatment of their Moslem brethren in India and Palestine."

No women were allowed at the meeting, and the Moslem men used it as an occasion to demand that all women in Iran start wearing their veils again. Police, expecting a riot, surrounded the mosque, but there was no violence.

Military Supply Trove Discovered in Calcutta

Calcutta, India, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Police today guarded a mysterious trove of military equipment, reported to be United States Army supplies, which was discovered yesterday in a north Calcutta warehouse.

Detectives seized the supplies, said to be of "huge" quantity, from a private Hindu trader. It is not known whether arms or ammunition were involved.

League for Ike Plans 48 State Groups by Feb. 1

New York, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—The National Draft Eisenhower League announced today that it would have organizations to campaign for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for Republican Presidential nominee in operation in every State in the Naton by February 1.

Stuart Scheftel, chairman of the league, said, however, that his organization "has not, will not and should not have contact with Dwight D. Eisenhower while he is still on active duty."

1947 Incomes Set New High for 11 Months

By The Associated Press

Personal income of Americans rose in November to an annual rate of $204,900,000,000, as compared with $204,400,000,000 in October, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

That lifted the average level for the first 11 months of 1947 to a record annual rate of $196,400,000,000, 20 per cent above the same period of 1946.

The increase was attributed to higher wage and salary receipts. The department said there were declines in farm income, terminal leave bond cashings and unemployment insurance payments.

Wage and salary payments were reported at an annual rate of $127,500,000,000 in November, against $125,200,000,000 in October.

The personal income total also includes dividend and interest receipts, net incomes of business owners and net rent receipts by landlords.

Wage and salary increases were helped by less-than-seasonal declines in farm, construction and nondurable goods factory employment, plus "continued expansion of trade and durable good factory employment," the department said.

But it added that income of owners of nonfarming businesses also rose, "reflecting increased retail trade volume, manufacturers' shipments and the high level of construction activity."

Farm income in November was down from the previous month, but the department observed:

"Farm income in November was higher than during most months of this year, and for the first 11 months exceeded the comparable 1946 period by 20 per cent."

Telling The World

One of the most hopeful auguries of the new session of Congress is the manner in which action has been expedited to put the foreign information program on a sound basis for the future. Last week the Senate Republican Policy Committee gave the green light to the Senate version of the Mundt bill as one of three pieces of "must" legislation for January. Later, at the instigation of Senator Smith, the Foreign Relations Committee reported the bill out with only a minor change over what already had been passed by the House last session. There is every indication that with the support of newly won converts in the Senate the bill shortly will become law.

In addition to providing the basis for expansion of "Voice of America" broadcasts, libraries and other facets of the information program, the Mundt bill also goes into another significant aspect of our cultural relations—the interchange of students, teachers and technical materials and the assignment of specialists to other countries on request. These activities must be considered a complement to the program of advertising America. In a concession to educators, the Senate Committee included an amendment establishing two separate advisory committees of private citizens, one for informational and the other for educational activities. Providing that the separation is not carried to the point of handicapping operations at field levels, the establishment of these committees should make for more public understanding and support.

The crucial importance of an immediate effort to broaden the various parts of the information program is illustrated by the noticeable increase in Russian propaganda since the advent of interim aid and the Marshall Plan. This propaganda has become more and more vicious. If the world is to have a fair and accurate picture of what we are doing, if our motives are not to be misconstrued and turned against us in the minds of the very people we are trying to help, then we shall have to use every means at our command for propagating the truth. Passage of the Mundt bill itself, of course, does not assure the funds necessary to do the job. But it is the first step in what many members of Congress have rightly come to regard as an inescapable choice. The second equally essential step will be to vote the money for an adequate program, both in a deficiency appropriation and in next year's budget.

Mr. Truman's Taste

Whenever we persuade ourselves that Mr. Truman's ability to profit by his mistakes is elevating him to the plane of statesmanship required of a President in these times, he produces another of those gaucheries, which make it appear that we are wrong. Just about two years ago Mr. Truman stirred up an unpleasant tempest by his scheme for building a grandiose extension to the west wing of the White House, which, as we said at the time, would have given that edifice an appearance "about midway between a large and pretentious railroad depot and the clubhouse of a very expensive Long Island golf club." The general indignation aroused by this project forced Mr. Truman to abandon it, but not before it had wrought much harm to his personal prestige.

Now Mr. Truman has a plan to alter the famous south portico by building himself a balcony to be screened by a 3-foot iron railing from the prying eyes of such pedestrians on South Executive ave. as may be gifted with an exceptional farsightedness. The President's pretext is that he wants some place where he can catch himself an occasional breath of fresh air in decent privacy. Just how much the proposed balcony would mar the beauty of the portico is something we are unable to judge from the architects' drawing prepared by Mr. William A. Delano. We do know, however, that the whole proposal was disapproved by the Commission of Fine Arts, which was created to scrutinize all such projects, but given no authority to do more than express its opinion.

The main point, however, is that Mr. Truman, knowing this project would meet no favor in Washington than the other, attempted to keep the whole thing secret. This seems a very strange parade indeed. If such an alteration could be concealed from the attention of passers-by on South Executive ave., then it is very difficult to understand Mr. Truman's need of more privacy. After all, between the portico and the pavement on South Executive ave. there are some hundreds of yards of lawn and the pavement itself is flanked by a large iron railing.

Thus we feel warranted in saying that the President's pretext for meddling with a structure that does not belong to him and which is precious in its present aspect to millions of Americans for either sentimental or esthetic reasons, seems to us altogether specious. It was on the south portico, if you remember, that the late President Wilson made his proposal of marriage to Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt; and although the circumstances were afterward recounted in some detail in Mrs. Wilson's memoirs, there was no suggestion that either of them was aware of a lack of privacy on that intimate occasion.

But even if Mr. Truman's reason were plausible, and even if it could be demonstrated that Mr. Delano's alterations would improve the appearance of the portico, the project would still be characterized by a discouraging absence of discretion and taste. Mr. Truman's present lease on the White House will expire a year hence; and, allowing for time required to construct his balcony, he can hardly hope to enjoy his new privacy more than a few months—unless, of course, the American people decide to renew his lease for another four years. Mr. Truman apparently has no misgivings on that score. He is already enough at home in the White House to behave as if it belonged to him permanently, which, of course, it does not.

Municipal Court

As Attorney General Clark studies the qualifications of lawyers recommended to fill the vacancy on the Municipal Court, he comes face to face with the fact that this court is in a desperate situation. Its able and willing judges are grossly overworked. At the same time the hearing of some cases, notably civil suits involving jury trials, is so long delayed as to constitute an impairment of justice. The result is especially unfortunate, for the Municipal Court is closer to the people than any other tribunal. If justice fails or is tardily meted out there, confidence in our entire judicial system—indeed, in our system of government—is certain to be undermined.

The Attorney General candidly recognized this situation more than a year ago when he recommended the appointment of three additional judges to the Municipal Court. A bill for this purpose passed the Senate, but failed in the House. It is our understanding that the recommendation has not been renewed by the Department of Justice because of the severe criticism that was directed at the Municipal Court. Apparently the department has felt that the internal situation in the court ought to be improved before it could make a strong case for additional judgeships.

There is a good deal to be said for this point of view. Despite the efforts of its hard-working and judicial-minded members, the Municipal Court is the District's weakest judicial body. It has suffered much from the Raedy incident and from the inexperience and lax conduct of some of the other judges. Probably 10 highly competent judges sitting all the time could keep abreast of the work without serious pressure. But among the 10 judges now on the bench are quite a few, who, because of inexperience, ill-health or lack of application or aptitude, do not do their full share. For a number of days last summer, for example, only five judges were on hand to preside over 10 branches of the local court.

Most of the court's trouble stems, in our opinion, from the appointment of poorly qualified judges. Among informed members of the bar, the press and the public generally it is well known that some of the appointments to this court have been made for political or personal reasons that have little relation to the pressing civic problem of administering justice promptly and expertly. The court cannot continue to be thus used as a training ground for judges, without gravely impairing justice at a point where it most needs to be strengthened. A policy of not recommending new judges because some of those now on the bench are not doing their full share of the work, accompanied by the nomination of still other inexperienced members of the bar for judgeships, would compound the difficulties that are now giving the Attorney General concern.

Especially for this reason it is incumbent upon the Attorney General to give great weight to the recommendations of the District Bar Association's Committee on Judicial Selection. That committee has named three able men: J. Edward Bindeman, Frank Myers and Milton D. Korman. The Attorney General cannot go wrong in recommending the appointment of any one of these men. Of course, nothing requires him to follow the advice of the bar, but if he should go outside of this list the public will certainly expect him to be prepared to defend his choice on grounds of experience, judicial temperament and conscientious public service. Any inferior appointment in the present circumstances would put the Department of Justice and the President in the position of contributing to the shortcomings of a people's court that is already in serious difficulty. It is a momentous choice for the District that confronts the Attorney General.

Now For The Schools

Judge J. Garland Jefferson gave short shrift to the contention of obstructionist elements that the election of a new school board in Arlington was unconstitutional. The decision of the Arlington County Circuit Court appears to end for the moment the chaos that would have resulted from two school boards signing checks, hiring teachers and attempting to decide policy at cross purposes. This is encouraging from the standpoint of those whose concern is to do something about the inadequate facilities in Arlington schools that led to popular protest last year.

As we remarked in an earlier editorial, it is difficult to understand the motives of the members of the outgoing appointive school board on whose behalf the challenge was presented. Perhaps the explanation lies in the implications of popular election of the school board in Arlington on political sinecures elsewhere in Virginia. In any event, Judge Garland's decision seems to be strong and well grounded. Now that the issue has been raised, it probably would be a good idea to test the decision before the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals to remove any doubt as to the validity of the elected board which the people of Arlington have demonstrated clearly that they want. In view of the conciliatory attitude now taken by the member of the old board who filed the suit, this should be possible without disrupting the work of the new board. Certainly there is enough for the new board to do to warrant its full attention to school matters without the necessity of fending off hecklers and artificial annoyances.

Turning On The Light

No. 1

In a free country there is no greater power than that of turning on the light. Our people move forward or backward on waves of public opinion, and that opinion is enormously influenced by the flow of information to the people. So vital is the informing function to the successful operation of a representative political system that Woodrow Wilson gave it greater weight in the scales of democracy than the function of making law. Today, with all our means of rapid communication, this power of turning on the light has become even more important.

The Washington Post believes that this great power must be safeguarded at all costs. One essential safeguard, of course, is untrammeled freedom of the press and radio. Others are freedom of speech and of assembly for all individuals regardless of their interests, creeds or affiliations. In the series of editorials initiated herewith, however, we shall concern ourselves solely with one single instrument for turning on the light—the congressional investigation.

Congress has been probing into public affairs ever since its first meeting in 1789. Occasionally it has acted under its power to impeach officials in the executive and judicial branches of the Government. More frequently it has sought information bearing on the qualifications of its own members to sit in the Senate or the House as representatives of the people. And it has repeatedly sought information for the purpose of guiding legislative thinking and of influencing public opinion. In this day of 35-billion-dollar Government the investigative function has become the chief means by which Congress can hope to keep itself informed as to what the many hands, arms and tentacles of the executive branch are doing.

It follows that the manner in which the investigative function is exercised is of great concern to the rank and file of citizens. That concern is intensified for the numerous citizens who, in the course of a year, are summoned before congressional committees to testify. At many points this unique power of turning on the light impinges upon the interests and rights of individuals. Some astute observers have referred to congressional investigating committees as the greatest seats of judgment in the land. One has only to reflect upon what public opinion recently did to Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers after his exposure by the Senate War Investigating Committee to see the logic of that view.

In this period when the need for fearless, impartial and well-balanced inquiries is greater than ever before, however, the power of turning on the light is being gravely abused. We do not believe that any objective observer will deny that the antics of the Brewster Committee and the persecution tactics of the Committee on Un-American Activities have brought the investigative function of Congress into disrepute. Can that damage be repaired? Cannot the investigative function be retained as a power for the effectuation of good government without permitting it to be used as an instrument of oppression? With the counsel of numerous experts and other thoughtful students of government, The Washington Post hopes to give, in subsequent editorials, specific answers to these questions.

Retailers' Fears

To judge from dollar sales figures, retailers should be happy men, for merchants in all parts of the country reported large increases in Christmas sales compared with a year ago. Post-Christmas business has been good, too, with department stores sales for the week ended January 3 9 per cent higher than at the same time last year. Nevertheless, the retailers are worried, although they are taking in more money, because the rise in prices has outstripped the increases in dollar volume of sales. In other words, the physical volume of goods sold is less than it was a year ago.

High-priced luxury goods in particular have not been moving as rapidly as had been expected, owing to consumer resistance. Furthermore, profits from sales have fallen off, chiefly because of rising operating costs. As a result, retail traders are inclined to pursue a cautious selective buying policy that will keep inventories in line with current sales. From present indications there is no immediate prospect of a sudden sharp slump in consumer buying but a decline in the physical volume of sales at a time when dollar sales are rising is a warning of danger ahead that it would be foolish to disregard.

Truman Tax Plan

In his message to Congress, President Truman on the one hand recommended reducing the direct (visible) taxes of millions of voters while on the other hand he advocated increasing the indirect (invisible) taxes of the very same voters by suggesting that corporate taxes be increased. He evidently believes that all voters are too dumb to realize that corporate taxes inevitably wind up in the cost of things they buy.

There is only one way to reduce our taxes and that is to reduce Government spending. Any other method is false.

O. PITSCHMAN.

Now that Truman has returned to the "New Deal," we shall hear for the next 11 months the anguished Republican cry of "politics." To quote from your coverage of the President's State of the Union message to Congress: "Noting the President spread relief where the votes lie, they (the Republicans) angrily charged "politics."

Of course Truman's move was "politics." When the Eightieth Congress, in its first and second sessions, has been clamoring for tax relief, what is more fair, more typical of representative democratic government than spreading such relief "where the votes lie?"

Trisecting Angles

Before this discussion about trisecting angles gets out of hand it might be useful if your readers learned what all this is about.

The problem is to divide any given angle in three equal parts. Methods of doing that for practical purposes exist literally by the dozen and they can be made to operate with a high degree of accuracy. The accuracy required may be one degree of arc, or one minute of arc, or, if absolutely necessary, even a few seconds of arc. But mathematicians would want a method where the accuracy is absolute and that cannot be done. When I wrote that "mathematicians would want" such a method I meant to imply that they don't because from their point of view the problem has been solved too. Karl Friedrich Gauss has shown over 100 years ago that such a mathematically correct method cannot and therefore does not exist.

Hence the problem is not "unsolved"; the mathematicians have an unassailable proof that it cannot be done, while the practical designers (like architects and engineers) have several methods which are close approximations.

Bond Beneficiaries

A source of much personal indignation and embitterment is the Treasury's savings bonds regulation that requires the duly certified consent of the designated beneficiary registered on a bond, before the owner can eliminate such beneficiary, or substitute another person as beneficiary, or name another person as coowner.

The implications of this regulation are seen to be tremendous when it is realized that many individuals hold scores of low denomination bonds, acquired both through regular channels such as banks and pay-withholding plans, and such irregular channels as theater lobby and street corner sales; and that each different form of bond registration requires separate certification of consent by the designated beneficiary, before the bond may be reissued under a different registration.

Numbered among those who most likely will have felt the hurt of this beneficiary release regulation are the bond purchasers whose family status may be expected to change in a 10-year period. A typical case would be that of an unmarried patron who later marries—only to be faced with the proposition of having already assigned the inheritance benefits of his bonds to other than those whom he has acquired new responsibilities to support.

To the more or less to-be-expected personal certification requirements for effecting a change in designated beneficiary, the bondholder may additionally expect to encounter, because of the Treasury's unique beneficiary regulation, such problems as those involved with persuading a renounced beneficiary to grant a release; tracing a previously designated beneficiary whose address is no longer known; and satisfying Treasury requirements for certification in the event of death (or reputed death) of a previously designated beneficiary.

Fairlington Strike

Having just returned to my Fairlington home from the hospital, I believe you will understand my consternation at the scene described below which took place the following morning.

We were awakened by a cacophony of yells and shouting, and upon looking out of our front window saw first a line of peaceful and unarmed pickets marching up and down the sidewalk. Beside them in the street were parked three police cars. Crossing the lawn was a group of approximately 30 men all carrying something that might easily be used as a weapon—ax handles, brooms, sticks, etc. From the rear window we saw gathered around the cellar entrance, which is right next to our back door, a group of about eight men all dressed in white coats, carrying sticks tipped with weights or nails.

We asked them what was going on and were told that they were the "guards" for the "new maintenance workers." Their sticks were to be used in case of trouble, although for purposes of appearance they were supposed to be used also for picking up papers.

It is by now common knowledge that maintenance is not being carried on in Fairlington according to minimum standards of health and decency. Our hot water supply has been short and sporadic, heat is supplied in spurts and then the apartments become cold again, our basements are full of uncollected garbage and vermin, our grounds are constantly messy and unkempt. All these things we have endured so far—but this business of armed thugs patrolling our lawns and standing guard beside our back doors is the last straw.

"Rights On The Skid"

"Rights on the Skid," your editorial of January 3, seems to me to lack the perspective that you have led us to expect of the views of The Washington Post. I say this, to be sure, as an out-of-District (or should I say "out of State"?) reader—but not, I think, as one who lacks affection for the District or interest in its special problems. It never occurred to me, however, that inability to invoke the jurisdiction conferred upon United States District Courts in controversies between citizens of different States was a significant disability of District residents before Congress undertook in 1940 to treat them for this purpose as citizens of a State.

You may be right in agreeing (as I usually do) with Judge Parker's dissenting opinion. Congress may well have the power under the Constitution to vest jurisdiction in the District Courts of controversies between District residents and State citizens or aliens. You may also be right that the justification of Federal jurisdiction in such cases is no weaker in point of policy than it is in controversies between citizens of different States. But, all of this leaves untouched what I conceive to be the major issue—whether the diversity jurisdiction should not be abolished altogether—remitting District residents and State citizens alike to litigation in the courts of a State when they have occasion to invoke its laws.

The attack on diversity jurisdiction—so ably pressed in the pre-New Deal days by Senator Norris and others—rests ultimately on the view that the energies of Federal courts should be devoted to the vindication of the substantive rights conferred by the Constitution, by treaty or by Act of Congress. That is job enough in this era of Federal legislative activity. The vindication of State created rights seems to me a matter that may well be left to the State courts, which alone have the authority to determine with finality their nature and their scope.

I should not deny that there may be room for exceptions to this principle in interstate cases where State process cannot do full justice or, as Senator McKellar has proposed, in cases where local prejudices can actually be shown (S. 466, 79th Congress). I do deny that there is in the United States today a case for a general diversity jurisdiction of the sort that now obtains. At a time when we are seeking Federal functions that can properly be returned to the States, this seems to me one that ought not to be overlooked.

A final point. You speak of District "residents" and paint a picture of some human being living in the District as his home. Was that the situation in the case before the court at Richmond? Or was the "District resident" a corporation, its "citizenship" determined only by incorporation under the laws of the District of Columbia—but its stock held anywhere throughout the land?

Certainly most of the "diversity of citizenship" cases in the Federal courts involve diversity only in the sense that one of the parties was incorporated in a State different from the residence or place of incorporation of the other part. And this in turn creates a controversy between "citizens of different States" within the meaning of the Constitution and the statute only because the Supreme Court more than a century ago held that there was for this purpose a "conclusive presumption" that all the stockholders of a corporation are citizens of the State of incorporation.

Is The Washington Post really for all of this and insistent that District "residents" have their share of it? The question is important when a revision of the judicial code is pending in the Congress (H. R. 3214). You may find yourselves urging that the discrimination be removed by abolishing diversity jurisdiction rather than by its extension.

The Verb 'To Be'

EXISTENTIALISM: DISINTEGRATION OF MAN'S SOUL, by Guido de Ruggiero; introduction by Rayner Heppenstall. (Social Sciences Publishers, $2.50.)

This little book contains what I believe is the first important attack on the fashionable philosophy of the postwar epoch. It appears that existentialism, in some diluted and popularized form, as for example in the novels and plays of Jean-Paul Sartre, may have something like the literary influence exerted by Bergsonism in the second decade of the Twentieth Century and by Freudianism in the third; already its peculiar terminologies—Angst, Sorge, Dasein and what not—are being bounced about the more sophisticated salons and dinner tables with almost as much ease as if they were libido, complex, anxiety and sublimation. That Professor Ruggiero's monograph, for all its acumen, will greatly discourage this exercise seems to me doubtful. The burden of his argument is in the paradox that existentialism, in making existence the measure of all value, has destroyed all reason for existence. It is, in short, a philosophy of nihilism, which, translated into politics, is productive of something like Naziism. It is much more than coincidence, our professor believes, that existentialism obtained a more or less systematic formulation in Germany at the hands of Heidegger and Jaspers, and he finds many correspondences between it and the preachments of Frederich Wilhelm Nietzsche. Professor Ruggiero says nothing about the existentialism that underlies the "crisis theology" of Dr. Karl Barth, a Swiss, who has so strongly affected the thought of so many European Protestants, and even Catholics, although it is duly noted in the introduction by Mr. Heppenstall who also notes the existentialist character of the writings of the Spaniard Unamuno and the Orthodox Russian Berdayev. In France Gabriel Marcel, a Catholic writer, has synthesized existentialism and religious mysticism into a doctrine which Professor Ruggiero, with evident sarcasm, describes as beyond criticism in that it seems to depend upon a private illumination, or upon "a sixth sense unknown to ordinary mortals."

The cult of existentialism, including the name and the greater part of its vocabulary, is derived, as probably you know, from the religious experiences of Soeren Kierkegaard, the brilliant and possibly morbid Dane, who died in Copenhagen about the middle of the nineteenth century. The key to his theology is to be found in its complete repudiation of logic, or abstract reason. It is impossible, he argued, to apprehend transcendent truth by the process of speculative thought, since the thinker cannot separate himself from the fact of his own concrete and finite existence. To say otherwise is to fall into the heresy of pantheism. Thus speculative thought becomes merely a device for evading the knowledge of one's guilty isolation from God. This guilt, it appears, consists primarily in having been born, that is, in having been divorced from eternity by existence in time. The realization of this guilt and of what the soul has lost by the separation opens the way to grace and to redemption by faith. This, apparently, is what is meant by the Angest, or anguish, which is necessary to salvation. For Keirkegaard, as for Tertullian, faith to be valid must do violence to objective evidence. To offer rational proofs of God is to confess one's infidelity.

The existentialism of Kierkegaard is divorced of its pure subjectivism and also of its religious import in its systematic development by Martin Heidegger. It is no longer a case of speculative reason distracting the human soul from the consciousness of sin but of the concerns of everyday life (Dasein) distracting it from a vision of the void it inhabits and of the annihilation that awaits it. In other words the commonplace is a dream or an illusion and nightmare or panic is the reality. But it is through the constant recollection of its misery and nullity that the soul is liberated, and by the process of continual dying that one is able to live. What Heidegger has actually given us here, says Professor Ruggiero, is "the philosophy of the anonymous mass, immersed in daily banality. He has unveiled the agendo nihil agens of its action, the vanity of its endurance." I the existentialism of Karl Jaspers we encounter the notion of "shipwreck" as the central phenomenon existence. I have, alas, no direct acquaintance with the work of this Herr Jasper but as far as I can make out from Professor Ruggiero, "shipwreck" implies the realization that sooner or later every human aspiration is smashed upon the rock of some contrary. "There is no good without evil, no truth without falsehood, no life without death: all happiness is bound to grief." Man has, however, the will and the power to choose between opposites, but whichever he chooses it comes to the same in the end. In the realization that this is so, and in the will to accept and even embrace shipwreck as the ultimate end of his existence, he finds the liberty to fulfill his being.

Professor Ruggiero believes that the current popularity of the existentialist doctrines, whether in their religious or their atheistic guise, arises from the impulse of individual personality, to assert itself somehow against the tyranny of a collectivist society. It is a desperate effort to give meaning to the individual existence by the destruction of all other meaning. But thereby, says the professor, it assumes the character of a "nihilistic revolt which not unrightly has been compared to a sort of atomic bomb of the spiritual life."

Today And Tomorrow

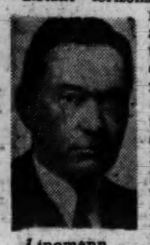
Distant Horizons

THE PRESIDENT in his message and Senator Taft in his reply both had their eyes fixed on distant horizons. Neither had much to say about what they think the state of the Union in fact is. The main difference between the two orations was that Mr. Truman painted a picture of his hopes for the next 10 years while Mr. Taft was more interested in expressing his disapproval of the past 10 years. Mr. Truman devoted his main effort to a program for his successors. Mr. Taft on the other hand is still arguing it out with President Roosevelt, Mr. Tugwell, and Mr. Harry Hopkins.



Lippmann

They were agreed however that the immediate present and the near future were not good subjects for exact discussion.

MR. TRUMAN is leaving exact discussion to Secretary Marshall on the subject of foreign policy, to Secretary Forrestal on the subject of national defense, to Secretary Harriman on one aspect of inflation, to Secretary Snyder on another aspect, to Chairman Eccles on another aspect. It is apparently not the responsibility of the Chief Executive when he discusses the state of the Union to explain how they all fit together into a workable and solvent national effort.

Mr. Taft, on the other hand, takes the view that the leader of the majority party in Congress has done his duty when he has picked and pecked at bits and pieces of the President's oration. If anyone can tell where Mr. Taft really stands on foreign policy, national defense, inflation, he must have private knowledge above and beyond the Senator's public utterances.

THE ARGUMENT between Mr. Truman and Mr. Taft has not thus far done much to define the issues, to make specific the order of business before the country, or to clarify the purposes of the Nation. As a rehearsal for a national campaign on which much is likely to depend, the debates between Mr. Truman and Mr. Taft are impassioned arguments chiefly about matters that belong to the past which is irrevocably behind us or to the future which is far ahead of us.

They are, as Mr. Dooley once said of two other presidential candidates, as far apart as the two poles of the earth and as much alike. For neither of them has taken a comprehensive and specific view of our obligations and our means, our interests and our resources, in the critically important and fateful period through which we are passing. Yet until that is done, until the great balance sheet has been calculated, the priorities decided upon, and the secondary things postponed or abandoned, the country which never needed leadership more will not have it.

ONE OF Mr. Taft's incidental remarks needs to be examined in view of his general opposition to the Marshall Plan. "The biggest inflationary element," he said, "has been the export of goods and services in 1947 up to 18 billions against only 10 billions of imports. Ten billion dollars came in here, mostly loaned by us, to compete with our citizens for goods and services."

There is no doubt that the export surplus has added somewhat to the inflationary pressure. But it is simply not true to say that it has been "the biggest element." The biggest element is and has been the increase in the total of the demand deposits and currency owned by the public and by business firms and corporations. The increase was from 33 billion dollars in 1939 to approximately 112 billions at the end of 1947, and the whole of this increase took place during the war and because of the war. The amount of the exports financed by United States Government aid was between seven and eight billions. These cannot have been "the biggest inflationary element."

As a matter of fact during 1947 the American civilian population consumed a larger proportion of the gross product of this country than at any time since 1939. During the war years they consumed only about 60 per cent. In 1947 they consumed 90 per cent. It is, therefore, quite misleading to imply that exports abroad, though they are large, have deprived us of such a quantity of goods that they are the biggest element in the rise of prices.

IT MAY be useful to remember, since we are talking about helping Europe, that the percentage of our exports which have been going to Europe since the end of the war, or would go under the Marshall Plan, is no greater, is in fact somewhat smaller, than before the war. Moreover our exports to Europe are only about 40 per cent of our exports. They are less than our exports to the Western Hemisphere. To North America alone we have been exporting nearly three quarters as much as to Europe.

THE SPECIAL factor in the exports to Europe is not that they are an abnormally large proportion of our total exports. It is that our imports from Europe are abnormally low. They are as compared with prewar, proportionately cut in half. That is because Europe is short of goods and as yet has been unable to expand its production to meet its own needs and to export enough to pay for all it must import.

This is important because it bears so directly on one of the central features of the Marshall Plan. It is designed to revive and expand production, and thus to cure the very thing which Mr. Taft, and all the rest of us, and all the European countries as well, dislike and deplore; that so many of the great countries of Europe, ravaged by the war, are unable as yet to earn enough to support themselves.

Precisely because the Marshall Plan is designed to make them self-supporting, it is not relief but a true measure of reconstruction. And because its aim is solvency through production, its general effect on the world and on this country will not be inflationary.

Matter Of Fact

Schism In The Republican Soul

THE EISENHOWER IMBROGLIO is a side issue, compared to the process now at work among the congressional Republicans. It matters much less whom the Republicans may nominate, than whether the forward-looking or backward-looking faction of the party is victorious in their long, grim, internecine war, and for present purposes, the decisive battle in this conflict within the Republican party is almost certain to be fought over the European recovery program.

Last summer, many Republican leaders hoped that this battle could be avoided. A new intimacy was established between Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg and Robert A. Taft during their joint struggle to wind up the congressional session. They seemed to be finding common ground; it was hoped that their followers might not fall out too violently.

In the interval, however, the situation has deteriorated materially. Senator Taft's statements as a candidate have aligned him fairly decisively with the extreme right wing of his party (which is ardently supporting him). His statements on foreign policy have pretty well committed him to open opposition to Senator Vandenberg on the European recovery program.

And his statements as Senate leader are arousing increasing opposition among the Republican moderates. It is significant that the leadership of this opposition now seems to have passed from such isolated Republicans as Senators Aiken, Tobey and Morse. These men have always fought Taft, but the problem takes on a new aspect when so practical a seasoned and sensible politician as Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., takes the lead in opposing the Ohio Senator.

A NOTABLE INCIDENT, in this connection, was the dispute in the recent party conference over the declaration of policy by the Republican Senators. Senator Taft had personally prepared his own draft, which he asked the conference to approve in toto. Among other things, the draft committed the party to permanent disapproval of such potentially necessary steps as meat rationing, and placed a large share of the blame for rising prices on rising wages, without mentioning rising profits. Senator Lodge reacted to this proposed draft with some heat, and on his motion it was amended and toned down.

This was, of course, only a preliminary skirmish. The main struggle will take place, as already noted, over the European recovery program. As may be judged from the doings of the House leadership, the almost irresistible impulse of the more reactionary Republicans is to fight ERP by every flank attack they can devise. There is no doubt that the rock-ribbed Senate Old Guardists, like Wherry of Nebraska, Brooks of Illinois and Kem of Missouri, will yield to this temptation. But Taft's own course is as yet uncertain. On two successive days last week, he rather contemptuously dismissed as unsatisfactory Senator Vandenberg's change in the ERP bill to remove the 17-billion-dollar total, and then almost failed to mention foreign policy in his sharp answer to President Truman's state of the Union message.

When a Republican like Taft finds fault with the foreign policy doings of Senator Vandenberg, and then rather conspicuously holds his fire on President Truman on the foreign policy issue alone, a certain inner puzzle may be inferred. Senator Taft's private inclinations may also be inferred from his regretful remark to more than one of his colleagues that Senator Vandenberg's actions have impaired the usefulness of the foreign policy issue to the Republicans in this election. But whether Senator Taft will yield to temptation, in the manner of Senator Wherry, is a rather different question.

HIS ADVISERS have urged upon him a strategy of voting as he chooses, but refraining from placing himself at the head of the organized opponents of ERP. The character of the man is such that it will be difficult for him to adhere to such a careful program when the struggle nears its climax. He will want to pitch in and lead the fight, and the Wherrys and Brookses will try to make him do so.

Any one would be extremely foolish who did not respect Senator Taft's ability, industry and independence. But his individual qualities have only a limited bearing on the real question, which is whether the political line he represents is the line that the Republican Party ought to take. On this point, considerable light was shed by the last Gallup Poll, which attracted interest among the political professionals but was oddly unnoticed by the general public. It showed that in an immediate, Nation-wide choice between President Truman and Senator Taft, 63 per cent of those who knew their own minds plumped for Truman, while Senator Taft was supported by only 37 per cent. If the poll is accurate, this is a Truman lead which events may increase, but can hardly overcome.

Among some Republicans in Congress, the poll has been taken as a danger signal. For even if Senator Taft does not personally lead the ERP opposition, the Republican extremists in Congress can still compromise the party as a whole by their actions, if they behave in an extreme manner. Hence arises the importance, from the standpoint of the Republicans' future, of the great battle that is just now beginning.

Return to U.S.E.S. Is Dreaded By Migrant Labor, Farmers

(This is the first of a series of articles on migratory farm labor. Last fall the writer examined the social and economic problems of migratory farm workers in the Eastern States. These articles are based on a study of the situation in the Southwest. Both series deal with the consequences of a reversal of congressional policy under which these problems are being handled by the United States Employment Service instead of the Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture.)

By Agnes E. Meyer

Nearly a million migrant farm workers and their employers on farms all over America are now entering into an experiment they view with anxiety.

The rest of the country and countries abroad who use the food and fiber that these workers and farmers produce might be just as anxious if they know more about it. For the outcome of this experiment will have much to do with next year's food production and with the fate of the people who are responsible for it.

In 1943 when maximum food production was needed to win the war, Congress entrusted farm-labor placement to the Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture.

Last July, Congress reversed its policy by refusing to extend authority for the emergency farm labor program. As a result, responsibility for recruitment and placement of agricultural labor now has reverted to the United States Employment Service, under the provisions of the Wagner-Peyser Act of 1933. The change became effective January 1.

Last fall, I went to agricultural experts in the East with several questions about this congressional action. Some of these questions were: "What will this mean to our food supply? What will it mean to farmers and workers? What are the economic and human factors involved?"

All in Favor of Return

The people with whom I talked were all in favor of returning farm labor to the guidance of the Federal and State County Extension Service. It seemed wise to check their opinions against the opinions of farmers and farm workers in Texas, the country's greatest single source of migratory farm labor.

Another reason for selecting Texas as a laboratory is that this State has always been known to have one of the most efficient employment services in the whole country. It, also, had a State Extension Service that made history during the war in handling farmer-labor relationships. The highest officials in both services know each other. If successful cooperation is possible anywhere between the two agencies, it could be achieved in Texas. If any State Employment Service can handle farm labor recruitment, the Texas branch, with its 105 local offices, should be able to do it.

In spite of rapidly increasing farm mechanization, migratory labor is still needed in every one of our large agricultural States to harvest by hand enormous crops that machines have planted in a few days.

From the Rio Grande Valley in southernmost Texas comes our largest stream of migratory agricultural labor, some 120,000 men, women and children of whom about 70,000 find work in the State, while 50,000 more spread toward the Midwestern cotton and sugar-beet areas or along the West Coast as far north as Oregon and Washington.

Just "Hands" for Years

For years before the Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture took over the guidance of these migratory workers, mostly of Mexican descent, these people were treated like "hands" having no other human characteristics. They traveled by truck all day without rest or shelter or guidance of any sort. They are divided up into "crews" and the truck owner is generally the crew leader. These crews range from a single family of five or six to 50 or 60 people, counting the old folks and children, in addition to the workers.

Until the Extension farm labor program got under way, there was no planning to this catch-as-catch-can movement. Untold man-hours were lost because the cotton picker would just start out, see a field of cotton, pick a part of it and pull out for the next field. The Mexican workers just drifted around. They slept wherever they could park their rickety trucks without molestation. They were unwelcome in most communities that were dependent on their labor, as their living habits were necessarily insanitary and left behind in many of the towns and villages a trail of infectious diseases such as enteritis and trench mouth. This aimless wandering was not the fault of the Mexicans. They never had had any direction. They spoke little English. Nobody cared much what happened to them, how they lived or whether they worked. Two qualities sustained them in a life destitute of all physical comfort, their piety and an immense capacity for suffering.

From 1933 to 1942, while the Employment Service had control of farm labor, nothing was done to improve these conditions. If the migrants by chance dropped in at the local employment office, they got information that was weeks old, information that helped neither the worker nor the grower. The Mexican migrant became convinced that it was a total loss to stop in these bright and shining employment offices to ask the well-dressed "gringo" sitting at a desk about crop conditions. The desultory agricultural placements of the U.S.E.S. in Texas as elsewhere were made with no interest in the results either for the laborer, the employer or in maximum production.

Organization Improved

In 1942 with the need for food a world-wide problem, the Federal Government again took over the State Employment Services and improved its organization for farm placement. In Washington, in each of the 11 regional offices, in the State and local offices, men were employed who were supposed to know farm problems. Policies and methods were presumably devised by a State farm labor advisory committee, but then as now most of the program was issued as a ukase from Washington.

In spite of some improvement, the results of the U.S.E.S. were so unsatisfactory that the national farm organizations insisted in 1942 that the problem of an adequate supply of labor for agricultural production be turned over by Congress to the Federal and State Farm Extension Services of the Department of Agriculture. This was carried out in 1943.

The record of the Extension Service in farm labor placements during the war is of singular importance because its phenomenal success resulted from a wholly new philosophy of farm labor-management relationships which these articles will attempt to clarify. Not only did this agency handle the placement of 308,618 foreign laborers with efficiency; it transformed the lives of our most completely forgotten men and women, the migrant workers; it taught the farmers that decent treatment of these helpless human beings paid in dollars and cents; it never lost sight of its major objective, to produce a record-breaking amount of food, at a time when food was as necessary to our country as armaments.

What was the war record of the U.S.E.S. under the War Manpower Commission? On the whole it was a stupendous failure. But it must be clearly understood that this was not the fault of the many able patriotic people who were involved in this debacle.

Faulty in Structure

The U.S.E.S. is so faulty in structure that it defeats the human beings, however able, honest and industrious, who become a part of its vast machinery. Ever since it was established under the Wagner-Peyser Act in 1933, as the National Reemployment Service, it has been shunted back and forth between Federal and State administrative control until, as one regional director put it, "the men are dizzy."

At present State autonomy has again been restored. But it is fictitious and will remain fictitious as long as the State agencies receive their entire budget from the Federal Government. There are eleven regional directors supervising from three to five States, whose position is ambiguous, since they wield the power of the purse over State directors who are supposedly independent officials. A truly wicked feature of the organization is that the State's budgetary allowance depends not wholly but to a great extent upon the number of placements made. This is a direct temptation to dishonesty; to padding the rolls regardless of results; to the achievement of statistics rather than production.

My reports on the industrial labor situation written from Cleveland on February 10, 1945, when the U.S.E.S. was under the War Manpower Commission, describe the pandemonium that was typical throughout the country, though conditions varied. I quote a few paragraphs:

"So far, the War Manpower Commission has gone from crisis to crisis and piled directives upon directives, all of which have failed of their objectives. It would be like sending an army across a bridge with defective supports to give it more power unless it is reconstituted.

Many Are Repeaters

"The U.S.E.S. has never had a staff capable of handling the people who now make use of it. The clients, mostly unskilled people, after standing in line for hours, are shunted off to assignments for which they are frequently not suited, or to one that does not exist. The records of the U.S.E.S. are swollen with statistics that mean nothing, as many of the placements are repeaters. But the most brilliant person would be lost in the U.S.E.S. and the manpower offices because all of the employes are so harassed with endless reports, telephone messages and a deluge of other chores that they have no time for the careful placement of workers. In both offices, several officials said to me: 'We don't know whether we are here to make out reports or further the war effort. We must have these useless reports taken off our necks.'

"The Federal office of the War Manpower Commission issues restrictive orders that cannot be enforced, tells of wonderful results, announces two months later that conditions are worse, and follows failure with worse failures.

"An intelligent reorganization of the whole manpower muddle and the cooperative action in this field between labor, management and Government are essential not only to the war production program but to meet even more difficult situations during the conversion and postwar period."

The administrative reorganization of the U.S.E.S., recommended by every official who has suffered under its defects, has never taken place. Yet, this cumbersome Federal bureaucracy that failed in its previous attempts to handle farm placements, that revealed its structural weakness under the pressure of war, is now expected to handle farm placements once more.

(Tomorrow: Extension Service and U.S.E.S. have totally different approach to farm-labor placement.)

218 Visit Blood Center In First Week

Two hundred and eighteen men and women gave blood at the new Red Cross Blood Center, 1730 E st. nw., last week.

The number of donations was announced by Rudolph M. Evans, chairman of the Blood Donor Recruitment Committee. He said Friday was a record day, with 51 volunteers.

"Naturally, the figure for the first week is far from hitting the mark it will be necessary for us to achieve," Evans stated. It is hoped the center will "build up to and hold a weekly figure which will enable us to meet all of Metropolitan Washington's blood needs."

At this time the local Red Cross chapter will use contributed blood to meet emergency needs only, and to help supply the Veterans Administration Hospital at Mount Alto and the United States Naval Hospita lat Bethesda. However, within a year, officials expect to be able to fill the requirements of all Washington.

Today is "individual blood donor day" at the center, and volunteers are urged to phone DI. 5042 for appointments.

Nuptial Aim Decision Questioned

London, Jan. 11 (AP).—Bernard Cardinal Griffin, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Britain, took issue today with a recent decision of Britain's highest court questioning whether the procreation of children is the principal end of marriage.

"The primary purpose of marriage is the procreation of children and their subsequent education," Cardinal Griffin told a meeting of the Westminster Catholic Parents Association.

"It is the common teaching of Catholic theologians that contraceptive intercourse, whether with the aid of instruments or not, is not consummation of marriage," he said. "I have no quarrel with the verdict given, but we cannot consider a marriage that has once been validly contracted as null and void because the parties have refused to fulfill their obligations."

The five law lords of the House of Lords held in a decision December 17 that one partner's insistence on use of contraceptives was not sufficient grounds for divorce, and that the procreation of children "did not appear to be a principal end of marriage."

Bill Brennard Wins Air Race at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 11 (AP).—Bill Brennand, Oshkosh (Wis.) race pilot, captured the $10,000 Continental Motors Corp. air race today at the finale of Miami's sixteenth annual All-American Air Maneuvers before an estimated 12,000 wind-chilled spectators.

Brennand, flying his tiny Wittman Special of 188 cubic-inch piston displacement in the 24-mile race, clocked an average speed of 166.473 miles per hour and flew the 12-lap event over a two-mile course in an elapsed time of 8:8.9 seconds. His victory was worth $1480 first money.

Pistol Roulette Player Killed on Second Trial

Los Angeles, Jan. 11 (AP).—"Have any of you ever seen Russian roulette played?" asked Rookie Police Officer Gordon McNelly, 22, trying to be the life of the party.

He then spun the revolver cylinder with three loaded and three empty chambers, and placed the gun to his head. He won the 50-50 gamble on his first try. The second killed him. McNelly's wife was among the horrified Saturday night group who watched the fatal play.

Honor for Eisenhower

Oriental Shot to Death By U. S. Military Police

Tokyo, Jan. 11 (AP).—United States military police tonight shot and killed an Oriental wearing a United States Army uniform.

Police reports stated a patrol stopped the man because he was not wearing the uniform properly. The MPs believed he was an American-born Japanese technical sergeant.

Placed in an MP truck, he jumped out and opened fire with a pistol. Police cornered him in the attic of a Japanese home and fatally wounded him in an exchange of fire.

Economists Urge U. S. Spending Cut

Actions on Variety of FrontsRecommended By Board of Survey

By The Associated Press

A "radical reduction" in Government spending headed the list yesterday of 18 steps recommended by 53 economists as a means of combating inflation.

The 53, most of them university professors and all members of the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy, said in a statement that the situation requires "action on a variety of fronts."

The committee, a private organization with headquarters in New York, has been surveying the economic front since it was set up in 1933.

Need of Cut Shown

The report yesterday showed unanimity on the need of cutting Government spending but individuals were opposed to some of the proposals advocated by the majority. The list follows, with a parenthetical number after each proposal showing how many had reservations on that point or were opposed to it, fully or in part:

"1. A radical reduction in Government expenditures; in particular, abandonment of all public work projects except those of an emergency nature. (20).

"2. A reduction in taxes. (20).

"3. A reduction in the Federal debt. (1).

"4. A return to a gold-coin monetary standard, and a revision of our monetary laws, in order to return to the people of the United States greater control over the Government's use and abuse of the public purse and to reverse the pronounced trend in this country toward a governmentally managed economy. (10).

"5. An increase in production, productive effort, and efficiency of all productive agents. (1).

"6 Abandonment of make-work, feather-bedding, and other devices for collecting pay for work not done. (2).

"7 The maintenance of relatively low inventories and the avoidance of hoarding by business enterprises. (3).

Tax Law Revision Urged

"8. The retention by business enterprises of a large percentage of earnings for improvement and expansion of their businesses, and a revision of our tax laws to permit such retention without penalty. (5).

"9. The cautious use of credit, and an increase, where possible, of margins of safety against extensions of credit. (1).

"10. That sellers make special efforts to maintain the lowest possible prices consistent with a low margin of profit as a means of forestalling a possible large price decline and severe liquidation. (7).

"11. Reduction in tariffs and other restrictions to trade, domestic and foreign. (3).

"12. A recognition on the part of our Federal Government that it cannot buy large amounts of already scarce supplies and at the same time not contribute to high or higher prices. (1).

"13. Abandonment of Federal subsidies except where matters of national protection—in Air, Army and Naval forces—are involved, and also repeal of price-parity and price-maintenance laws. (2).

"14. That the Government not confuse symptoms with causes and that it not attempt to control symptoms since such 'controls' tend to conceal causes, distort the economic picture, and perpetuate, accentuate and foster new, economic maladjustments. (3).

"15. That people not buy what they do not need and that they not borrow to buy things they can do without. (4).

"16. That the apparent tendency to loan too freely and too much to foreign countries be sharply curbed. (9).

"17. That interest rates be permitted to find their natural levels. (8).

"18. That the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System give greater attention to the type of administration of our monetary and credit structure that should foster more harmonious relationships in the various segments of our economy. (7).

Fling at Truman

Has Pauley Proof, Says Stassen

Omaha, Nebr., Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, said today that "the Administration cannot be entirely devoted to holding down food prices if key members persist in grain market speculation."

Stassen made his statement at a press conference during a stopover en route from St. Louis to Cheyenne, Wyo., where he will begin a campaign tour through 10 Western and Southwestern States.

The trip will end at Washington January 23, when Stassen will confront Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to the Army Secretary and former Democratic Party treasurer, before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee.

"I can and will prove any statements I have made about Pauley," Stassen said. "In 20 years of public life I have not made an inaccurate accusation."

Stassen charged before the committee last week that Pauley made more than one million dollars in market speculation.

Pauley Made $932,703.10

I had not denied making a million dollars.

"Why not stop the pretense as well as the evasion. When you return before the committee, if you do return, I intend . . . to expose you."

Ferguson and two other Senators, Knowland (R., Calif.) and Dworshak (R., Idaho), participating in the commodity speculation study, meantime, shied away from instant approval of a proopsal by Stassen that Government employes should be legally barred from trading in the markets.

All three said they would like to have more information about such activity among Federal employes but would rather get it under existing statutes. But Knowland added:

"If it can't be handled any other way, some legislation may be necessary."

Ferguson said he was not ready to advocate prohibition by law of trading by Federal employes but conceded that legislation apparently would be necessary if such employes were to be kept out of the market altogether. Dworshak added that if such legislation were enacted it should include members of Congress as well as employes of departments and agencies.

Thomas Offers Data On Market Trading

Senator Thomas (D., Okla.) yesterday offered to throw open his personal records on commodity trading and was promptly taken up by Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) of a Senate subcommittee investigating market trading.

Thomas made it clear his purpose was to prove he had not taken advantage of "inside information" in his dealings. He added that he had not yet been able to establish definitely whether the "Edith Thomas, Washington, D. C.," named Saturday in an Agriculture Department list of speculators, was his wife.

However, Thomas emphasized that he was not denying the holding of 300 bales of cotton futures which was credited to Edith Thomas as of July 1, 1946.

Committee to Study Data

Ferguson said his committee would study "any records on commodity speculation" which Thomas cared to give it and then "decide what should be done" about hearings.

Thomas said he was going to "beat Ferguson's committee to the draw" by volunteering his personal records "for the past 71 years if they want them." The Oklahoman is 71.

He added that he hoped to have a report "in a day or two" from his brokers, which would establish whether his wife was the Edith Thomas named in the list. If she was shown to be, he said, he would take full responsibility for her market holdings.

Ferguson said he thought Thomas' action in volunteering his records was "commendable" and added that any other member of Congress who had commodity holdings should do likewise.

His subcommittee, meanwhile, prepared to hear tomorrow at 10 a. m. from Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician, who has acknowledged a "small holding" in wheat. Graham has said he disposed of it, when he learned of it, after Mr. Truman blasted at "gamblers in grain."

Barber Shop Harmony Four Just Start, Then 'Feel It Out'

By Roger Farquhar
Post Reporter

CLOSE HARMONY—"Registered" quartet of the Washington Chapter, Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., lets the audience have it, as pictured above. Left to right—Frank Shore of the United States Tariff Commission; John Cullen, attorney; Jerry Bachman, owner of the Paint Pot, 1110 13th st. nw. and S. Walter Bogley, president of the Bank of Bethesda

Four Montgomery County men—a bank president, a lawyer, a paint wholesaler and a United States Tariff Commission official—turn to a common interest at night—barber-shop harmony.

The four men have been "registered" for almost two years by the Washington Chapter, Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber-shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

They call themselves "The Capitolians," and more and more demands are being made on them for public appearances before such groups as the Lions, Kiwanis, Civitan, citizens associations, clubs and church organizations and for radio appearances.

But, according to the lawyer in the quartet, John B. Cullen, of 119 Primrose st., Chevy Chase, Md., the foursome's most "satisfying" public appearances are those at service hospitals.

The other members of the quartet are S. Walter Bogley, president of the Bank of Bethesda; Jerry Bachman, owner of the Paint Pot, 1110 13th st. nw., and Frank Shore, a commodities specialist with the United States Tariff Commission.

A vice president of the Washington chapter of the society, Cullen is one of 23 charter members of the chapter, which was organized about two years ago. The national society, he said, was first organized in 1938 by Owen C. Cash of Tulsa, Okla. Nationally, there are about 300 chapters, and locally there are 95 members (by invitation only).

All of the barber-shop harmonizers have been singing since childhood, but only one, Cullen, has ever studied voice. Shore, youngest of the group and former District junior tennis champion, sings tenor. Cullen is the second tenor lead, Bachman is the baritone and Bogley sings bass.

"The trick in singing barber-shop harmony," says Cullen, "is letting the lead carry the melody with the other three harmonizing when, as and if . . ." He adds that a good bit of barber shop music is never written down and you sort of feel your way around."

Society news with a sparkle!
Read Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HERE'S good news for all government girls—and wonderful news for one girl in particular.

The famous Mary Worth—the comic strip lady who holds together the episodes of the various glamour girls in The Washington Post's Mary Worth comic—is coming to Washington (not in real life, of course, but in the comic strip).

She will meet a government girl. And just as she got mixed into Elissa Lake's romance with Harvey Saxton by getting a job in a department store, so Mary Worth will become involved in the daily lives of government girls in Washington. All over the country newspaper readers will be following this comic strip story of Washington's girls (with The Washington Post's own Jerry Kluttz serving as technical advisor for accuracy!) America will get new insight, a fresh, sympathetic understanding, of the problems of the girls who help keep our government running.

One government girl, in particular, will be the focus of all eyes. Ken Ernst, the artist who draws the strip, will use an actual government girl as the model for his pen-and-ink heroine. And The Washington Post is going to help make the selection by holding a contest. It starts right now. First prize is $200, given by The Washington Post, plus a 9-day, expenses-paid trip to Bermuda by the World-Wide Travel Service Corp., Colonial Airlines and Hotel Bermudiana. Eleven runners-up also get cash prices.

Here are the rules. Read them now and make up your mind to enter. Someone will win. Someone will get the $200 and the fun and excitment of being in the spotlight. It might as well be you!

The Washington Post

Here are the RULES!

1. The Mary Worth government girl contest is designed to select a model government girl upon whom the artist of the Mary Worth strip will base the drawing of the heroine of his government girl episode.
2. All girls employed by the United States government in the metropolitan Washington area are eligible to compete.
3. Entries shall consist of photographs only, one photograph from each entrant, the photograph to be not more than one year old at the time of entry.
4. Any kind of black and white picture (no color shots or tints) may be entered, including snapshots, but be sure to get one that does you justice and is big enough for the judges to see what you look like.
5. Pictures must be entered unmounted. No frame, no glass.
6. The Washington Post will make all reasonable effort to return photographs but accepts no responsibility for their return.
7. Each photograph must be accompanied by a slip of paper PASTED to the bottom of the photograph, carrying the following information, typed or printed: Name, local address, age, home address, type of work, government office in which employed, plus signature. (For convenience, The Washington Post will publish a form every day which can be used as an entry blank.)
8. Winner will be used as a model for the comic strip, will receive $200 in cash and a trip to Bermuda. Runner-up gets $50 in cash, next ten get $5 each.
9. Decision of the judges will be final. There will be no correspondence of any kind in regard to individual entries.
10. Contest runs from January 7 through January 28. Entries postmarked later than January 28 will not be considered.
11. By entering the contest, the entrant binds herself to accept these rules and conditions as here stated.

Through going over the rules? Then what are you waiting for? Don't be modest—remember, this isn't a beauty contest, but a search for a model for Mary Worth's Government Girl. Look over Ken Ernst's previous heroines—Elissa, Brick, Crystal, Pixie. All different, weren't they? Maybe you are the type that Ken Ernst is looking for next! What do you have to lose? And $200 to win! Get out your photos now, look them over, make your selections, fill out the entry blank, and MAIL IT IN. Be sure to protect the photo with cardboard and mark the envelope "PHOTO—DO NOT BEND." Address Contest Department, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

GSI Strike Goes Into Second Week

Mass Picketing Scheduled Today; Cafeterias Say Service Nearly Normal

The strike against 42 Government Service cafeterias here goes into a second week today.

In the face of GSI claims that service is "practically normal" in the 40 cafeterias still operating, union officials planned new picketing strategy.

Union leaders said a large concentration of the strikers will gather today at the Federal Works Agency, F st. between 18th and 19th sts. nw., as a protest against keeping the cafeterias open.

Lawrence Kammett, public relations director for the CIO United Public Workers, parent union of the striking Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers, said he expected about 300 persons would participate in the demonstration from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m.

Yesterday, approximately 1000 strikers and members of their families joined in a prayer "that the heart of President Truman be touched by the problems" of the striking cafeteria workers.

Union officials said they had heard that the White House is "considering" a letter sent by CIO president Philip Murray last week asking the Government to convoke a collective bargaining conference between GSI and the union.

Led by the Rev. Earl L. Harrison, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church, 1500 9th st. nw., the strikers and their families offered the prayer yesterday as they stood facing the White House in front of the church. Earlier, inside the church, Mr. Harrison delivered a sermon entitled, "If You Break the Hedge, a Serpent Shall Bite You," referring to the crossing of picket lines.

Meanwhile, GSI expected to continue operation of the cafeterias this week—ignoring the union completely—with the help of some 1000 newly hired replacements, said J. C. Niehuss, GSI personnel director

Niehuss said the corporation is slowly obtaining new cooks and bakers—two classifications in which GSI was hardest hit by the strike. He emphasized that the new employes were hired on a permanent basis.

"There are still some jobs open for regular employes who want to come back," he said.

Vepco Supervisors' Union Meets to Discuss Wage Issue

AFL foremen and supervisory employes of the Virginia Electric & Power Co. held a three-hour union meeting in Richmond yesterday preliminary to contract talks today with management representatives.

J. C. McIntosh, international representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, declined to divulge matters discussed at the meeting of Local 1522. He said, however, that he would meet at 2 p. m. today with company representatives.

McIntosh said the union, covering some 190 employes in Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina, has requested a "general" wage increase and a "uniform wage structure."

Primary matter to be discussed today, he said, is whether the company will recognize and bargain with the union which, he said, was certified as bargaining agent by the National Labor Relations Board more than a year ago.

M. C. Smith, vice president of Vepco, said employes have been informed by letter that the company "cannot recognize the union as bargaining agent."

"We don't believe supervisory employes should be recognized as a union group and under the Taft-Hartley law we don't have to recognize them," Smith added.

He said union officials were told that "We will be glad to meet with them individually for discussions."

The present contract expires at the end of February.

No Gold for 100th Anniversary of Its Discovery in Calif.

San Francisco, Jan. 11 (AP).—With all the gold the Government has the San Francisco Centennial committee complained today, it won't lend a bar to ornament a celebration next week of the 100th anniversary of discovery of the metal in California by James Marshall.

But the United States Mint will help turn out some imitation gold for that purpose, said Carl J. Eastman, chairman of the committee.

He attached a copy of a letter from Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Mint, to his complaint. It explained why:

"It would give me much pleasure to be able to comply with your desire and it is with much reluctance I state that to do so would conflict with the rigid laws and regulations that bear upon the protection of precious metals in the custody of the Mint."

Collapse Laid To 'Soft' Wall

er, that the pier was cracked. This was denied by Papanicolas.

Shipp's firm was engaged by Papanicolas, after the collapse to clear the interior debris and raze the three upper stories of the remaining outer walls. The firm replaced the Arrow Wrecking Co. which was originally hired by the District Government to do the job.

Shipp said he was in the construction trade in Pittsburgh, Pa., from 1907 to 1929. At that time he entered the wrecking business and 1940 to 1942 headed the Pines Wrecking Co., leaving it during the war to enter the Army. Upon discharge he reentered the wrecking business in the Greater Washington area.

Papanicolas told The Post last night that he believed the "cutting of the bearing wall to create such a small pier is 99 per cent of the cause of the collapse in my opinion."

Hearing Near End

The final hearing of the investigating board will be held about Wednesday, Chairman Stewart H. Beall said yesterday.

At the time, the architect, engineers and contractors who worked on the remodeling job last year and Papanicolas will be called, the chairman said.

The report of the investigators will then be prepared and sent to the District Commissioners, he added.

Fairlington Parley Asked By Clergymen

Management of Fairlington yesterday had before it a new appeal to confer with representatives of AFL maintenance workers who have been on strike since December 8.

The request came from four Arlington County clergymen who are "doing what we can to bring about peace and amity," according to the Rev. J. W. Leggett, pastor of the Fairlington Methodist Church. Both union and management were approached to determine their positions, he said.

The clergymen's findings, including management's reply to their conference bid, "won't be ready for publication for at least a day or so," it was stated.

Charles Prins, public relations representative for Fairmac Corp., owner of the apartment development, said "our position has not changed at all."

The strike was called after the Building Service Employes, union, Local 82 (AFL), charged the firm had refused to bargain.

The management, after the strike was in progress did not accept a plea of the Arlington County Board to sit down with union officials and bargain.

Prins said later that "the admission in open court that one of the union's officials was a leading officer of the Communist Party, confirms the fact that we cannot with due regard for the safety of the 15,000 Fairlington residents and workers do business with them."

He said "We do not intend now or at any time to turn over the operations of Fairlington to a group which seems to be dominated by foreign-inspired philosophies."

The Rev. Mr. Leggett said clergymen who have attempted to bring the disputants together include the Rev. E. H. Potts of Fair Park Baptist Church; the Rev. Father Martin Quinn of Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, and the Rev. Darby Betts of St. Clements Episcopal Church.

He said the group will meet today to "sign the report." He said the group has promised not to "circulate" their findings until management has been notified.

Manassas, Va., Jan. 11 (Spl.).—R. Worth Peters, superintendent of Prince William County schools, has been named chairman of the State advisory committe on schools and colleges, succeeding Dean Raymond Pinchbeck of Richmond College.

Unions Claim Attempt to End Jobless Pay

By the United Press

The CIO, AFL and machinists' union said yesterday that the National Association of Manufacturers is trying to "wipe out" the Federal-State unemployment compensation system.

All three labor organizations urged their 14 million members to contact their Congressmen and Governors and try to block any move to amend the Federal unemployment tax law to give the States 100 per cent of all unemployment taxes collected from employers.

They revealed their action in the release of statements and letters.

Manufacturers' spokesmen were unavailable for comment.

The Federal Government now retains 3/10 of 1 per cent of these taxes. In return, Congress makes grants to the States to finance the Administration of their unemployment compensation systems. Under this arrangement, the States are required to meet certain Federal employment standards.

These rules forbid the States to withhold jobless payments to persons who refuse to fill jobs made vacant by strikes, who refuse to accept substandard employment, or refuse to join a company union or resign from a union as a condition of employment.

The labor organizations said that if the bill, sponsored by Representative Albert L. Reeves, jr. (R., Mo.) is enacted to cut the Federal Government out of its share of the tax, these Federal standards could be ignored by the various States.

John Brophy, national director of CIO Industrial Union Councils, said the Manufacturers' Association, Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Unemployment Benefit Advisers, Inc., and "some governors" are back of the move.

Nelson H. Cruikshank, director of AFL social insurance activities, said some State Unemployment Compensation administrators are working with the Manufacturers Association.

"These forces do not dare to oppose openly the benefits of our Social Security Act so they resort to fiscal devices and legalistic trickery," AFL President William Green said.

His comment was part of a letter sent to Representative John D. Dingell (D., Mich.) praising the Congressman for his opposition to the tax amendment proposal. Dingell said that the indorsement of the plan by a joint committee of the governors' conference and Representatives of Congress last September was "a serious error."

District Newspaper Printers Accept $8 Week Pay Increase

The Columbia Typographical Union, representing printers on Washington's four daily newspapers, accepted an $8-a-week wage increase yesterday.

By a vote of 354 to 17, the printers voted to accept the offer of the Washington Publishers Association, at an afternoon meeting in Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw.

Result of the balloting announced by CTU President James J. O'Connor, ended five months' negotiations between CTU Local 101 of the International Union, and the publishers' association. The printers had been working, by agreement, under terms of a contract that expired November 11, and the new wage increase is retroactive to November 12.

O'Connor said the increase, as reported to the membership by the scale committee, amounts to approximately 10 per cent, or 22.85 cents an hour.

G.S.I. EMPLOYEES 1000 NEW EMPLOYEES HIRED RETURN TO WORK— PROTECT YOUR JOB!

In order to insure service to our patrons it has been necessary for G. S. I. to hire many new employees. During the first three days of the strike over 1,000 new employees were hired.

Hiring has been done with sincere regret since we feel that most of the striking employees have not understood the one and only issue in the strike—the only issue is refusal of Union leaders to file non-Communist affidavits. We are maintaining former terms and working conditions. We have voluntarily granted a wage increase of 6½c per hour. This is the same increase the Union accepted at Pentagon. It is the same increase the Union claimed as a victory for its membership. THERE IS NO DISPUTE OVER WAGES.

Although we have been forced to hire new employees to serve our patrons we want you to know we will rehire old employees if their jobs have not been filled. Many of you had good jobs and years of experience with G. S. I.—you should not discard this because you are being misled by Union officials.

We are rapidly organizing, selecting and training a new force. We are continually increasing service to our patrons. In a short time normal service will be restored. We must continue selective hiring, but will protect your job at increased wages if you return to work before it has been filled.

REMEMBER

OUR RATES OF PAY ARE THE SAME AS THE UNION ACCEPTED AT PENTAGON. There is no dispute over wages.

NLRB refused to authorize this Union to represent you.

Conciliation Service refused to assist this Union.

Your decision means YOUR JOB—and YOUR FUTURE.

THE G. S. I. MANAGEMENT

Can you pick out your neighbors?

- Their faces may not be familiar. But these men and women are typical of the "home town folks" who provide the telephone service in your community.

- Most telephone people live in the communities they serve. This in itself makes for more efficient operation. But that's not all. Because telephone people ARE local people, they are interested in local activities. You'll find them willingly doing their part in important civic affairs.

- Finally, the fact that these people are your neighbors brings a note of friendliness into the very human job of providing you, day by day, with good telephone service.

400 in Morningside Get Some Fuel Oil

By Phil Austensen
Post Reporter

Oil for the heaters of Morningside arrived yesterday—at least enough to carry the town a couple of days.

Central Fuel Co., 1124 Florida ave. ne., provided 1000 gallons yesterday to give approximately 10 gallons to each home. Griffith Consumers Co., 1413 New York ave. nw., notified town residents an additional gallons will be available today.

Harry L. Simms, 322 Larkspur rd., president of Morningside's Citizen Association, said he received dozens of calls yesterday offering aid to the community, caught without heating oil because it is now and does not have "old customer" status with oil companies.

Among those calling was Bert E. Emice, 1112 Euclid st. nw., a White House employe, who said he had a number of electric radiators which he would be glad to lend without charge.

Dozens of citizens offered small quantities of fuel oil or to loan wood and coal stoves. Many took small quantities of oil to the village. They had read of the dilemma of the villagers in newspapers and wanted to help, Simms said.

Simms said Morningside residents are grateful for the aid offers but are most anxious to have a regular plan worked out that will give them the 18,000 gallons of No. 1 fuel oil each week.

"Most of us are veterans," he said, "but we ask as citizens of the United States that some of our officials take time out to provide for our necessity. We can't expect to go on depending on the charity of our neighbors."

The 1000 gallons provided yesterday came from the Central Fuel Co., whose operator lives in nearby Suitland.

untary agreements respecting orderly distribution of petroleum products.

The council said it had named a committee, as requested by Secretary of the Interior Krug, to make suggestions to the council regarding steps under the law authorizing industry to allocate scarce goods.

New York City breathed easier yesterday after avoiding the paralyzing effect of a strike of 1000 oil barge and tanker crewmen which was called off late Saturday night a half hour before the deadline.

The workmen haul New York City's fuel oil from New Jersey refineries.

Meantime, a survey by the Oil Forum, of New York, produced an estimate that the world's output of crude oil in October reached a new record of 8,627,294 barrels a day, increasing 74,407 a day over September.

For the first 10 months of the year, output was 8,150,013 a day as against 7,501,710 for the same period the previous year. October's largest gainer was the United States.

Church-State Unit Starting

Relations for the Baptists of the United States and recording secretary of the new organization, at 1628 16th st. nw.

Circulation of the manifesto and mass meetings throughout the country will be the organization's chief campaign methods, Dr. Dawson said last night.

"Release of 100,000 copies of the manifesto is planned and it may run into a million," he said.

The manifesto states that the organization's "single and only purpose is to assure the maintenance of the American principle of separation of church and state upon which the Federal Constitution guarantees religious liberty to all the people and all churches . . . This principle has been and is being violated."

The manifesto said in part:

"A powerful church, unaccustomed in its own history and tradition to the American ideal of separation of church and state . . . emboldened by the wide diffusion of a false conception of tolerance, has committed itself in authoritative declarations and by positive acts to a policy plainly subversive of religious liberty as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Intention No Secret

"It makes no secret of its intention to secure for itself, if possible, a privileged position in the body politic. In pursuit of this policy, it has already made such gains that the principle of separation of church and state is in peril of nullification by legislatures and courts and by Federal, State and local administrations.

"One of the long-range purposes of this church is to secure total support for its extensive system of parochial schools from the public treasury.

"It has begun by demanding that certain marginal services such as bus transportation, free lunches, free textbooks and so forth, for its parochial school pupils be financed by public funds raised by taxation for the public schools.

"Already, the legislators of certain States, yielding to the political pressure of this church, have enacted legislation empowering local school boards to grant these special privileges.

"On a bolder and more ambitious scale, this same church now demands aid for its schools from the Federal Government."

Sees Ominous Progress

The manifesto asserted that, "In the area of diplomacy, also, this same church has made ominous progress in its strategy of winning for itself a position of special privilege in relation to the State.

"An ambassadorship to the Papal head of the church, represented at the time it was set up as a temporary measure, has been in existence for seven years. President Truman, in 1946, assured a Protestant delegation that it would be discontinued at an early date. But the powerful political pressure which the hierarchy is able to bring to bear against fulfillment of this promise" requires a determined public opinion to secure its fulfillment, the manifesto said.

Taylor conferred with President Truman last Friday, but the subject of the conversation was not revealed.

Declaring that the "organization is being launched with an empty treasury," the group appealed for funds and named E. H. DeGroot, jr., a Washington attorney with offices at 924 Colorado bldg., as treasurer.

Headquarters of the organization will be in Washington, Dr. Dawson said last night, and named as officers: Dr. Poteat, president; Bishop Oxnam, Dr. Mackay and Dr. Morrison vice presidents.

Members of the executive committee include: Elmer E. Rogers, editor, Scottish Rite Publications, Washington; Miss Charl Williams, director of field service, National Education Association, Washington; Dr. Frank H. Yost, editor, Religious Liberty Association Publications, Takoma Park, Md.; Dr. Clyde Taylor, secretary, National Association of Evangelicals, Washington, and Dr. Louie D. Newton, Atlanta, Ga. Two members are yet to be named, Dr. Dawson said.

THAT HAVOC GIRL: After an erratic career that's taken her from burlesque through several stage and screen starts and a period when she was known best as "Gypsy Rose Lee's sister," June Havoc is reaching film stardom. Praised for her work in the Palace-bound "Gentleman's Agreement," June will be seen Thursday on the Capitol screen in "Intrigue" opposite George Raft

Lesson From a T-Man

—and—

Elmer Irey Can Still Keep Mum

By Richard L. Coe

ELMER LINCOLN IREY, for 25 years one of the top intelligence men in the country, may be retired, but the other day he unwittingly gave a neat lesson in how a good undercover man automatically protects his identity.

We were lunching in the Raleigh's plush Pall Mall Room when a table neighbor approached him and asked: "Aren't you Senator Sonso?"

Irey laughed and said he wasn't. We went on talking and several minutes later the same gentleman came over again. "Well, if you're not a Senator," he resumed, "surely you're Judge Whatsisname."

Again the Irey laugh and friendly attitude, but not one clue for the visitor's implied question.

Most people probably would have revealed their identity, but as if by instinct, Irey kept mum on the facts.

It was under Irey's direction that the Treasury boys finally nabbed Al Capone, Boss Pendergast, Bruno Hauptmann, Nucky Johnson and Waxey Gordon. From 1919 until his retirement in 1946, Irey was chief coordinator of the enforcement agencies of the Treasury and head of its intelligence unit.

After 40 years in the Government—he began when the Old Post-office Building was almost new—Irey is now a busy private citizen. He's a tax specialist for a law firm, has a series of radio programs, is writing magazine articles and a book and has just served as technical adviser for a promising new film, "T-Men," in which he also appears for a prologue.

A Model Civil Servant

Irey's remarkable for several reasons. Though you'd probably not pick him out in a crowd, he's got more stories in his head than a hundred mystery yarn writers. He's been a diabetic for 30 years, has had two attacks of coronary thrombosis, but still manages to look considerably younger than the 60 years he'll reach in March. And as a civil servant, he's lived wisely enough to have a home in Maryland and another in Sarasota, Fla.

Inevitably, one asks Irey about the ironic twists whereby such a criminal as Al Capone had finally to be punished for so extraneous a matter as tax evasion.

"Capone was undoubtedly a murderer, right enough," mused Irey, "but the trouble in nabbing him came from local governments which his and similar gangs have found too easy to control. The only Federal means lay with our organization."

Huey Saved by the Bell

One notable tax evader did slip through Irey's fingers, but it took assassination to save him—Huey Long. Secretary Morgenthau had urged Irey to have no political compunctions about prosecuting the Kingfish if Irey had proof he was guilty. The day before he was to be indicted, Huey was murdered.

Irey's cool-headedness would outdo many a film hero's. During the Capone trial, the T chief took the stand as a witness. Capone's bodyguard, D'Andrea, scowled to try to intimidate him as he had previous witnesses. In a quick move Irey ordered agents to grab and search D'Andrea. The guy was carrying a gun and on the spot was sentenced to six months for contempt of court. Succeeding witnesses had no fear of intimidation.

Such a man as Irey, of course, is a Comstock Lode to the movie people, whose code forbids making heroes of lawbreakers. Eagle Lion, the new company which has produced "T-Men," hopes to follow up this story of counterfeiting with others from the Irey memoirs. During his winter musings in Florida, Irey should come up with another T-Man yarn.

IN BRIEF: The Columbia's Bob Hope picture, "Where There's Life," has been selected by the National Screen Council as the month's most entertaining family picture . . . Two hundred school children will witness a special morning showing of "Shoe Shine" at the Little (where the Italian film will open on the 28th); the youngsters will then compete for three prizes for the best essays on the film.

Leaders Back Housing Plan, Wagner Says

By the United Press

Nine out of 10 State and local leaders believe a Federal housing program is urgently needed because "private enterprise could not now or in the foreseeable future provide decent housing for low-income families," Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) reported yesterday.

Wagner

Wagner sent Chairman Ralph A. Gamble (R., N. Y.) of the Joint Congressional Housing Committee a preliminary report on his Nation-wide survey of slum-clearance problems. The report was based on replies to questionnaires sent to all Governors, the mayors of every city over 50,000 population, and scores of businessmen and civic leaders.

The Gamble committee will open public hearings on the Housing question today. It already has taken some testimony inclosed session.

"Almost without exception," Wagner said, the persons polled "recommended a continuation of Federal assistance to local communities" for slum clearance and the construction of low-rent public housing projects.

"Dissents were few among all groups, including those directly connected with private home building and finance," he stated.

Wagner, coauthor with Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) of the long-range Federal housing bill pending in Congress, said the replies contained a "prevailing note of urgency as to the vital need for prompt and effective action by the Congress to meet the housing shortage.

Two Groups Seek to Join Federation

The Federation of Citizens Associations will consider admission applications from two local citizens' groups at its 8 p. m. meeting Saturday in the board room of the District Building.

The federation, at its highest enrollment since its inception in 1910, has received applications from the Northeast Citizens Association and the newly formed Terrace Citizens' Association, David Babp, federation secretary, said yesterday. Their admission would boost the roster to 71 member bodies, or about 45,000 citizens.

TO SERVE AMERICA BETTER...

Freight Car Production TRIPLED!

America's railroads are the arteries of our commerce. They are, indeed, first in peace and first in war—a means of mass transportation of the things we use and need.

And the heart of our transportation system, the unglamorous freight car, is always at work, day and night, carrying the load through good weather and bad—pumping the life-blood of our commerce.

As we turn into the new year, we, the builders of these freight cars, want to report to the American people. For during the past twelve months, high car loadings—greater demand for cars—have served to dramatize as never before the services of this Gallant Lady of the rails.

We car builders, specialists who supply cars to the railroads, are proud of our 1947 record... progress made in the face of handicaps to production encountered by all American industry.

In one year—from January 1 to December 31, 1947—production of freight cars for the Nation's railroads tripled.

It is a dramatic story. It is a story of voluntary cooperation between three great industries—the railroads themselves, the steel industry and the car builders—sitting down in collaboration with a government agency—the Office of Defense Transportation—and developing without controls or compulsion an expanded production schedule.

It is the old story of progress that comes from American competitive enterprise at work.

The result: A three-fold increase in production of cars for our Nation's carriers!

This is the more remarkable because car building is not like other industries. We did not come out of the war with great backlogs of orders upon which to begin post-war reconversion.

One-third of the railroads, carrying heavy new expenses and increased wages, were operating in the red in 1946, and the earnings of others were precariously low. They were unable to rehabilitate their freight car fleet as they wished. They applied for rate increases, but these were delayed.

Finally the log jam was broken, in part. Some relief was granted by the I.C.C. Volume orders were placed for new freight cars.

Car builders then went to work filling these orders. But cars take steel—more than 15 tons of rolled steel alone per car. And the steel industry, too, was having its troubles supplying the tremendous demands of America, plus export steel to help rehabilitate other nations. Even an expanded steel production could not supply all of the need. The freight car builders could not get all of the steel required, any more than other industries.

The American formula is working, however. Conference after conference has been held between these three great competitive industries—steel, railroads, and car builders—to work out a voluntary program of increased freight car production. The ODT and a Senate Committee have fostered this voluntary program, with the authorization of the Department of Justice.

In January, 1947, the car builders produced 2,265 cars for domestic use. Steadily the total has risen. In December, 7,881 cars were delivered, more than three times the January total; and the railroads themselves in December finished 2,162 cars, a total for the month of 9,823.

Thus, during the year, 68,507 new freight cars were added to the Nation's fleet.

And during the same period the car builders completed export orders, taken before large scale domestic orders began to come in, of 27,721 cars—a grand total for the year of 96,228 cars—the highest production since 1925.

Our sights are trained to higher levels for the future

So Jake Suggested Beautiful Hialeah

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

DURING MY VARIOUS jaunts to Florida it has been one of my duties to act as chauffeur for one Jake (Jockey No Boy) Jacobs, known outside of local haunts as Washington Jake.

In payment for my services, Jake becomes my man Friday, showing amazing ingenuity, ranging from taking my copy to the telegrapher to raising a $10 bill after I have had a tough day at the track, if you know what I mean.

Haight

Although Jake is not adverse to arriving at a race track shortly after sunrise, he invariably wants to get away as soon as the last race has been run. Sometimes I have work to do after the races, a fact that is against Jake's grain.

"Let's go. Let's go," he says.

"Sorry, Jake," I reply, "but I must work on a story."

"Ah, write about beautiful Hialeah—you know flamingoes, palm trees—beautiful Hialeah, beautiful Hialeah," he comes back.

Well, Jake's not around—he's either in Florida or en route—but were he here, and I asked him what I should write, he would answer, "Beautiful Hialeah."

So, with Hialeah opening this week, I'm going to try:

On July 2, 1931, the late Joseph E. Widener stood with I. W. Clark, noted scenic landscape artist, looking at some 240 acres of barren land—a tangle of jaggy coral, pock-marked with stagnant pools.

Widener said: "I want this to be the most beautiful race track in the world."

With a king's randsom at his command and Mother Nature at his side, Clark molded a masterpiece.

SURELY SOMEBODY must have painted a rainbow and dragged it across Hialeah before it dried. A dazzling paradise in the Empire of the Sun, it is like a painting of a beautiful sunset in which the artist has dipped too deeply in the colors.

Up and down the color scale—from ivy-like green to the penetrating red of a Neon sign; from the light blue of a sunlit sky to the heavy blue of the ocean, and from sandy yellow to deepest purple.

Nature and man have teamed well.

We drive along a hedge—a wall of green that appears to stretch for miles. There's a canyon for an entrance. Once inside we are amazed at the sight.

It is the Avendia de las Palmas, the Avenue of the Palms. Royal Palms, like long-handled feather dusters, line each side of the roadway, towering 100 feet or more and alligned as if they were soldiers standing at attention. Their grayish white trunks have the appearance of the strings of two huge harps.

On either side, as we drive along, are bushes and flowers, backed by palisades of Australian pines. Every blade of grass seems symetrically placed. Not a stable in sight. Not a sign or a scrap of torn paper mars the beauty of the spot.

Indeed, a fitting entrance to the beautiful track.

As we near the end of the avenue, the gold-brown stucco of the clubhouse is seen.

AN ATTENDANT, whose regalia would shame an admiral, takes our tickets.

A few steps and we are in a new fairyland. We are like children coming down stairs on Christmas morning, not knowing which way to look first. To the right is the rear of the clubhouse, a maze of yellow, purple and green vines, flowered latticework and rainbow curtains.

The back of the grandstand is like the stage setting for a musical show. The mezzanine stretches along the top of three sets of yellow stairs. Vines with purple, yellow and red blooms climb everywhere. The scene adds up to some glamorous palace from Arabian Nights.

To the left, the paddock is a virtual sea of palms growing out of a grass carpet as if they were darts thrown into a green cloth. There are walks of dirt and sand—so yellow and bright that one is tempted to scoop up a handful, wrap it in a handkerchief, and rush off to have it assayed.

There's the horse path and the outdoor paddock paved with dark brown tanbark. This substance against the green of the lawn looks like a canal of chocolate icing. Like all others, this enclosure is surrounded by a high hedge and has its border of fern-like and fantastic trees.

We go upstairs and through to the other side of the stands.

That which we have seen was but an accessory before the fact—the fact lies before our eyes, a panorama of tropical majesty!

THE BROWNISH OVAL STRIP is the track. On the inside is the deep green of the turf course. [illegible] islands, its palm bushes and flowers. Red flamingos, black and white swans and varieties of ducks dot the shimmering surface of the lake.

One cannot see beyond Hia[illegible]

Haight Takes To the Airways

Nearly everyone comes up at the end of the year with a list of the outstanding sports events—nearly everyone, that is, but Walter Haight.

Walter has to be different.

So tonight on WINX and the Bob Wolff show at 6:15 p. m., Pounds Haight will upset the conventional custom and name his list of the ten WORST sports performances of 1947. Tune in, you'll have fun.

Dean Cromwell Gets Olympic Coaching Job

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—Dean Cromwell of Southern California, who has developed more Olympic athletes than any other American, was handed the job of coaching this country's track and field entrants for the 1948 games in London today by the United States Olympic track and field committee.

As head coach of the track and field squad, the veteran of 39 years as Trojan mentor succeeds Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania, who directed the United States teams through the last three Olympic carnivals and was assisted by Cromwell at Berlin in 1936.

Assistants Named

Cromwell's assistant coaches will be Emil von Elling of New York University, whose teams are perennial powers in the East; Tom Jones of Wisconsin, dean of Western Conference track mentors, and Emmett Brunson of Rice Institute, who has developed numerous cinder stars in recent years.

The committee, meeting here at the conclusion of the annual NCAA convention, also selected Ward H. Haylett of Kansas State as Olympic decathlon coach and named Alfred R. Masters of Stanford as the head manager of the United States track and field squad.

The committee also named Fred Travalena of New York's Metropolitan AAU as manager of the United States decathlon and walking squads for the Olympics and picked Edward S. Parsons of Northeastern University and Lloyd Olds of Michigan Normal as assistant managers to serve under Masters.

It set the final Olympic decathlon tryouts for June 25-27 at Bloomfield, N. J.; the trials for the 50 kilometer walk at Cincinnati, May 16, and for the 10 kilometer walk at New York, June 6.

Developed 26 Olympians

Cromwell, whose Trojan teams have won the National Collegiate track championship a dozen times—more than any other coach—has produced 26 Olympic athletes since beginning his coaching career at Southern California in 1908.

He has developed such Olympic champions as Sprinter Charley Paddock, Hurdler Fred Kelly, Pole Vaulter Earle Meadows and Weight Men Bud Houser and Ken Carpenter, while members of his Trojan teams who have held world or National records include Frank Wykoff, Vic Williams, Bill Sefton, Bill Graber, Charley Borah, Phil Cope and Roy Staley.

Fans Hear Grunts And Groans and Cozenza's Cadenza

Tony Cosenza will wrestle—and—play the piano Wednesday night at Turner's Arena.

First he will engage Harry Armus of North Dakota in a special 30-minute bout. During intermission, he will play concertos.

Cosenza says he began studying for a career as a pianist at the age of 10.

Heading the program will be Nanjo Singh and Dutch Rhode in a one-hour time limit go.

Billy Darnell, brother of Rhode, takes on Francis Miquett in a 30-minute semiwindup.

Babe Ruth Reenters Hospital

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—Babe Ruth has reentered the hospital for a checkup on the throat ailment that has kept him in the hands of the doctors for the past year and a half.

The former home run king of the New York Yankees entered the Neurological Hospital yesterday for a rest as well as a new line of treatment.

Mrs. Ruth said there was nothing serious, that the Babe was expected to return home "in three or four days."

Celtics Rout Caps, 84-56, In Boston

Boston, Jan. 11.—The Washington Caps suffered one of their worst defeats of the season here today, 84 to 56, at the hands of the Boston Celtics.

The Caps, who Saturday night in Washington beat the Philadelphia Warriors 106-99 in an overtime period, were no match for the spirited Bostonians.

A second period rally which netted them twenty four points to the Caps eleven enabled the Celtics to take a 38-25 lead at the half.

Some 4000 fans at the Boston Arena watched the Washington entry take an early 9-3 lead, only to have it melt away through the accurate shooting of the Celtics' Mel Riebe who posted six baskets, thus taking up the slack left by the close covering of Boston's high scores, Ed Sadowski, who was held to three field goals.

Celtics Start Slow

The Celtics who hold second-place in the Eastern division of the Basketball Association of America scored first on a foul shot by Ed Sadowski.

That was all the scoring they did until almost the five minute mark of the first period had been reached, when the lanky Boston guard, Connie Simmons, sunk a set shot from 15-feet out.

Meanwhile the Capitols took a 6-1 lead on the long shots of Bones McKinney and Bob Feerick. McKinney also had complete control of both the Washington and Boston backboard, continually outjumping the Celtics.

Celtics Start to Click

However, at the eight-minute mark, the Celtics began to click. While big John Mahnken kept close watch over Sadowski, Riebe began working under the Washington basket, and Dutch Garfinkel and Saul Mariaschin started hitting from the back court.

When the first period closed, the Celtics had forged their way into a 14-14 tie.

In the first five minutes of the second period, the Boston club began running away with the game, taking at one point a 15-point lead, 32-17.

During this time, the Capitols who had won a 106-99 overtime game in Washington Saturday night, showed the effects of that workout, but even the insertion of substitutes failed to stem the Boston tide.

Stags Win Easily Over Knicks, 99-86

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP).—The New York Knickerbockers got off to an unsuccessful start in their first Western invasion in the basketball association of America's current campaign when they dropped a 99 to 86 game to the Chicago Stags in the Chicago Stadium tonight before 6438 fans.

High scoring honors went to Max Zaslofsky, Stag forward, who tallied 31 points. Dick Holub led the visitors with 22 points.

Tom's Auto and Grotto Grill continued in a first-place tie with five wins and one loss in the Silver Spring Basketball League by virtue of victories in yesterday's games.

Tom's beat Myron Cowell, 53-30, and Grotto Grill turned back the Silver Spring Elks, 53-37.

In other games, Hubbard beat VFM, 31-29, and B. & D. Cleaners defeated Sandy Spring, 43-32.

Catholic University will enter a five man team in the February 14 rifle meet sponsored by the United States Marine Corps and the University of Maryland at the Maryland range.

As yet the team has not been announced but will be after the next few practice sessions. The C. U. Rifle club recently were accepted by the National Rifle Association.

St. John's Beaten, 36-35, In Overtime

The first varsity athletic loss for St. John's High during the 1947-48 season was suffered yesterday at the National Guard Armory as Mount St. Joseph's, of Baltimore, eked out a 36-35 basketball triumph in a blistering overtime period.

The Johnnies, unbeaten in football, lost for the first time in five basketball games on a foul shot by the Mounts' Pat Vito with 50 seconds of the extra session remaining. Mount St. Joseph's succeeded in freezing the ball until the end.

It was closely contested game throughout, but at intermission St. John's had built up its largest lead at 19-13. Al Weaver, who wound up with 10 points, and Jack George and Vince Durkin with nine each, were the spark plugs of the first half.

The Baltimoreans' Lew Reich stood out in the second half, running his total points to 16 and helping the invaders to a 31-29 edge with eight seconds of regulation playing time left.

Then Tom Fannon's fiield goal sent the game into overtime.

Phog Questions Eligibility of Kansas State Ace

Kansas City, Jan. 11 (AP).—Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, basketball coach at the University of Kansas, says he has written two letters to Kansas State College athletic officials "questioning the eligibility of a Kansas State player."

The player in question, Allen said, is Clarence Brannum, star center.

Allen said Brannum played in the National AAU basketball tournament at Denver, Colo., last March and that he wants Kansas State to explain "how Brannum can be eligible for basketball in the Big Six this season?"

"I have not protested the use of Brannum," Allen said last night. "My letters merely requested information about the player's eligibility."

Maybe He Felt Sorry For the Losing Team

Salem, Va., Jan. 11 (AP).—Roanoke College was leading Emory and Henry by a wide margin in a basketball game here last night and that may have been what prompted Ray Anderson, Roanoke center, to tap the ball through the Emory and Henry goal.

That score gave Ray eight points for the night—six scored for Roanoke and two scored for Emory and Henry.

With and without Rays help Roanoke won, 63-35.

D. C. Bowler Places 12th In U. S. Classic

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 11.—Nick Tronsky, New Britain, Conn., won the eighteenth annual United States Duckpin Classic early today when he knocked down 1998 pins to take first prize of $1000 from a record field of 133 participants.

Wally Pipp of Hartford, Conn., finished second, 10 pins behind. Clarence Miller of Baltimore, finished third with 1987.

Cletus Pannell of Washington, D. C., the District's No. 1 bowler, led a contingent of 25 from the Capital, finishing twelfth for $150 with 1961. Lindsay Stott, also of Washington, was fourteenth with 1955.

A total of $6157.50 was distributed by the executive secretary, Arville Ebersole of Washington.

Williams, Pep In Top Bouts

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—Two champions, Lightweight Ike Williams and Featherweight Willie Pep, and a flock of contenders in several divisions will toss punches this week in one of the busiest national fight cards in months.

Williams, hard-hitting Negro from Trenton, N. J., faces Doug Carter of Newark in a nontitle 10 at Camden, N. J., Tuesday night.

Pep of Hartford, Conn., continues his fight of the week compaign Monday at St. Louis when he takes on Jimmy McAllister of Baltimore in an over-the-weight 10.

The 175-pounders clamoring for a shot at Light Heavyweight Champion Gus Lesnevich will have it out in Cleveland Tuesday. Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati and Archie Moore of St. Louis will clash in the 15-rounder.

In the Friday night Madison Square Garden show, Lavern Roach, the fighting Marine middleweight from Plainview, Tex., will make his bid for the big time against Tony Janiro of Youngstown, Ohio, in a tenner.

Look, Doctor! No Heads!

The good Dr. Naismith who invented basketball never expected it to be viewed from this angle, but these 16 legs present an interesting problem. Who's got the ball? The action took place Saturday night as Illinois took a 61-58 margin over Ohio State in a Big Nine game at Champaign, Ill. Normal identification would say that State players, Neil Johnston, Bob Winer and Gene Brown are scrapping with Illinois Captain Jack Burmaster for the ball. Who got it? Just read below the best you can.

Mangrum Takes Crosby Golf With 205

Del Monte, Calif., Jan. 11 (AP).—Lloyd Mangrum, former United States Open champion, flashed home with a 4-under-par 68 today to win the Bing Crosby $10,000 pro amateur golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 205.

Pacesetter with 137 as the field started the final round, Mangrum drew away from Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B. C., to win first prize money of $2000. Leonard, shooting par 72, racked up a 3-round total of 210.

Mangrum, playing in the form that won him the 1946 Open title, battered par into submission with a 34-34. The picturesque, tough Pebble Beach course, 6661 yards with both ocean and wooded holes, plays to a par 36-36—72.

Over Three Courses

To outdistance a great field of domestic and foreign stars, Mangrum put together rounds of 70-67-68 for the event, played over three courses—Cypress Point, Monterey Peninsula and Pebble Beach—in that order.

Canada's Leonard, who pulled up on even terms with Mangrum at the thirty-eighth hole, with a birdie 4 to the latter's 5, hewed to even par figures for the full route, carding nines of 35-37.

Pre tournament favorite Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., winner of the recent Los Angeles Open, finished with a 70 to pull into third position today with 211.

The total was one stroke ahead of South Africa's consistent and big money winner, Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, whose last round 70 gave him a 212 score.

From 32 to 38

Locke tourned the first nine in sensational fashion, with a four under par 32, but he faltered slightly on the incoming stretch for a 38.

Hogan, while relegated to third place in the money race among the professionals, salvaged some satisfaction by being a member of the winning pro amateur team in the best ball competition.

He and John Dawson of Los Angeles, former California amateur and open champion, carded a best ball score of 197 for the three rounds.

Worsham Picks Up

Three representatives of the Washington, D. C., area fell by the wayside on the last round. Lew Worsham, National Open champ, added a "no card" to his second-round 146 and teamed with Del Webb of Phoenix, Ariz., for a 221 in the pro-am.

Otto Greiner of Baltimore, who was eight strokes under par in pre-tourney practice, jumped to an 81 today and wound up 19 strokes off the pace. He and Carl Cope of Pacific Grove, Calif., combined for a 214.

Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, VVa., finished with an 80, good for 222, and paired with Monterey's Warner Keeley for a pro-am 199.

Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., and Jack Burke, White Plains, N. Y., tied for fifth place money at 216.

He led two fellow invaders from the Argentine however, with Enrique Bertolino tacking up 221 and Roberto de Vincenzo, 224.

Norman von Nida of Sydney, Australia, cruised in with a final 221.

Cresario Defends Title

Boston, Jan. 11 (AP).—New England welterweight titlist Johnny Cesario of Boston, today agreed to defend his sectional boxing honors against Bobby Zollo of Providence, R. I., in a 12-round feature bout at the Boston Garden on January 26.

Teams Rated Even Despite The Records

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

George Washington, somewhat peeved by the slight attention paid to its 11-1 record, will be out to make a bigger impression on local court connoisseurs against Georgetown 8:45 tonight at the Armory.

The Colonials have the feeling they're the District's top basketeers and have been looking forward to proving that debatable point to the Hoyas.

Coach Zahn's Colonials ran up nine straight before getting on the wrong end of a 67-45 score with North Carolina State. In their last two games, they beat Virginia and Clemson although they seemed to show some letdown after the disappointing performance against N. C. State.

Games Rated Tossup

Bill Cantwell, a polished performer, has been the big scoring gun for GW. Other standouts include Johnny Moffatt, Maynard Haithcock and Phil McNiff. Howard Hoffman, used in spots lately, has been displaying excellent shooting form.

Georgetown was matching strides with GW earlier in the season but the roof fell in after they had won six straight. Hoya supporters insist, however, that their team has played a tougher schedule than GW.

There's some merit to the argument and the teams figure about evenly tonight. Georgetown finally ended a seven-game losing streak, beating Maryland, 52-40, and gaining a leg on local championship honors.

O'Keefe Hoyas' Threat

Saturday night the Hoyas lost a close one to Canisius at Buffalo, 40-39. They blew a three-point lead in the last 90 seconds. Just as he did against Maryland, Tommy O'Keefe led Georgetown against Canisius. O'Keefe, taking over the scoring burden in place of former Capt. Andy Kostecka who was thrown off the squad, is a keen set shot.

Georgetown is counting on seasoned Danny Kraus, Ed Brembs, Ray Corley and Ken Brown to stop the GW scoring machine.

Tonight's game is the first of two scheduled by the teams this season. They meet again at the Armory on Saturday, February 21.

Hoyas, GW on WINX

Play-by-play account of tonight's basketball game at the Armory between George Washington's Colonials and the Georgetown Hoyas will be broadcast over WINX and WINX-FM at 10:05 p. m. Sportscaster Bob Wolff will do the description.

Bowlers Preview 'Pinball Machine' They Can't Tilt

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP).—A new bowling alley in which lighted images replace the pins, and no boys are needed to set 'em up again, was previewed today by Keglers.

The device, a distant cousin of the pin-ball machine, was invented by Henry W. Leavitt of Ogden, Utah.

Bowling Operator Louis Petersen, who demonstrated the pinless wonder, said it can record all possible combinations of "leaves" although only seven pin images are used in place of the usual ten pins.

Fesler Uninterested In Harvard Vacancy

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Ohio State University's head football coach, Wes Fesler, said yesterday he wasn't "interested" in the head coaching job at Harvard University.

Harvard Coach Dick Harlow resigned his job Friday because of ill health. Fesler served as an assistant to Harlow several years ago and his name had been mentioned with others.

Babs Scott Stops Presses In Prague

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—A beautiful blonde Canadian ice skater was breaking the ice in Prague for western diplomats today and nudging Rita Hayworth out in the cold.

Photographer's flashbulbs were popping like firecrackers on Fourth of July in a race by Prague's 10 newspapers to get pictures of Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa on page one in every edition.

Miss Scott came here to enter the European women's figure skating championships which open Tuesday, and glided right into the affections of every newspaper editor in town.

She already has had her picture in Prague papers 17 times in the last three days, nine more than movie actress Rita Hayworth inspired on her last visit here making her Czechoslovakia's pin-up queen.

Photographers have snapped Miss Scott smiling, leaping, standing, talking to United States skater Dick Button, tying her boot laces, arriving at her hotel, leaving her hotel and going to the opera.

RUDE PRAVO, official organ of the Communist Party in Czechoslovakia got so enthusiastic about the imported beauty that it put her smile on page one and relegated a story about the fighting in Greece to the inside editorial page.

The farmer's Zemedelske Noviny threw a photograph of a Canadian threshing machine with a new look into the hellbox and replated an edition in order to carry a two-column picture of the shapely Miss Scott.

The day she arrived in town, a Rude Pravo photographer used up a whole month's ration of flashbulbs recording her beauty for posterity.

Since then, Rude Pravo has settled down to a happy diet of one Scott picture a day.

EACH MORNING at 6 o'clock, the photographers find the photogenic blonde sprite hard at training at the winter stadium, a semi-inclosed rink on a small chilly island in the Vitava River.

A photographer of the Czech Socialist Party's Svobodne Slovo worked that "6 a. m." into his caption twice. Then he dug up an old Czech proverb to the effect that "the early bird hops farther."

The only newspaper in Prague which does not print pictures, the organ of the Cultural Association, made up for its lack of leg art by predicting that "there is no doubt that Miss Scottova will win."

Lions Need Replacements

Facing the Western Division's leading Pittsburgh Hornets here tomorrow night, the injury-riddled Washington Lions are frantic for some able replacements.

Latest and most severe loss to the local skaters is Kenny Schultz. The star center is the team's leading scorer, but he will be out indefinitely as the result of a fractured wrist suffered Friday against Providence.

This leaves the Lions in bad shape, with Defenseman Walter Babey and Jack Portland still on the sidelines. Coach Jack Riley is contacting various teams in an effort to gain new strength, but unless he is successful—and soon—the Lions probably will be in for a bad shellacking from potent Pittsburgh.

League Elects

KKeokuk, Iowa, Jan. 11 (AP).—Representatives of the Class C Central Association Baseball League today reelected Frank Hearn, Moline, Ill., president, secretary and treasurer of the league and named Dr. Charles Logan of Keokuk, vice president.

Five Lose 1st Time on Saturday

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—The list of unbeaten college basketball teams today had thinned out like a post-holiday Christmas tree after the kids had hauled it into the backyard.

Only 11 squads still can brag of unmarred records but with conference warfare stepping up and intersectional battles dotting the program, it probably won't be long before that handful will be wiped out too.

Sixteen court aggregations had their dreams of all-winning campaigns blasted during the week, 11 from Sunday to Friday, and five last night.

Here are the 11 all-winning outfits:

North Carolina (11), Duquesne (10), Georgia (10), Columbia (9), New York U. (9), LaSalle of Philadelphia (9), Iowa (8), Clarkson Tech (7), Rhode Island State (6), Fordham (6) and Roanoke College ((6).

Played Saturday

All of the all-winners saw action last night except N. Y. U. and Fordham.

North Carolina defeated Washington and Lee, 60-46; LaSalle dumped Virginia, 67-59; Duequesne downed Youngstown, 53-45; Georgia tumbled Mississippi, 74-66; Columbia trounced Dartmouth, 64-54; Rhode Island nosed out Connecticut, 65-63; Clarkson tripped Oswego, 65-49; Iowa humbled Purdue, 60-49, and Roanoke routed Emory and Henry, 65-35.

Either NYU or North Carolina will get knocked off this week as they are slated to meet in New York Thursday. NYU has to face Cornell and North Carolina is matched against Wake Forest before the Madison Square Garden show. Both should brush aside the opposition. The New York Violets, although a fine team, owe a good portion of their success to their home schedule. They are one of the few major teams which haven't traveled so far this season.

In Saturday's action, St. Louis (7-1), Providence (7-1), Navy (2-1), Cortland State Teachers (2-1) and Army (1-1) were conquered for the first time.

Navy Shellacked

Hank Iba's Oklahoma A. and M. precisionists stopped St. Louis, 33-30, before 11,289 fans, largest crowd ever to see the Bills perform in their home city. Boston College whipped Providence, 62-43: Hartwick downed Cortland, 67-61; Villanova handed Navy an awful pasting 61-39, and Army, a late starter was nipped by a weak Pittsburgh five, 42-41.

The Musketeers of Xavier (Ohio) (10-3) had a big hand in the shakedown of the unbeatens during the week. They started the pruning process by clipping Seton Hall on Sunday, 41-34, and then gave Louisville its first loss, Wednesday, 62-34.

Other squads to go down for the first time during the week included Kansas State, by Long Island U.; George Washington, by North Carolina State; Hofstra, by Brooklyn Poly; Colgate, by Penn State; Waynesboro (Pa.), by Youngstown; Western Reserve, by Cincinnati; West Virginia, by Manhattan; Carbondale (Ill.), by James Milliken, 71-53, and Regis (Colo.), by Montana, 60-48.

Attention, Nats

Hockey Star Is Baseball Prospect, Too

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

A HOCKEY rink isn't normally the place to find baseball material, but if you happen to see Clark Griffith out at Uline Arena watching the Lions, don't be surprised!

Laurier (Larry) Archambeault, star defenseman of the Washington hockey team, is not only a good baseball catcher, he can play the outfield, too. And what's more, he's a long ball, .300 hitter.

One of the few American boys ever to make good in big-time hockey and one of the rare hockey players ever to play professional baseball, Archambeault has received offers from the Cincinnati Reds, Syracuse Chiefs and San Diego Padres.

Born in Canada 26 years ago, Larry's family moved to Messina, N. Y., when he was 2 years old. His dad was a star hockey player in Canada and was once sought by the Montreal Canadiens. He chose to come to the United States and enter business.

But his athletic ability was handed down to his five sons. Larry was a four-sport star in high school, and his brothers all play hockey and baseball with American Legion teams in Messina. His youngest brother, Conrad, is a third baseman, currently the property of the New York Yankees.

PLAYING end on the high school football team, catcher on the baseball nine and taking part in both hockey and basketball during the winter months, Larry was a busy lad indeed.

He first attracted the attention of hockey scouts when his Messina High team reached the finals of the National AAU tournament in Boston.

When he finished school, he joined the New York Rovers, of the Eastern Amateur League, and the following season played under Jack Riley, his present coach, with the Baltimore Orioles of the same loop. Both teams won league titles while Larry was with them, and he was named to the All-Star team.

The next year he joined the pro hockey ranks with Pittsburgh, of the American League, but joined the U. S. Army during the season. Serving in both the armored corps and air corps, Larry got a chance to show his baseball ability wth the Orlando Army Air Base team.

Orlando, with Tommy Fine, now of the Red Sox, pitching, and Larry catching, reached the finals of the National Semi-Pro baseball tournament in Wichita, Kansas.

Named to the All-America semi-pro team, Archambeault was offered a contract with the Cincinnati National League team when he was discharged in 1946 as a first lieutenant.

BUT he injured his shoulder in the Pacific Coast Hockey League playoffs, and the Reds told him to report to Syracuse. That team and Larry couldn't get together over a contract, so Archambeault played catcher with Lawrence, of the Class B New England League.

Since then he has played American League Hockey during the winters and semi-pro baseball each summer. He feels that he'll make hockey his real profession, and play baseball for pin money.

"The two seasons run into each other, "Larry explained, "and now that I'm so near the highest league in hockey, I figure my chances are better in this sport."

But last year he walloped the baseball for a .383 average in 70 games with the Kingston, Ontario team of the Canadian National semi-pro league. Standing 5 feet 11 inches and weighing a solid 175 pounds, Larry can give that baseball a ride.

Two Bitter Area Schoolboy Rivalries Top 45-Game Slate

Two bitter Washington area schoolboy rivalries will be renewed this week to highlight the 45-game basketball slate.

Central's Vikings meet McKinley Tech's Trainers in the second game of an afternoon interhigh double-header at the National Guard Armory Friday, and George Washington's Presidents of Alexandria entertain the Washington-Lee Little Generals of Arlington at 8 p. m. in a Virginia Class A Conference game, also on Friday.

Central lost its interhigh opener to Wilson last Friday, 30-28, and Tech was upset by Anacostia, 52-39. Both have strong, well balanced teams that should do well in the league race. Leading Tech into action will be Buddy Wickers, Paul Pacini and Abe Levitan. Jimmy Pantos, Hal Sponder and Ross Keith are the nucleus of the Central team.

The GW vs. W-L game may well decide the Northern Virginia championship. Both won their league openers last Friday, GW trouncing Fairfax and W-L whacking Lane of Charlottesville. Against all opposition, GW has won five and lost one. Washington-Lee has won four and dropped two.

GW is favored, with most of the regulars of last year's State runner-up team back, including Bill Rorer, Jake Dohner and Buzzy Brown. Washington-Lee's expected to bank on little Jimmy Utterback and Buddy Warden.

The other game on Friday's afternoon interhigh double-header at the Armory pits Anacostia against Eastern. Both teams won their openers last Friday. In the night bill, also at the Armory Friday, Roosevelt takes on Wilson and Western battles Coolidge.

Hialeah ! ! It's Beautiful

leah's loveliness. It meets the sky on all sides. Across the track is a hedge of closely-packed Australian pine, 50 feet high behind which sway lofty royal palms as if nature has hauled up a line of green pennants.

The front of the clubhouse rivals the real for beauty. The ever present bougainvillea climbs lattice work at every side, adding its blooms to the riot of color. From the infield we see the green discs of tables set on the lawn. The white clubhouse severe of line with sweeping terraces and multi-colored awnings. Old rose is the motif of the boxes in front of the grandstand.

There seems to be a law against lack of vivid coloring.

Durkota Signs With Cleveland

Cleveland, Jan. 11 (U.P.)—Jeff Durkota, wingback of Penn State's undefeated football team, was signed today by the Cleveland Browns of the All-America Conference.

Coach Paul Brown said he would use Durkota as a halfback, a spot which has needed extra strength for the past two seasons.

Durkota, who carried the ball only 38 times with the Nittany Lions last year, averaged 11.6 yards per try, gaining 441 yards. He is 6 feet, weighs 205, and was the first draft choice of the Browns.

Cranford Starts Training Here for Garden Fight

Washington's Jackie Cranford, back from New York and his knockout of Bernie Reynolds, opens training in Washington today for his next invasion of Madison Square Garden, on January 30.

Jackie is training at Billy Edwards' gym, 1300 block of 5th st. ne. His opponent for the January 30 bout has not been named.

Ken Stribling And Walker Box Tonight

Ken Stribling, lanky colored middleweight from the District, will take on the only boxer who beat him in 1947 — Johnny Walker of Philadelphia, in a 10-round headline bout tonight at Turner's Arena.

Stribling, as usual, is being quoted on the short end of the odds. His biggest upset came in his last 1947 bout when he scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Frank Lacey of Baltimore. He also stopped Frank Sweeney in three rounds and Joe Gannon in one round at the Stadium. In all three bouts he was considered the underdog.

The bout will be the "rubber" match between Walker and Stribling. Stribling won by a first-round foul in the initial bout and Walker took the second by a close 10-round verdict.

Walker, who is attending Temple as a pre-medical student, had Stribling on the canvas in the first and seventh rounds of the last fight and his handlers say he is aiming to ring down the curtain on Stribling by the sixth round this time.

Among Walker's victims are Ossie (Bulldog) Harris, whom the Philadelphian knocked out, and Smuggy Hursey.

Four supporting matches, a trio of fives and a lone four, all pit Washington boys against Philly boxers. In the fives, Sonny Boy Bunn, local, takes on Bruce Ubalbo; Sugar Boy Fleming, local, vies with Rudy Marshall; Johnny Arduini, local, fights Teddy Williams, and in the four Toby Reed, local, meets Eddie Johnson.

Contractors, Eig's Win on Court

Capital Contractors and Eig's came out on top in West End Basketball League contests yesterday at the Gordon Junior High School gym.

The Contractors downed the Hoboes, 60-32, with Jack Wright and Joe Feters scoring 16 apiece for the winners. Ollie Kennedy paced Eig's over the Spotlight team, 37-32, as he tallied 12 points.

The victories enabled Contractors and Eig's to join Irving's at the top of the league standings with 6-1 records.

Rockville Teams Win

The Rockville men and women won games over two Henderson Hall Marine teams yesterday in the Rockville gym. The men downed the Marines, 47-31, and the Rockville girls triumphed over the Marine lassies, 28-19.

Caps Face Two Tough Teams This Week, Stags and Knicks

Two powerful basketball teams invade Uline Arena this week to play the Washington Capitols, who Saturday night won a thrilling overtime 106-99 victory from the Philadelphia Warriors.

Chicago's Stags, Western Division leaders, and victors in two out of three games with the Caps this season, play here Wednesday, and the New York Knickerbockers make their initial appearance here Saturday, with big turnouts expected after a record-setting crowd of 6751 against the Warriors.

Last year Chicago upset the supposedly invincible Capitols in the playoffs and the memory of that setback still rankles. Four members of that Chicago team are back—Max Zaslofsky, Chuck Gilmer, Jim Seminoff and Mickey Rottner.

In addition, the Stags have come up with a bevy of new stars including Stan Miasek, Gene Vance, Andy Phillip, Paul Huston, Ben Schadler and John Toomey.

Zaslefsky and Miasek currently are the team's leading point producers. Both are among the league leaders, Zaslefsky fifth and Miasek seventh. In his last outing, against Providence, Zaslofsky scored 35 points, one of the high performances of the season.

Phillip and Vance were members of the famous University of Illinois "Whiz Kids" who dominated the Western Conference in the early war years.

Phillip still holds almost every Big Nine scoring record and is one good reason why the Stags are leading the Western Division race.

Since the acquistion of Sonny Hertzberg, the Caps have been playing great ball. The little set shot artist will play his first game against his old teammates, the Knicks, on Saturday and probably will make them regret losing him to Washington.

Ganzales Rallies To Win Dixie Title

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 11 (AP).—Richard "Pancho" Gonzales, 19-year-old Los Angeles sensation, spotted Gardnes Larned two sets and then uncorked a tremendous service and a smashing net game to win the 21st annual Dixie tennis tournament, 2—6, 3—6, 6—2, 7—5, 6—2, here today.

Larned and Behrens teammates at Rollins College, won the men's doubles championship by defeating Bryan Grant and Sidney Schwartz of Brooklyn, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2.

Doris Hart of Miami won the women's title with an unexpectedly easy 6—1, 6—3 victory over Magda Rurac, international star from Romania. Mrs. Rurac's game evidenced the lack of tournament play in recent months.

Bucs Go Hollywood

Pittsburgh, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates will open their spring training March 1 at Hollywood, Calif.

Billings, Mont., Jan. 10 (AP).—Affiliation of Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck with the Billings Pioneer Baseball Club as stockholders was announced today by President Archie Cochrane, who said stock certificates had been mailed to the two Hollywood motion picture stars.

Bill Bennings Says:

Gulfstream Park.

DEAR FOLKS:

A friend of mine arrived from Jacksonville where he has been visiting relatives for the past few weeks. While there, he made his first trip to a dog track and, according to him, his last. He happened out to the hound oval the evening the track held "Maryland Night," in honor of the Terrapin football team which played Georgia there in the Gator Bowl game. Comes the first race, my friend hits the quiniela. Race No. 2 finds him getting home the first part of the daily double, and the next time the dogs chased the rabbit around the track he gets not only the second part of the double, but also his second straight quiniela. With about $300 of the track's money in his pocket, he has decided that going to the dogs is much better than you would believe. He slips a bit in the fourth and fifth race, but comes the sixth and the "Maryland Handicap" and he gets a tip. The dope is that a leading trainer spotted a pooch, easily the class of the field, in the race and advised all the Maryland football players there that night to bet the dog as it couldn't lose. The dog won, but my friend doesn't heed the advice. Instead, he plunks down his winnings—about $200—on Jawjah Boy. Like one of the two Georgia governors, Jawjah Boy finished out of the dough. So did my friend. He's now trying to recoup, but not with my selections.—BILL.

By the drive's end, no one need complain he had no opportunity to take advantage of the free chance to have his lungs checked for signs of the insidious disease that has plagued the world.

Cities' Assessed Valuation Gains 15.7%

New York., Jan. 11 (AP).—A property tax survey if 321 American cities shows their per capita assessed valuation increased 15.7 per cent in 1947 over 1946 while the tax rate dropped for the first time in four years.

The average decrease was 71 cents per $1000 assessed valuation, but when the rates were adjusted to a 100 per cent assessment base the decrease became 5 cents.

This decrease, said the National Municipal Review, which published the survey in its January issue, was "hardly a match for the increase in assessed valuation."

Illinois Boost Cited

The survey was prepared by the Bureau of Governmental Research, Detroit, assisted by the Volker Fellows of the National Training School for Public Service.

In part responsible for the large increase in assessed valuation was a recent Illinois statute that requires property to be assessed at 100 per cent of true or cash value. This boosted by 47 per cent the valuation of the 20 Illinois cities reported in the study, Chicago's assessment alone rising by $2,800,000,000.

However, even omitting the Illinois cities from the calculation, the increase was 12.7 per cent, or 125 per cent greater than the total for the previous four years. The percentage increases had been .6 in 1943, 1.1 in 1944, 1.3 in 1945, and 5.3 in 1946.

Recent Increase Cited

In 1943, the adjusted tax rate had dropped 35 cents per $1000 assessed valuation, then it had climbed until 1947. The increase was 12 cents in 1944, 22 cents in 1945 and 52 cents in 1946.

Reports from 255 cities showed a 96.88 per cent collection of the 1946-47 tax levy, compared with 96.62 in the preceding year.

Washington, with an assessed valuation of $1,816,012,527 and a tax rate of $20 per $1000, was among 13 cities listed whose assessments represent 100 per cent of true value.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Graham's Trouble Humorously Called 'My-Grain' Headache

STORY: This apocryphal story is being told around the White House:

It seems that Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, the President's personal physician, was feeling very bad indeed after he was exposed in Congress as a trader on the grain market. His efforts to doctor himself didn't work. So he went to a senior officer at Walter Reed Hospital here and told him of his troubles.

The older doctor patted him on the back and said:

"My boy, I believe I can properly diagnose your trouble—they're my-grain' headaches."

POLICE: A police exam will be announced soon by the Civil Service Commission.

The test will be used to make probational appointments of private to the Metropolitan Police Department and to the National Park Service. The jobs will pay $2720 to start.

Persons appointed to the Metropolitan police must live within 12 miles of the Capitol building, and appointees to the Park Service must live within 50 miles. There will be no experience or education requirements.

The commission expects to place about 125 eligibles with the city department as soon as the register is established. After the exam is formally announced, complete details will be available at the Commission's information office at 7th and F sts. nw.

Civil Service also plans to announce soon a test for warehouse examiner jobs throughout the country in Agriculture agencies. Beginning salaries will range from $2644 to $4149.

LEAVE: The staff of the Senate Civil Service Committee now plans to recommend only one major change in the Federal worker leave system—to reduce annual leave for temporary employes from 2½ days a month to 2 1/6 days. Most other Federal workers earn 2 1/6 days of annual leave each month and committee people believe the temporary workers should be cut down to that figure.

The staff is undecided whether to press for increased annual and sick leave for postal employes. The postal worker gets 15 days of annual and 10 days of sick leave yearly. In contrast, most other employes get 26 days annual and 15 days of sick leave. However, this leave discrimination is useful to postal employes in obtaining higher salaries.

POLICY: The Government has a policy on speculation by its employes. The policy was laid down by the late President Roosevelt on April 22, 1937 in a letter to Civil Service, and it hasn't been changed. This is the policy letter:

"I believe it to be sound policy of the Government that no officer or employe shall participate directly or indirectly in any transaction concerning the purchase or sale of corporate stocks or bonds or of commodities for speculative purposes, as distinguished from bona fide investment purposes. Engagement in such speculative activities by any officer or employe, whether under the competitive Civil Service or not, should be among the matters considered by heads of departments and establishments and by the commission in passing upon questions concerning his qualifications for retention or advancement."

NOTES: Chairman Langer of the Senate Civil Service Committee, still remembers his first teacher. She was Alice Rutledge, a cousin of the sweetheart of Abe Lincoln . . . Senator Taft has in a bill to have the Census Bureau take a census of housing. Meantime, Census is increasing its staff to conduct a census of business that will get under way soon . . . The National Federation of Postoffice Clerks says the proposed $1000 wage boost would increase "real" postal wages by only $1.17 a week above the 1939 average.

BIRTHDAY: This is National Civil Service Week. Friday will be the sixty-fifth birthday of the signing of the Civil Service Act by President Chester A. Arthur. The week will be observed by Civil Service officials in a series of broadcasts.

PROBATION: A new reinstatement rule has been issued by Civil Service. It provides:

That any person who is laid off in a reduction of force while he's serving his probationary period may be reinstated in any agency and to any position in any locality so long as he meets the qualification standards.

But if the person is separated for any other cause during his probationary period, he can be reinstated during one year, but only to the same agency, location, and type of position, and his reinstatement shall be subject to completion of his probation.

More than $800 in cash, clothing and jewelry were reported stolen yesterday in a series of housebreakings and grand larcenies.

Theft of a jeep, a truck and four automobiles was also reported to police.

Francis D. Connors of 128 B st. ne. said a billfold, containing $161, was stolen from his second-floor bedroom.

Skipper's Carry Out Shop at 1902 14th st. nw. provided more than food for one customer. Clara King, a clerk, reported a customer grabbed $108 from the cash register when she turned her back to fill out his order.

Susan H. Hickman of 4831 36th st. nw., reported 41 war bonds, a radio, a diamond ring and $15 in cash were taken from her apartment.

Samuel Singer of 3528 Davenport st. nw. told police thieves stole a .25-caliber semi-automatic, a silver fox fur coat and a diamond wedding band from his home. Police placed the value at $130.

Fourteen pairs of trousers, two ladies' coats, several suits and a trench coat, totally valued at $117, were stolen from the Tuxedo Cleaners, 300 P st. nw., Owner Edward J. Johnson reported. Police later found all but the trench coat lying on the pavement at 45th and Jay sts. ne.

OperaGuild Members Rehearse For Performances Jan. 28, 29

Trills and laughter are daily fare at the home of Miss Dorothy Remington, artistic director of the Washington Opera Guild, who lives at 1719 19th st. nw.

In an environment of old Chinese and French furniture and escaping puppies, 80 members of the guild are rehearsing for three one-act Puccini operas.

The youthful singers, who all live in the Washington area, were selected in auditions held last June. When not tussling with arias they hold down jobs with the Government or private industry.

They make up two casts—one for each night—for the program that will be given with the Arlington Symphony Orchestra at 8:15 p. m. January 28 and 29 at Lisner Auditorium.

The operas include "Il Tabarro" (The Cloak), "Suor Angelica" (Sister Angelica), and "Gianni-Schicchi" (an Italian proper name).

The operas, written in 1918, never have been performed in Washington. They will be sung in English. When no translation of one of opera was available, a member of the versatile case made one.

The operas were chosen, Miss Remington said, because "critics always are asking for something different" and because the number of roles gave so many singers an opportunity.

A special police trial board will hear charges today against three policemen brought by Julius Willie Clegg, 26, of 1106 21st st. ne., following his arrest last August.

Clegg, Negro veteran and an employee of The Washington Post, has charged he was arrested, detained illegally, and beaten by police on August 2, and also was held incommunicado.

The hearing will begin at 1 p. m. in the Municipal Center.

The three policemen to be tried are:

Meade Forecasts 1-Year Marshall Plan Approval

Baltimore, Jan. 11 (AP).—Representative Hugh A. Meade (D., Md.) predicted today Congress will agree to a substantial part of the Marshall Plan for European relief for one year and the balance of the aid program as needed in the future."

The Congressman said in a broadcast, "Lasting peace would be very cheap at a paltry sum of a few billion dollars, but future aid to Europe may be on a loan and not a gift basis."

Meade said additional aid for Greece will meet with growing opposition, "especially if the Administration wants to send troops."

Meade said he believed price control will not be reconsidered, since "the ineffective anti-inflation bill sponsored by the Republicans during the last session is all they expect to do about the question—the cost of living to the contrary notwithstanding."

"Installment credit terms probably will be put back under control," he continued, adding he expects rent control to continue until March 1, 1949.

Low cost housing, as provided by the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, probably will be held in committee, the Congressman said.

"And no one seems to believe that the Taft-Hartley Labor Law will be amended in any major way during this session."

Episcopalians Ask Funds to Enlarge Virginia Seminary

The church's effectiveness "depends very largely on the quality of its ministerial leadership," the Very Rev. A. C. Zabriskie, dean of the Virginia Episcopal Theological Seminary, said yesterday at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square.

Dr. Zabriskie's sermon highlighted initial efforts to raise $75,000 for the renovation of old buildings and erection of new ones at the Seminary. Coleman Jennings heads the committee of Greater Washington area Episcopal laymen spearheading the campaign. Dr. Zabriskie stated:

"We have been able to accommodate 116 men this past year because of 60 of them were married and were able to find quarters in the metropolitan area. But if we are to train our proportion of clergymen, we ought to have accommodations for 100 resident bachelors, because the proportion of bachelors to married men is certain to increase enormously in the very near future."

Appeals for supporting the Seminary campaign also were heard in other Episcopal churches.

'47 Traffic Took A Life in Area Every 60 Hours

147 Met Death Last Year Against 140 During 1946

Every 60 hours of last year the life of one man, woman or child was taken by highway traffic accidents within the Greater Washington area.

The year's total for the District, Montgomery and Prince Georges County, Md., and Arlington and Fairfax County and Alexandria, Va., was 147, in comparison to 140 traffic fatalities during 1946.

The figures, compiled monthly by The Washington Post, showed a year's total of 15,072 traffic accidents recorded, resultting in injuries ranging from minor brush burns to disfigurement and complete disability for a total of 5889 persons.

Fewer in 1946

Corresponding figures tabulated for 1946 showed a total of 13,502 accidents and 5510 persons injured.

In the District of Columbia alone, last month's traffic fatality toll of 5 in contrast to 11 deaths in December, 1946, kept the year's traffic death total to 72, the exact number recorded killed here in traffic accidents during 1946.

The District's 11,592 accidents reported during the 12 months of last year represented a 10 per cent increase over the 10,528 accidents tallied here during the preceding year; the rise in injuries last year over 1946 was approximately 6 per cent.

Montgomery County ended the year with 14 traffic dead, in contrast to 10 traffic fatalities incurred there during 1946. Injuries from traffic's cause in the county last year totaled 495, an increase of 169 over 1946's injury toll of 326.

39 Fatalities in Prince Georges

Prince Georges County recorded 39 highway deaths during 1947; 362 injuries and 668 accidents registered. Last month's toll in the county was 2 dead and 28 injured in 85 accidents reported.

Traffic figures for the year in the two Maryland counties run in true proportion but are slightly below "final" tallies, police pointed out. Some accidents, particularly these in the more remote sections, are handled solely by State police. These are reported directly to State offices and are assimilated later into county breakdowns.

Arlington County, Va., had 11 traffic deaths during 1947, including two fatalities last January when an automobile being chased by county police crashed into a bus on Fort Myer dr. County police do not include the two deaths on their own records since the accident occurred on Federal property.

Injuries Drop in Arlington

The 11 deaths were one more than recorded during 1946. Injury totals for the year reached 89, almost one half of 1946's injury toll of 174, while accidents recorded showed 637 for last year to 584 during 1946.

Five persons died in traffic accidents in the City of Alexandria during 1947, in contrast to three deaths the previous year. Last year's 251 persons requiring treatment for traffic injuries were but two more than those hurt in 1946 in Alexandria.

Fairfax County, where police have been keeping a check on speeders all year, recorded six fatalities for 1947, exactly one quarter the number of persons killed during the preceding year.

County police attributed the drop in fatalities to the curb on speeding, pointing out that the number of accidents recording during 1947 was but nine less than in 1946. Injuries in Fairfax County last year aggregated 186, six more than were hurt there in 1946 traffic accidents. Following are the comparative figures for 1946 and 1947:

Blames Congress

Policy Games 'Flourishing,' Pastor Says

The Washington Post

REV. WILSON HOLDER, preaching a sermon broadcast over WWDC from the Centennial Baptist Church yesterday, blamed congressional indifference and shortage of policemen for failure to curb the "numbers" racket here

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

A Washington preacher yesterday charged that "the numbers racket is flourishing here, in spite of all we can do to stop it."

The Rev. Wilson Holder made the statement in a sermon broadcast over WWDC from the Centennial Baptist Church, 7th and I sts. ne.

Enlarging upon his remarks to The Washington Post, the clergyman blamed congressional indifference and shortage of policemen for failure to curb the racket. He said he saw what he claimed was the numbers racket operating on a Northeast thoroughfare. This is his story.

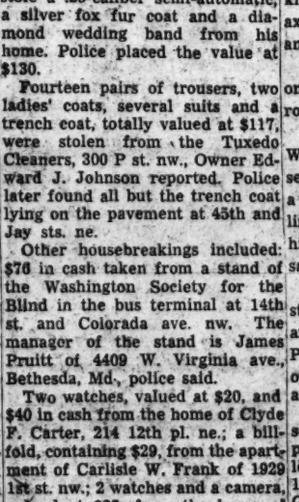
A crippled member of his congregation told him that she sat at her front window daily and observed what she believed to be numbers operators ringing doorbells, working out of a store she said was a "blind" for the numbers racket. She told her preacher that she was afraid to report the store to the police for fear of reprisals.

Mr. Holder told The Washington Post that he called upon the crippled woman one day, and she pointed out what she believed to be the chief numbers operator entering and leaving the store. The preacher said he had discussed the matter of the numbers racket with a policeman, who is a member of his congregation, and was told that "there are not enough policemen or District laws to cope with the numbers racket."

The clergyman told The Washington Post:

"The blame for the existence of this numbers racket rests squarely on the shoulders of Congress, whose members are not interested in the District, particularly at election time. We need District laws with teeth in them."

Engineer Enthused Over Job; Has Numerous Interests at 85



The Washington Post

CHARLES K. ROGERS, assistant engineer at the Folger Library, now 85, makes a hobby of chess problems

At an age when most men stay at home and rest, Charles K. Rogers of 225 10th st. ne., is a workingman. And he thinks "it's just wonderful."

In fact, Rogers, assistant engineer of the Folger Shakespeare Library for the past 16 years, indicated yesterday he thinks life begins at 80. He's only 85.

His past is not exactly tame either. He was born in Wilmington, Del., educated in Philadelphia high and technical schools and worked as a machinist and electrical engineer in the Quaker City.

In 1905, at the age of 42, he pulled up stakes and went to Panama, where he was one of the first American engineers to work on the "Big Ditch." After the canal's completion he was in charge of electrical and refrigerating plants there.

In 1919 he moved north to Florida, where he worked as a plumbing contractor until coming to the Capital in 1925. Until 1931, when he joined the Folger Shakespeare Library, Rogers was employed by the United States of Commerce and the Carlton Hotel here.

In addition to begin a prominent Mason, Rogers is past president of the District Association of Power Engineers, as well as a former state deputy of the Association of Power Engineers.

He was honored at a tea at the Library Friday—his birthday. And Saturday Columbia Council No. 22, Universal Craftsmen, Council of Engineers, feted him at a dinner.

"Why of course," Rogers said as the interview ended, "I want to live to be 100."

"He certainly enjoys life," his 53-year-old fourth wife, Mrs. Rhoda Rogers, said.

Police Start Drive For Boys Club Fund

If a bluecoat happens to knock on your door or enter your office today or during the next six weeks, it's not a warrant for arrest he'll be serving on you but an invitation to join the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

The campaign will be to raise $125,000 to maintain and expand the activities of the six clubs and Camp Ernest W. Brown in Scotland, Md.

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett is chairman of the special fund-raising committee composed of his inspectors and captains. No less than 1200 Policemen are committee members.

Bright and early this morning policemen loaded down with membership cards will start the rounds of Washington's business district. Capt. Robert C. Pearce is chairman of the Buildings Committee, and Robert C. Simmons is the general campaign chairman.

"A good start is the best way to prevent a poor finish," Major Barrett said yesterday as he voiced the sentiments of Attorney General Tom Clark, chairman of the Government Division of the drive.

"By a good start for Washington's underprivileged youngsters, we mean the kind that thousands of boys have not had and are getting from the Metropolitan Police Boys Club."

Barrett said he believed the proper approach to juvenile delinquency is to make boys feel that the policeman is his best friend. The Police Boys Clubs, he pointed out, do just this.

Police inspectors cooperating with the campaign are Ira E. Keck, Lloyd E. Kelly, Clement P. Cox, John H. Fowler, Oscar J. Letterman, Arthur E. Miller, Milton D. Smith, Clarence Talley, Walter H. Thomas and Floyd A. Truscott.

He Likes the Music of Cowbells . . .

The Washington Post

ONE VERSION OF NOSTALGIA—Willy Staub, 2622 University pl. nw., never forgot the music of the cowbells in his native Switzerland. Above he is pictured with some prize examples he collected during a trip to the old country. He rings a few each night before retiring, and sleeps better for it

Cow Bells Fill Void for D. C. Resident

The life of city dweller Willy Staub is deeply involved with cows and cow bells, and he wouldn't have it any other way.

As a boy, 45-year-old Staub, of 2622 University pl. nw., shepherded "cattles" in his native Switzerland on the slopes of the Alps. The gentle lowing of grazing kine and the soft, serene tinkling of cow bells became a symphony he never forgot.

And, says Staub, while the bells are important to him, they mean even more to the peace of mind of the cows. Ruddy face beaming in memory, the portly Swiss avers: "Like music is to us, so is a bell to a cow."

Missed the Bells

A Washington resident since 1925, the lack of bells created an emptiness in Staub's life and he has finally done something about it. Staub spent six months in his native land last year, and when he returned in October he carried 50 hand made, cast-brass, tuned cow bells which were specially constructed for him.

Staub has arranged the bells on three tables in his bedroom, and he is wont to ring a few each night before retiring. There's a reason—their concerted tolling is a pleasant blend of sharp, clear tones that are restful to him.

The Swiss bell-ringer, presently without occupation, is considering establishing a retail bell business. Dairymen have told him they are a factor in the amount of milk a cow will give. He also believes there should be an outlet for the hand-painted, purely decorative bells of his native land.

Bells a Mark of Pride

Staub, who has been a butler, headwaiter and restaurant owner, says no Swiss farmer would be without bells on his cattle. "It is a mark of pride with them," he says.

That goes for sheep and goats, too.

And when cattle are driven to and from the Alpine grazing grounds in the spring and fall, they proudly wear their "dress up" bells . . . bells weighing as much as 25 pounds. "The sight is a pleasure to behold," Staub reminisces.

An Afternoon in Our Town

Reception Opens Season For Congressional Club

By Marie McNair

CONGRESSIONAL society turned out for the first party of the Congressional Club's social season. Miss Mary Howry gathered "old Washington" for tea and cocktails at her home in Georgetown, and an intellectual group were invited by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Lowrey to meet members of the Oxford University debating team who will meet the American University team tonight in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium.

In addition there were former Ambassador and Mrs. Hallet Johnson's cocktail party and another party given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Jacobs.

The Congressional Club had all its officers—and their husbands—in the long receiving line, and three former presidents of the club to greet the guests at the door.

Mrs. Clifford Davis, wife of the Representative from Tennessee, and present head of the club—was first in line upstairs in the oval drawing room where flags of the 48 States hung in a frieze from the ceiling and the scarlet-jacketed Marine Band played a lilting obligato to the hum of lively conversation.

In brown velvet with tangerine colored roses at the decolletage, Mrs. Davis' floor length gown exactly matched in tone that of Mrs. Wallace White, wife of the senior Senator from Maine and first vice president of the club, who stood next to her. Mrs. White's gown was of lace and with it she wore a teal blue brimmed hat.

Also welcoming the guests were Representative and Mrs. Lansdale Sasscer, Representative and Mrs. Albert Thomas, Representative and Mrs. Errett Scrivner, Representative and Mrs. J. Harry McGregor, Representative and Mrs. Mike Mansfield, and Representative and Mrs. Aime J. Forand.

Chief Justice Fred Vinson, came with Mrs. Vinson, whose black crepe frock was topped with a hat of maize ostrich. Mrs. Vinson had been asked to pour tea and also taking their turn at the table were Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of Justice Reed, wearing a pink felt hat and black frock; Mrs. William O. Douglas in black and gray felt bowler with ostrich tips; Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, and Mrs. Harold Burton. Cabinet ladies included Mrs. Tom Clark, pretty in black with shining satin ribbons on her hat, a purple orchid on her shoulder; Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Mrs. Julius Krug, Mrs. Clinton Anderson, done up in brown; and Mrs. Lewis Schwellenbach, who had lured her husband along.

Others presiding for awhile at the tea and coffee services were Mrs. Tom Connally, Mrs. Carl A. Hatch, Mrs. Spessard Holland, Mrs. Bourke Hickenlooper, Mrs. George W. Malone, Mrs. John Taber, Representative Georgia Lusk and Mrs. Leslie Arends.

Over the tea cups I glimpsed Senator Owen Brewster, and Mrs. Brewster, wrapped in mink with a white feather hat; Mme. Winiewicz, wife of the Polish Ambassador, being introduced by Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden; Mrs. Walter F. George, Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, in brown which is so effective with her Titian hair; Miss Annie Laurie Rankin going on later with her parents, Representative and Mrs. John E. Rankin, to Vernon Lowrey's house where Mrs. Rankin had been asked to pour tea; Mrs. Lindsay Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Tashof and Mrs. Charles McNary, widow of the Senator from Oregon.

The Greeters

And, Oh, yes, I almost forgot. Mrs. James F. Byrnes, wife of the former Secretary of State, wearing the blue which so perfectly matches her eyes, was one of those former presidents of the club who was downstairs to welcome members and their guests. Others were Mrs. W. Sterling Cole, chairman of the hospitality committee; Mrs. Edward R Burke and Mrs. Will Whittington.

Mary Howry's little Georgetown house, which she had done over with such charm, was a little like Grand Hotel yesterday as the front door swung both ways all the afternoon. Miss Howry stood in the drawing room, wearing a taupe lame gown, to say "hello" and "goodbye" and guests milled from there to the dining room for tea where her sister, Elizabeth, was at one end of the tea table to serve champagne punch.

Mrs. Buchanan Merryman was coming down the stone steps, just as I arrived, with Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely following and Miss Dorothy Tirrell close behind. Clarence Hewes had come and gone, but lingering on were such bachelors about town as George Williams, Lyle Brookover, Tilghman Bunch and Kemper Simpson.

Mrs. Anne Archbold stopped in and others there were Mason Gulick, Mrs. Henry Flood, Mrs. Nance Morgan, in a Christmas-red frock; Miss Bertha Joseph, Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Miss Cornelia Bowie.

Fred Roy was saying good-by for a time as he's leaving for Atlantic City this week. George Abell takes off today for New York to join his pretty Jane and they'll both be back tomorrow. Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard and Mrs. Lee Murphy were keeping at a distance, for both wore the same frocks of moire, the one in navy blue, the other in black.

"WE'VE lost so far," said one of the members of the Oxford debating team at Mr. and Mrs. Lowrey's party yesterday, in answer to the question put to them by Mrs. Blake Clark. The trio of young Britishers—Sir Edward C. Boyle, the Hon. Anthony Neil Benn and David Harris—revealed a typical British shyness as they stood with Mrs. Lowrey in the paneled drawing room, where a fire burned brightly on the hearth.

From the windows of the Lowrey house at the end of Prospect st., there's a view of the river and the Virginia shore ablaze with lights. The handsome dark woodwork throughout the drawing room suite, the mantel and marble fireplace were purchased by Mrs. Lowrey from the home of the late Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins on K st., torn down some years ago in the march of progress.

The British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, was an early arrival coming alone as Lady Inverchapel is in New York. Others there were the former French Premier, Camille Chautemps, and Mme. Chautemps, in a black brocade satin suit with a halo of tightly curled white ostrich on her dark hair; Count de Merian, Mrs. James Souby, Justice Bennett Champ Clark, and Mrs. Clark who took her turn at the candlelit tea table; and Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, Lanette wearing a gay red hat with her dark frock.

Mrs. William N. Doak had been asked to assist at the tea table and others lending a helping hand were Mrs. Kenneth Brunsbold, in a long gray gown; Mrs. C. W. Johnson, Mrs. Reagan and Mrs. Paul Shinkman.

Dress Industry Shows Spring Styles to Press

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Manhattan's flossy, ambitious dress industry primped itself today in preparation for the annual midwinter invasion of fashion press gals from the provinces—including Washington.

MISS PRESTON

The couturier group (top-flight, "name" designers) will begin showing their spring wares tomorrow morning and continue with dazzling displays until Saturday. Here to get a preview of what they'll be writing about when the stocks reach local stores a few months hence are approximately 150 fashion writers. They are here from California, Maine, Florida and points around the continent including Canada. It's a feminine treat that few want to miss—the chance to feast their eyes on beautiful clothes for one whole week.

And the firms and persons responsible for turning out each year's millions of dollars worth of women's apparel in America don't want to miss it either. Dreamed up five years ago by Eleanor Lambert of the New York Dress Institute, this "Press Week" has come to be one of the main events of the year so far as the dress industry is concerned.

Everybody wants to get into the act. In addition to dresses and suits, we look at shoes, stockings, scarfs, handbags, sweaters, coats, jewelry, cosmetic lines, hats and more hats. Big name designers who are participating in the week's formal program of dress showings include Hattie Carnegie, Nettie Rosenstein, Adele Simpson, Pauline Trigere, Clare McCardell, Maurice Rentner, Anthony Blotta, Anna Miller, Ben Reig, Herbert Sondheim and dozens more.

In fact, "Press Week," has outgrown itself. There just are not enough hours in one week to let everyone have a chance. So this year, institute officials have arranged for three additional days of showing beginning next Monday, January 19. These will mark a departure from the tradition of showing collections individually in the designer's private salons. Next week's fashions will be grouped together, shown en masse in the Cotillion Room at the Hotel Pierre. They will include fashions in all price brackets, ranging from about $20 retail up to the top price brackets.

This week's shows, however, concentrating on such style-setters as Carnegie, etc., will reveal the fashion trends for the first part of 1948. These are the clothes that retail for fabulous sums, are copied by the cheaper houses and are on the market within a few months in $22.50 versions.

Many of us can only dream of owning clothes such as these. But if you are fashion conscious, you'll want to watch them. Because where the prominent designers put the hemline, the neckline and the waistline is exactly where you'll find them in your inexpensive copies this spring.

Tomorrow we'll take you to the showrooms of Tina Leser, who does wonderful, graceful things with jersey drapes; Eta, who specializes in quiet, elegant gowns for women over 40; Pauline Trigere, a clever Frenchwoman; and Maurice Rentner, whose forte is handsome suits.

Happy in Second Marriage, After Brutal Treatment in First, Girl's Only Trouble Is Her Mother's Dour Carping About Past

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Four years ago I obtained a divorce from a man who had made life very unhappy for me. He was brutal and at times would beat me. Also he would use any means of obtaining money.

He would lie to my family to get money or other favors from them, and once he took some heirloom jewelry of mine, several pieces which I greatly prized and sold them without my knowledge. I was so hurt by his actions that I never expected to be happy again.

However, some time after my divorce I met a nice young man and we were married two years ago. Since then I have been very happy, happier than I had thought it possible to be; and we own our home and have a nice little business.

Always Reminds She's Divorcee

THE PROBLEM is my mother, who at every opportunity brings up my former marriage. When she is alone with me she never lets me forget that I am a divorcee; and she even brings up little things about the former marriage in my husband's presence.

To avoid trouble we have built our home in another town, away from her; but when she visits us or we visit her, it is the same old thing. As a result we don't go there very often nowadays; and now she says we aren't treating her as a mother, and that I am a very ungrateful daughter.

Can you tell me, please, why and for what reason she does these things; and also, how I can make her understand that I wish to forget I was married before.

B. R.

Mother at Best Is a Doting Mom

DEAR B. R.: At her best, doubtless your mother is a doting mom, whose idea of a full life is living solely for her children and having them feel beholden to her for everything.

It seems you married quite young the first time, and I daresay against her wishes. Then when things began to turn out badly, I suppose she rallied solicitously with aid and solace to meet your increasing need of family succor—ready to forgive your headstrong mistake not only because your sufferings made her feel so complacently wise and right about her original objections, but also because your crushed hopes brought you back to the nest; badly frightened with broken wings.

Now she jealously resents the good fortune you've found in your second marriage, because it puts you in the position of no longer looking to her for special protective nurture.

She isn't so stupid that she doesn't know (1) that you want to forget the unhappy first marriage and (2) that you deplore her tactless references to it as an affront to your second husband's sensibilities. But she harps on the subject primarily to pluck the bluebird of happiness bare, if possible; and secondarily as implicit singsong reminder of "all I, your mother, did for you in that terrible time which you brought on the family."

Gloom Is Mom's Natural State

IN BRIEF, if you can be happy without dependency on her as principal provider of contentment, she feels wounded and rejected; hence involuntarily strikes with her tongue to hurt you back.

She is a melancholy, neurotic character, who respires unhappiness, drawing it in and giving it out, as naturally as she breathes. Gloom is her habitually cultivated emotional aura, and she feels like a fish out of water in the lighthearted atmosphere of your good companionship with your congenial husband.

If she can conspicuously depress your spirits and his, she feels for the moment en rapport with your feelings.

For advice: You were wise, indeed, to build your home in another town, away from her, and you are wholly justified in holding visits to a minimum, so don't let her pouting on that score disturb you.

Long-Spouted Watering Can Will Protect Floors

Attractive watering cans in gay colors and with long thin spouts are almost a household necessity if one has many house plants. This method of watering the plants is about the only insurance one has on not dropping a few extra drops of water on hardwood floors and causing white marks. A nice gift for the person fond of plants.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

We have a new coffee and cocktail table with a leather top covering. Can you tell me how to treat this leather to prevent cigarette burns, stains from drinks, etc. R. O. A.

I know of no solution that will protect your table against cigarette burns and similar scars. A sheet of glass over the table top would do so, but would also change the appearance of the table somewhat. Placing a decorative metal tray under ash trays on the table would lessen the danger of cigarette burns. For protection against watermarks, as well as other stains and soil, I'd suggest a thin coat of wax over the leather. You'll need to wax it only about every three or four months, but dust and buff frequently in between times. Before waxing, clean the table top thoroughly with saddle soap. Then apply either liquid or paste wax, wipe off excess wax, let remainder dry thoroughly, then buff with clean dry cloth.

I am planning to refinish a table by instructions which recently appeared in your column. However, there are a number of holes—both large and small—which mar the surface of the table. Can you tell me how to fill them so that they will show the least on a shellac-finished table? T. G. M.

Stick shellac, which is sold in paint shops, is excellent for filling small holes in furniture that is to have a natural wood finish. It comes in many different colors. Also, the colors can be blended by mixing them well as they melt, so it is possible to match the color of the wood of the table almost exactly. A large hole may be filled partly with wood putty and only the top part filled with stick shellac. It is important, though, to have enough depth to the hole to keep the stick shellac from coming out after it is trimmed and sanded.

Use a hot soldering iron, screw driver, or knife to melt the shellac. Let the soft material drop into the hole or place it there with the point of the tool. While filling the hole, stop occasionally and press the shellac down firmly with a wet finger. Build it up until the hole is not only filled but the patch is higher than the surrounding area. The shellac hardens quickly, so the patch should be leveled at once. Use a short and very sharp blade for this. A penknife or razor blade will do. Hold it flat and gradually shave off the raised portion until the patch is almost level with the wood. Then finish the smoothing with very fine sand paper. Use a hot knife to melt and smooth the surface when necessary.

The wood putty, for use in building up large holes, may also be purchased in paint stores. It is a powder to be mixed with water as needed. If you can't get stick shellac, it can be used alone for filling holes, but doesn't do as nice a job as shellac on natural finished wood. If used alone, stain or paint it to match the adjoining wood.

Is it possible to paint or dye upholstery? We have a couch covered with light-hued, single-color, heavy mohair which we would like to dye or paint dark blue or green. Can you give us any suggestions for doing such work? The material has worn very well, but is faded in a streaky way. M. P.

Satisfactory dyeing or painting of the upholstery on the frame wouldn't be possible because the dye or paint would sink into the stuffing and give an uneven effect. The material might be removed from the couch and dyed, but that would be a good deal of trouble and the mohair might shrink. It seems to me a good-looking slip cover would be the most satisfactory answer to your problem. A booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," which gives directions for making smooth-fitting slip covers at home, can be obtained by sending 25 cents to The Washington Post Reader Service, 243 W. 17th st., New York 11, N. Y., and asking for Booklet No. 35.

Some kerosene from a small heater was spilled on the floor in one of our bedrooms. The odor still persists. Is there any way to get rid of it? F. G.

The odor can be removed by wiping the kerosene spots with vinegar.

Is it proper to issue reception invitations with wedding announcements, or should separate wedding invitations be sent with reception invitations, and announcements sent to the uninvited? M. A. L.

Wedding invitations should accompany the reception invitations if you wish your friends to attend the ceremony as well as the reception. If only a few people are invited to the wedding, but many to the reception, the latter should be sent engraved reception invitations only. The few asked to witness the ceremony can be invited by word of mouth. Announcements should be sent only to those not invited to the ceremony or to the reception.

I am a newcomer to Washington and I have tried and failed to find out where I can get advance information on musicales or other programs in the high schools, museums, etc., of which I have read in your paper and also have been told about. Can you tell me where I can find this information? J. W. S.

Each Sunday, in Section VI of The Washington Post, a "Music Calendar" appears giving all the concerts and other musical events scheduled for the coming week.

My husband has a pony skin leather jacket, the collar of which rubs off and gets the shirt collars dirty. We have tried saddle soap with no success and the cleaners have informed us that they can't clean this leather. Can you suggest anything that might clean this collar and stop it from rubbing off? L. A. B.

Have you tried one of the neutral creams such as are sold for cleaning leather shoes and purses? This should remove dirt from the collar satisfactorily. If it is the dye in the coat collar that rubs off on your husband's shirts, the application of a thin coat of liquid wax (followed by a thorough buffing to remove excess wax) should help "seal in" the dye. If the difficulty persists despite these measures how about covering the leather collar with woolen material in a contrasting color?

Pastors Invoke Aid For New Congress

Divine Guidance Also Is Asked in Coming Election

Sermons and prayers invoking Divine guidance on the Eightieth Congress and the Presidential election were heard in many churches yesterday.

Members of Congress, their families and their staffs filled 500 reserved seats in the Washington Cathedral and were assured that, as "faith in God has made us great, if we cling to it we shall be greater."

In a service for the Eightieth Congress, Dr. Clark G. Kuebler, president of Ripon College, Ripon, Wisc., took his text from Isaiah 40:30, 'They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." He said:

"Totalitarianism is born first in the hearts and minds of men. Therefore we must use against it the weapons of the spirit and the mind.

"Our enemies know this. They attack synagogues and churches because both believe the individual is important. Both are bulwarks of the defense of our freedom."

A modern "Elijah" is needed to "lead people out of chaos and confusion," Dr. J. Warren Hastings said at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle.

"Whoever the man is the people of this Nation select to be their President in the coming election, let us hope the selection will be made as a result of the guidance of God's spirit," he said. "God sends His chosen leaders when the need is greatest. The time to begin praying about the election is now."

A three-point program for personal and national achivement in 1948 was urged by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., where President Truman frequently attends.

"Put principle above party, others above self, and God above all," he urged. "The year ahead can become a period of magnificent achievement or a time of shameful failure."

Prayers were said for the new congressional session. A number of congressmen and other dignitaries attended the sevrice, including Representative Percy Priest (D., Tenn.), who ushered, and Gen. Carl Gray, new head of the Veterans' Administration.

Plans have been completed for the annual "Red Mass" January 25 at 11 a. m. at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, marking the opening of courts and Congress. The Most Rev. Raymond A. Kearney, auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn, will preach. The rites will be sponsored by the university's law school, of which Dr. Brendan F. Brown is dean.

Navy Seeks Animals for Disease Fight

By The Associated Press

Researchers for the Navy are heading for Africa in search of laboratory animals to aid in the fight against tropical diseases.

A quest for "living animals to be tested for development as laboratory animals," Navy officials said yesterday, is one phase of a projected year-long medical mission to the Dark Continent.

The main general objectives of the expedition are to study tropical diseases in the natives, their transmission by insect carriers, and the role played by animals in relationship to spreading human disease.

By Jeep and Truck

Traveling by jeep and truck from Alexandria, Egypt, right through the continent to the Cape of Good Hope, the safari will investigate some areas concerning which science has little or no data from a medical viewpoint.

The six-man Navy-sponsored group will constitute a medical research unit of a broader scientific expedition in Africa being conducted by the University of California. Under present plans, the Navy unit will sail for Egypt on Wednesday, and will begin its field work early in February.

Headed by Amberson

Comdr. J. M. Amberson of the Navy Medical Corps, who heads the naval unit, holds the Distinguished Service Medal for his work against cholera in India during World War II. Others in the party are Comdr. T. K. Ruebush, parasitologist; Dr. E. Schwarz, zoologist; Chief Pharmacist Mate D. K. Lawless, a parasitology technician; Photographer's Mate Second Class Harley S. Cope, all of the Naval Medical School at Bethesda, Md.; and Entomologist Harry Hoogstrall of the Field Museum, Chicago.

'Third Force' Fights French Extremists

By William Attwood

Paris, Jan. 11.—Formation of a provisional "third force" central political committee was hailed today by both the Socialist and Popular Republican (MRP) press as a bulwark of French democracy against the extremism of the right and left.

The committee was set up yesterday at a meeting of more than 400 leaders of France's two left-of-center parties.

It was the first formal recognition of a movement that has been taking shape since Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF) joined with the Communist Party in an offensive against the policies of the moderates, who run the French government.

In an address before the delegates, Marceau Pivert, president of the Seine Federation of the Socialist Party, declared, "We refuse to take sides in the rivalry between the American and Soviet power blocs. We have been asked to choose between liberty without security or security without liberty. We want both security and liberty."

Leo Hamon, a Popular Republican Councilor of the Republic, made it clear that the new alliance will have nothing to do with either the Communists or the De Gaullists. He said that the term third force, hitherto applied collectively to certain people who agreed on major issues, was now the title of a real, dynamic political coalition.

Gapland Estate Bought for Park

Frederick, Md., Jan. 11 (Spl.).—A joint bid of $3500 by the Frederick County Historical Society and the Frederick Chamber of Commerce for the Gapland estate of the late George Alfred Townsend on South Mountain was accepted by the trustees of the Maryland-Virginia eldership of the Churches of God. Formal transfer of the 105-acre property, with its crumbling stone buildings will take place within the next week or 10 days, it was announced.

The property will be developed into a public park and will eventually be turned over to the State Parks Service, spokesmen for the new owners declared. The acreage is densely forested and, being on the Frederick-Washington County boundary, is bisected by the Appalachian Trail, which runs from Maine to Georgia.

Sale of the Townsend property does not include the unique War Correspondents' Memorial Arch, which the late newspaperman and novelist dedicated to his contemporaries of the Civil War. The memorial is under the jurisdiction of the National Parks Service.

Lincoln Road Church Marks End of Debts

It was a red-letter Sunday for Lincoln Road Methodist Church, Rhode Island ave. and Lincoln rd. ne.

Former members and past pastors from several States yesterday joined with present members and Methodist leaders in dedicating the church—signifying that it is debt free after a 39-year struggle.

Bishop Charles Wesley Flint of the Washington Methodist area formally dedicated the church at the morning service. Dr. Fred C. Reynolds, superintendent of the Washington East Methodist District, conducted a mortgage-burning ceremony last night.

Former Pastors Guests

Former pastors were honored guests at the annual homecoming service in the afternoon. They were the Rev. R. S. Barnes, now retired and living at Bel Air, Md.; the Rev. C. H. Corkran, now pastor of Calvary Methodist Church, Martinsburg, W. Va., and the Rev. George H. Bennett, minister of the First Methodist Church of Brunswick, Md. The Rev. Robert K. Nevitt is present pastor of Lincoln Road Church.

Former District Methodist superintendents participating were Dr. Edgar C. Beery, pastor of Emory Church, Brightwood; Dr. Horace E. Cromer, minister of McKendree Church, Woodbridge, and Dr. Benjamin W. Meeks, pastor of Baltimore's Howard Park Church.

Greetings Presented

Dr. Henry J. Wooding, pastor of Eckington Presbyterian Church, brought greetings on behalf of the Bloomingdale area churches, and the Rev. Clarkson R. Banes, pastor of the Mount Rainier Church, on behalf of the Washington Methodist Ministers' Conference.

Members of the church's board of trustees who formally presented the church for dedication at the morning service were John L. Rogers, president; Gustave A. Bonnet, E. D. Boling, Arthur E. Bonnet, Robert Earl Wilhelm and Jarvis B. Cissel, members.

Among the worshipers was Mrs. Mary Stine Bonnet, one of the group of 45 persons who attended the first service January 24, 1909, in what was then called the "Old Mansion House," at 3d st. and Rhode Island ave. nw. She is the wife of Arthur E. Bonnet, superintendent of the Lincoln Road Church's Sunday school. The Rev. F. B. Hanson was the first pastor. Lincoln Road Church was an outgrowth of a Mission Sunday school of the former Grace Methodist Episcopal Church.

VPI Lists 3-Day Religious Program

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 11 (AP).—"Religion's Answer to the World and to Me" is the theme of the annual religious emphasis program to be held at Virginia Tech January 18-20, Paul N. Derring, secretary of the VPI YMCA, announced here today.

Scheduled during the three days are a number of services, including the January student-faculty convocation January 19 at 10 a. m., at which Dr. Edward McCrady, head of the Department of Biology at the University of the South, will speak.

Farm Machinery Sale Attracts Huge Crowd

Frederick, Md., Jan. 11 (Spl.).—The lure of scarce farm machinery drew one of the largest crowds in years to the farm auction Friday of A. M. Thomas near Dickerson. The sale grossed approximately $13,000 and did not include any livestock, hay or other crops. The farm was recently purchased by James Gum.

Buyers were on hand from Frederick, Montgomery, Carroll, Washington and Garrett counties in Maryland, and nearby counties of Virginia. Auctioneer Emmert R. Bowles said all the machinery brought top prices.

Oldtimer Aids In New Church Ground Rites

Fifty-one years ago Miss Josephine Peck helped break ground for the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church,, 1410 Columbia rd. nw.

Yesterday she repeated the performance for a proposed new church at Westmoreland Circle, Massachusetts and Western aves., Westmoreland Hills, Md.

Miss Peck, oldest member of the congregation in point of service, stood near a table on which rested a model of the new edifice. Construction is expected to begin in two weeks.

Following Miss Peck in breaking ground were Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, pastor; Lowell Kilgore, chairman of the board of trustees and of the new building committee; Arthur S. Flemming, Civil Service commissioner and Federation of Churches' president; representatives of Mt. Pleasant Church's various organizations and of the Westmoreland Citizens' Association.

"Ground-breaking for a church has a great personal significance," Dr. Buschmeyer told the audience of 400 circled about the site of the ceremony, "because a church's sole reason for existence is to serve people in helping them to achieve their highest and most perfect personal relationship with God, and with each other."

"What we do here this hour is filled both with holy hopes out of the past and with great creative promise for the future," declared Dr. Buschmeyer.

300 Attending Southern Parley On Conservation

Old Point Comfort, Va., Jan. 11 (AP).—More than 300 persons from 16 States arrived here today for a three-day conference on conservation principles in the South.

In addition to landowners, industrialists and educators, the conference has attracted representatives from the United States Soil Conservation Service, Geological Survey, Forest Service and Fish and Wildlife Service. State conservation commissions and economic development boards, as well as delegates from State Federations of Women's Clubs and Garden Clubs, also sent delegates.

Principal business before the conference will be the formulation of a coordinated program "for the intelligent use of the basic natural resources of the South," the sponsoring Southern Association of Science and Industry said.

More than a dozen speakers will appear before the conference tomorrow.

GARRETT PARK

This beautifully situated bungalow has an "Old English" charm easily augmented by well-placed ivy and additional shrubs. The front lawn is terraced below street level in front and supported by a charming red brick retaining wall that incloses a sunken garden along the side of the basement wall. Remaining land slopes away from the house at basement level towards the rear. The house itself has 2 bedrooms, and an inclosed sleeping porch on the 1st floor, in addition to the usual living room, kitchen, etc. Full basement contains a recreation room with adjoining shower and toilet. The laundry and automatic hot-water heating plant occupy the remainder. This unusual property is in sound condition and is well adapted to the minor alterations an imaginative purchaser would desire. It is an ideal property for an artistically inclined person who enjoys "doing it yourself." The present owners are going to Alaska and offer the place completely furnished with the exception of a few personal belongings. The price is $13,750 for quick disposal. Inspection is by appt. only.

The Family Joined the Picket Line

HELPING DAD ON STRIKE—When striking employes of the All-American Cables, Mackay Radio and Commercial Cable Co. at Dupont Circle had to leave the picket line to attend a meeting yesterday, Striker Paul Chiera, operator-clerk, called in his wife and son, Philip, 3, to fill the breach. Wearing placards, they said they would picket until the meeting ended and the pickets returned

Judge Gets Lesson in Hot Dancing

Baltimore, Jan. 11 (AP).—Magistrate Herbert F. Franklin learned the latest jitterbug steps in court, and it didn't cost him—nor his instructors—a penny.

A young married couple appeared before him at the end of his court session.

"What kind of dancing do you do?" the magistrate inquired.

"Just sandin' most times, your honor," she replied. "Last night I was sandin', then started the camel walk when my husband jumps up and beats me. I never know when it's going to happen."

Never one to decide a case without complete familiarity with all its details, the magistrate asked for a demonstration.

So he, the desk lieutenant and several other policemen pulled the chairs back and watched the demonstration. Soon, in a modified fashion, they were sandin' and camel walkin' right along.

After it was over, the husband protested he didn't beat his wife.

The magistrate rubbed a kink in his knee, cautioned the "sanders," and dismissed the charge.

Forrestal May Combine Service Transport Units

By The Associated Press

Secretary Forrestal soon may order a consolidation of the Air Force Air Transport Command and the Naval Air Transport Service, aviation industry officials said yesterday.

These officials, who asked not to be quoted by name, told a reporter the defense chief has tired of waiting for agreement between the heads of the two military transport systems. Theq said he is eager to show Congress some tangible results of the efficiency and savings possible in the unified defense establishment.

It was reported that Forrestal intends to name Vice Admiral John W. Reeves, jr., commander of NATS, as head of the combined organization, but to make him responsible to Gen. Carl Spaatz, Air Force Chief of Staff.

A spokesman for the defense Secretary said the transport merger order still is under consideration. Another military officer said the step appeared logical.

AMG Employe Ends Life by Gas In Berlin Home

Miss Laura Christalee Liston, 25, stenographer-clerk in the employ of the American Military Government and former Washington resident, committed suicide by gas Saturday night in her Berlin apartment.

The Army Criminal Investigation Division announced yesterday that officials also found a note indicating despondency.

Miss Liston, a native of Huntington, W. Va., was employed here by the War Production Board and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration for several years before going overseas about 15 months ago.

The CID said her body was discovered by an Army lieutenant who called to visit her.

2 Philippines Barges Sink; 24 Missing

Manila (Monday), Jan. 12 (AP).—The Philippines' second and third sea tragedies within a week were believed today to have cost 24 lives.

A belated report to the Iloilo collector of customs said 14 persons were missing after engines of the converted landing barge Janairo failed and it smashed onto a reef in a gale off Panay Island January 3. A similar vessel, the Sea Trader, reportedly sank with ten crewmen aboard off the northern coast of Negros Island January 2.

Huntress Hits Power Plant Plan For St. Lawrence

Construction of a hydroelectric power plant in connetcion with the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway was assailed yesterday by Carroll B. Huntress, chairman of the National St. Lawrence Project Conference.

Huntress, whose organization opposes any part of the seaway development—for which legislation is now pending in the Senate—said:

"It has been estimated that it would take at least six years to construct the proposed plant. In the meantime, the privately financed companies which are now taking care of the area needs and, indeed, increasing their services to take care of steadily increasing needs, could not be expected—with their investments jeopardized—to continue to improve their facilities.

"The natural growth of the area would be checkmated until the hydroelectric plant came into existence, and then there would be a surprising limit to its capacity."

Maryland Employment Gains 7000 in Month

Baltimore, Jan. 11 (AP).—Maryland industries employed 7000 more persons in November, 1947, than in the preceding month, the Department of Labor and Industry reported.

Of this number, 2000 were employed in manufacturing, the report showed. Little change was attributed to industries producing nondurable goods. The report covered the 30 days ended November 15.

Md. Auto Tax Income Exceeds Expectations

Baltimore, Jan. 11 (AP).—The State Roads Commission reported it is collecting more money than Maryland tax experts expected new levies to bring.

The State had expected the 2 per cent excise tax on motor vehicle titles would bring three million dollars by the end of the year. The commission collected $1,929,118.41 in the first six months.

In revenue from the 5-cent gasoline tax, $4,646,777.93 has been collected as compared with the $8,586,000 expected for the 12-month period.

Phil La Follette Runs On MacArthur Slate

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 11 (AP).—Two former Governors of Wisconsin, Philip F. LaFollette, and Fred R. Zimmerman, now secretary of state, and Mrs. Walter S. Goodland, widow of the late Governor, were among a slate of seven MacArthur-for-President delegates announced today.

The complete slate of candidaes for delegates at large for the April 6 primary was announced by Lansing Hoyt, chairman of the Wisconsin MacArthur Club. Lafollette was on MacArthur's staff during the war.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

One Sign Says You Must Stand; Other Forbids It

Alan F. Blair of 4705 S. 29th st., Arlington, Va., recalls that a roadside eatery along the Ohio portion of U. S. 40 displayed this sign a few months ago:

"Open again—under OLD management."

Elayne Hale of 3425 E. Capitol st. is puzzled by two adjacent signs at Minnesota and Pennsylvania aves. se.

One says "Bus Stop" and the other says "No Standing At Any Time."

"What are we supposed to do," wails Elayne, "sit on the curb?"

Rose Sachs of 1428 R st. nw. is intrigued by the sign which is visible from the Pennsy trains that run between here and New York. It says, "Casket Research Corp."

But probably the funniest contribution of the day comes from Robert F. Geoghegan of 1618 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, Va. Bob asks:

"Did you know that no passengers are permitted to sit down in some of our local buses?"

He offers substantiation for this notion by quoting the signs in these vehicles: "Passengers Must Stand Behind the White Line."

Economist Livingston wrinkled his brow. "That has a very familiar ring," he commented.

"It does sound too good to be original," I agreed. "But I know Jay Aitch isn't a plagiarist, so I'm going to use it."

Then I went back to reading the rest of Jay Aitch's note, and found this:

"This next one puzzles me. I try to be original, but it is possible to slip without knowing it. Dreiser once wrote at great length on what he thought was an original idea, only to find later that he had repeated something he had once read elsewhere.

"At any rate, I heard a remark at a party the other night, and it inspired the verse which follows. But after completing it, I found that it sounded very familiar; maybe because of that remark, maybe because I'm unwittingly repeating a jingle I once read.

"Anyhow, here it is, and maybe you can tell me whether or not it's original:"

Whenever I drink, I toast your health,
Be it with whiskey or with wine;
But I've drunk to your health so often
I've practically ruined mine.

Curious as to Livingston's reaction, I read that one to him, too. He laughed—and raised no question as to its originality.

So I guess I'll use them both.

QUESTION & ANSWER

"I have about 150 books in perfect condition," writes Mrs. Kate Kundin of 60 V st. nw.

"They're mostly fiction, but they include such things as an old encyclopedia. I'd like to donate them, but I don't know to whom.

"Can you suggest a hospital or institution that would appreciate them?"

The Salvation Army not only wants books of all kinds, but will call for them. You might give them a ring, Kate—unless they see this item and call you first.

PERSONAL NOTES

Irving Diener, 310 King st. rd., Alexandria, Va.: Tell your lunching Kiwanians that my January 22 talk at the George Mason Hotel will be titled "Sense—and Nonsense" and that I am now trying to think up some profound remarks to fit the title.

DEFINITION

"Gossip columnists: Old hens pecking at their typewriters." (Karen Kruse, 4538 Harrison st. nw.)

EMBARRASSING QUESTION

Bill Brooks of 3215 Adams Mill rd. reports that a 1928 jalopy is touring our streets with this message boldly chalked across its back:

"Sure it's a wreck, but it's paid for. Is yours?"

LIFE-IS-LIKE-THAT DEPT.

My desk is just a few feet from that of Business Columnist J. A. Livingston, who harbors a delightful sense of humor in spite of his deadpan profession.

When my mail yields up a particularly bright item, I sometimes read it aloud to Joe—and that's precisely what happened the other day when this bit of verse arrived from Jay Aitch:

I love the hand I held last night;
It caused my heart to sing.
The sweetest hand I ever held—
Four aces and a king!

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Isham Jones, the band leader-songwriter, told of a tune he wrote many years ago. It was called "Oh, Hiram" and had a contagious melody which always made the listeners join in a community-sing. At the Republican National Convention the supporters of Senator Hiram Johnson ordered arrangements for the orchestra, which was to play "Oh, Hiram" when Johnson's name was put in nomination. Men were placed in key spots through the convention hall to take up the cry. If it had succeeded, if the convention could have been stampeded, it might have changed American history. But just before Johnson's name was introduced, the supporters of Senator Warren G. Harding marched to the orchestra and took away the sheet music.

THEATER DEPT.: Katharine Cornell, now attracting standees to "Antony and Cleopatra," was offered a movie contract by an agent who assured her: "The motion picture is the only art-form where your talents could be preserved for posterity" . . . "Really?" replied Miss Cornell. "Have you seen a movie which is over five years old lately?"

SOCIAL NOTE.—Harpo Marx, who sauntered through a Hollywood restaurant, pointed to each course in front of the customers and then whispered "Strychnine" into the diner's ear, later attended a supper party. Harpo sat in a corner of the room with some friends, and some one greeted him: "Hello Harpo. How do you feel?" . . . Harpo removed his dinner jacket, stripped off his shirt and undershirt, thumped his chest heartily and answered: "I feel fine. See?"

MUSIC DEPT.—Sam Salvin, the restaurateur, told some Chicago visitors last night about his reputation for employing fine chefs. "This reputation goes back to the days when I operated Rector's," Salvin told them. "I needed a band, and someone told me of a fine clarinetist working with an orchestra in Coney Island. I went there, listened to him, and offered him the job. He told me: 'Why should I leave, when I'm making $50 a week here?' Well, I convinced him—Ted Lewis—to come to Rector's and organize his own band. And all I offered Lewis," said Salvin, "was the same $50 a week—but with meals."

DRAMA NOTE.—The illness of the venerated drama critic, Burns Mantle, has saddened his colleagues. Kelcey Allen, the dean of New York drama reviewers, is particularly grieved because he has shared thousands of intermissions with Mr. Mantle. "When I go," said Allen, "I'd like my tombstone to be in the shape of a theater chair."

Europeans Fear U.S.-Soviet War

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson, who has just returned from Europe, today begins a series of columns on the most important problem now facing the world: Will there be war between Russia and the United States?)

Walter Lippmann doesn't know it, but for a long time he has caused me a lot of trouble. My wife keeps telling me, "Why don't you become a statesman like Walter Lippmann? Why don't you give up this keyhole reporting and settle the problems of the world like Lippmann does?"

Pearson

So, since Mrs. P. has been a good sport about riding on a lot of European freight trains, putting up with heatless cars, irregular food and spasmodic running water and spent both Christmas and New Year's away from the children, I'm going to pull a Walter Lippmann for her and temporarily become a pundit on the future of Europe.

If you talk with either the foreign ministers or the taxicab drivers of western Europe you won't find any of them worried about war among their immediate neighbors. But you do find them very much worried about war between the United States and Russia. And while some of them wouldn't mind seeing these two colossi of the world chew each other up, none of them relish the idea of having Europe become the battlefield.

If I know the United States, on the other hand, there isn't any good American—except an infinitely small minority—who wants war with Russia. There are, however, a great many people who fear that trouble will break out in Europe which would end in a major conflagration between the USA and the USSR.

Three Powder Kegs

Looking over Europe and the adjacent Near East there are three potential powder kegs where this could happen: (1) Northern Italy and Trieste, (2) Greece, and (3) Palestine, along with Turkey and the Near East. Of course, Europeans argue that the United States has stuck its nose a long way from home into these three trouble spots. And a lot of them argue that if anyone is looking for war, we are. But ducking that argument for the moment, let's just see how troublesome these spots are, taking them up in reverse order.

Most people were delighted when they noted Russia, for once, lined up on the side of the United States recently at the United Nations meetings at Lake Success and voted for the partition of Palestine. They heaved sighs of relief and pointed out that, at long last, the two countries had found one thing they could agree on.

However, what most people didn't know was that shortly thereafter Russia very sweetly suggested to the United States that, since we had congressional and domestic difficulties over sending United States troops out of the USA, the Red army would be glad to send four divisions to police Palestine for every one sent by the United States or, still smiling sweetly, the Red army would be glad to oblige by handling the policing of all Palestine. We needn't worry about it at all. The Russians even went further and added that in case of mixed American and Russian divisions policing Palestine, the American commander must serve under a Russian.

Of course, what the Russians didn't say was that if they got a base in Palestine, they would no longer need the long-sought Dardanelles. For, from Palestine, they could control all the eastern Mediterranean, including Turkey, the Red Sea and Arabian oil, and would even be within two hours of the new British military base in Central Africa—Kenya.

United States officials listened politely and said nothing. In fact, they'll probably even deny such a conversation ever took place. But it did take place and it is indicative of the ever-increasing jockeying for military position in and around Europe.

Von Paulus at Work

Just a few hours flying time northwest, in Greece, a far more dangerous battle for position is taking place. There Russia recently sent 40 of her latest type Stormovik fighter planes to Albanian air bases, carefully prepared six to seven months previously. In this area also, Russia is concentrating an increasingly large contingent of her international brigade, composed chiefly of former German prisoners and trained under Stalingrad's famous—though defeated—attacker, Field Marshal von Paulus.

Von Paulus is now reported to be in Belgrade organizing two new German units, the Liebknecht and Karl Marx divisions. All in all, about 80,000 German prisoners are reported concentrated at Vojvodina, headquarters of the Third Yugoslav army, where they are being offered tempting living conditions if they will serve under the Yugoslav flag. Meanwhile, Lieut. Gen. Bozidar Maslarich, intelligence chief of Tito's general staff and president of the Pan Slav Congress, is in actual command of Moscow's Greek maneuvers.

The English translation of Bozidar is "Christmas gift," but Bozidar Maslarich's tactics won't be any Christmas gift to the United States if the Balkan countries officially recognize General Markos' puppet Greek government and then proceed to suupply it with arms. Unquestionably such recognition would be the severest challenge to the United Nations since Russian troops moved into Iran in the spring of 1946.

Even more important, to the American people, it would be the severest challenge to the United States, since United States troops in Greece are not only small in number but a long, long way from home. In other words, Russia is now enjoying the advantage of playing the game right on her own grounds. Furthermore, having lost some important skirmishes in France and Italy recently, Moscow desperately needs some compensating victories. And traditional Soviet policy is that, when thrown for a loss in one part of the European field, the Politburo boys come back stronger in another part.

This is only a small segment of the story. What some of our boys in Washington think about it and what we can or should do about it will be diagnosed shortly.

Getting in touch

Sometimes along a busy street . . . I meet a man I know . . . Whom I have not laid eyes upon . . . Since many moons ago . . . We greet each other with a smile . . . And talk in terms sublime . . . And when we part he promises . . . To call me up some time . . . But days and weeks go rolling by . . . And still there is no call . . . And I must wonder if he meant . . . To keep his word at all . . . Of course sometimes I hall a friend . . . And make that gesture too . . . And it becomes a promised deed . . . That I neglect to do . . . This practice certainly appears . . . To be a common plight . . . But in the act of promising . . . At least we are polite.

THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN

TEXAS . . . the lone star state

We Texans aren't a bit modest when we speak of our great State. We're proud of many things . . . our size . . . our resources . . . our fine educational facilities . . . our traditions. Our historic battle cry, "Remember the Alamo," still echoes throughout the State. On March 6, 1836, within the gray stone walls of the chapel of this Franciscan monastery, in the heart of San Antonio . . . 187 Texas heroes . . . valiantly gave their lives in defense of Texas liberty. The Texas Rangers . . . organized in the early part of the 19th Century to maintain law and order, guard against marauding Indians and patrol the Mexican border . . . have carried on this tradition of gallantry and bravery. Two military leaders of Texas birth commanded the Nation's armed forces during World War II . . . General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. In the economic world, Texas is synonymous with cattle, roaming the unfenced ranges . . . with oil . . . with great mineral wealth . . . with booming industry and rich agricultural areas. We have used our resources to build mighty industrial centers . . . great ports opening to the sea . . . and ranches world-famous for their tremendous production of meat and other essential foods. Friendship is the official motto of our State. The Texan is known throughout the Nation for his friendly greeting, "Howdy, Neighbor." The good neighborliness between Texas and Mexico across the border is an example for the world of international amity. We Texans are proudest of all of our love of country. That is why we are grateful to The Hecht Company for giving the Texas State Society an opportunity to tell its story to the citizens of Washington . . . for harmony and understanding contribute to the strength of America. By this means . . . we'll get to know each other better . . . and that's what makes Democracy work.

President, Texas State Society

● TEXAS . . . Mighty, sprawling Texas . . . has lots of elbow room . . . and makes good use of every inch of it. Texas is Big in sheer physical size (220 times the size of our smallest State). And she is Big in oil and mineral production . . . Big in ranching . . . Big in industry and commerce . . . and, above all, Big in her contributions to the Nation's growth and welfare.

● TEXAS . . . Has flown the flags of five Nations . . . France, Spain, Mexico, the United States . . . and let it never be forgotten . . . the Lone Star flag of the Republic of Texas. Texans still celebrate March 2, the day in 1836 when Texas became an independent Nation. Sam Houston, first President of the Republic of Texas, and David Crockett of Alamo fame are heroes immortal to all Texans. The Republic signed a treaty with the United States in 1845, to take her place as a member of the Union . . . and, by special authorization of Congress, she is the only State in the Union with the privilege to subdivide into five States at any time . . . present or future. She is also the only State authorized to maintain her own Army and Navy.

● TEXAS . . . Where the Long Horn cattle supported the early economy of the State. Today Texas ranks first in the Nation in beef cattle . . . first in the number of sheep and average annual production of wool . . . first in production of turkeys. She leads the Nation in the number of mules on farms and ranches . . . and has more horses than most States. Texans maintain that West Texas ranches are so big that each cow has more room to graze in than entire dairy herds have elsewhere.

● TEXAS . . . Whose cotton crop is the most valuable crop grown by any single political subdivision in the world. The State produces a third of the total U. S. production. The Valley of the Rio Grande is a leading producer of citrus fruit . . . making the State the country's second biggest producer of grapefruit and third biggest in orange production. More than 50 crops are grown on a commercial scale.

● TEXAS . . . Underlaid with billions of dollars in mineral wealth. She is first in oil, helium and natural gas . . . the Panhandle, Katy, Carthage and Sellison fields are among the world's largest. Texas has an enormous output of coal and sulphur and has some of the world's largest salt domes. Texas towns, aptly named for their mineral deposits, include Carbon, Clay, Gold, Mercury, Nickel, Ore City, Radium, Gasoline . . . and just plain Mineral.

● TEXAS . . . Has great Gulf ports . . . Houston, the world's leading oil port; Beaumont; Port Arthur; Texas City; Corpus Christi; Port Aransas and Galveston. Fort Worth is the largest meat packer of the Southwest and the biggest grain market of the South.

● TEXAS . . . Proud of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College . . . the State College for Women . . . Baylor University . . . Southern Methodist University . . . Texas Christian University . . . Rice University . . . and the University of Texas. Oil found on the public domain, which contributes heavily to the support of the State University and Texas A & M, has added millions to the schools' permanent endowment funds.

● TEXAS . . . Builds things on a scale to match the size of the State. The Port Arthur-Orange Bridge, spanning the Neches River, is the tallest highway bridge in the South . . . and in Pecos County is the deepest man-made hole in the world . . . an oil well drilled down 15,279 feet . . . but that one came in dry. The Texas State Capitol building is seven feet higher than the U. S. Capitol. And by proud Texans' own admission, Texas Tall Tales can not be equalled anywhere.
